

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

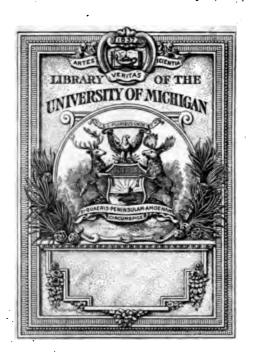

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

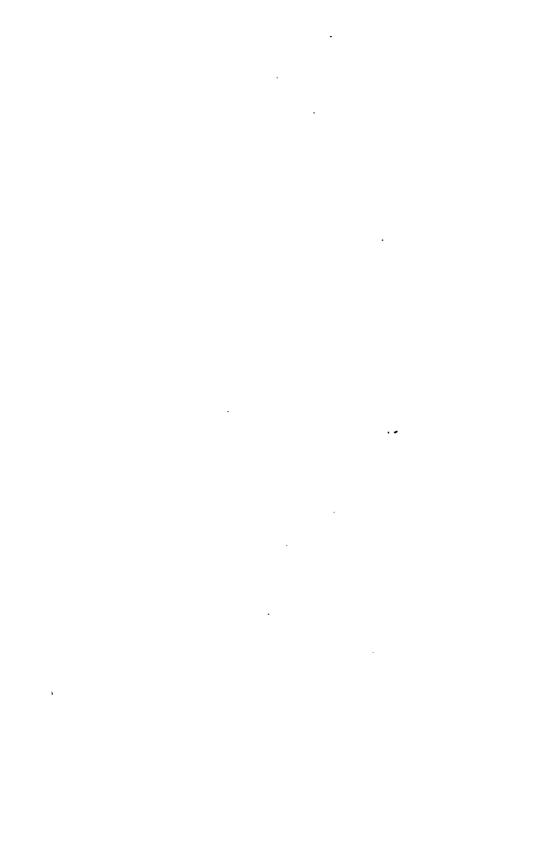

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

DOES THE TRADE WANT IT?

Annual Catalogue, 1886.

IN accordance with many requests from the trade, we have decided to issue a Catalogue of American Books and imported editions published in 1886, provided subscriptions show general desire and adequate demand for an Annual Catalogue.

This will include, re-arranged alphabetically, the full entries (with descriptive notes) of our Weekly Record, pre-faced by a short-title index by author, title, and subject—the most complete annual catalogue yet attempted in any country.

Publishers are notified that their advertisements in the Annual Summary Number of the Publishers' Weekly will appear in this catalogue, if issued, without extra charge.

· The price will be Three Dollars, half leather (or $2.50 unbound). The cost of compilation and manufacture prevents cheaper price. The edition will be limited, and plates will not be kept.

If you want an Annual Catalogue issued, please send us a post-card at once to say if you will take one or more copies. If less than 250 subscriptions are sent, we do not propose to undertake the work. If reply is adequate and prompt, we expect to have it ready in thirty days.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly "Village Photographs," a series of papers of New England life, character, and scenery, which has been running through the Evening Post for several months.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have just ready "Rambles in Old Boston, New England," by Rev. Edward G. Porter, illustrated by George R. Tolman, in a handsome quarto volume of 439 pages, with index, maps, and numerous illustrations.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish at once Brooks Adams' work entitled "The Emancipation of Massachusetts." Mr. Adams claims that his study of Massachusetts history has convinced him that certain important aims and objects of the early settlers of that State have been hitherto ignored or very inadequately recognized.

In this book he attempts to point out and illustrate these, and to show the steps and agencies by which Massachusetts was emancipated from the ecclesiastical and political narrowness, bigotry, and intolerance, which he claims dominated the colony down to the Revolution. His book is vigorously written and challenges careful study.

D. LOTHROF & Co. have just published in the Spare Minutes Series "Faith and Action," selections from the writings of Rev. F. D. Maurice, with an introduction by Rev. Phillips Brooks, D.D.; "Perry's Saints, or, the fighting parson's regiment," a story of the war for the Union, by Col. James M. Nichols, an intensely interesting story of some of the most remarkable events of the war; also, "Common-Sense Science," by Grant Allen, which contains a number of practical essays upon various scientific problems of the day.

THE CENTURY Co.'s war book, to be called "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War," will be published early in the spring by subscription. In addition to all the war papers by Generals Grant, McClellan, Pope, Buell, Rosecrans, Howard, Beauregard, Longstreet, and scores of other prominent leaders on both sides which have appeared in The Century, the book will contain many papers heretofore unprinted, and will form a continuous illustrated history of the Civil War written by the principal participants. The Century Co. will endeavor to make it artistically and mechanically one of the handsomest subscription-books ever published.

THE SOCIETY FOR POLITICAL EDUCATION, N. J., has issued an interesting tract (No. 22) on "Civil Service Examinations." This comprises a collection of question papers used in Brooklyn, New York, and Boston, with actual answers of successful and unsuccessful candidates applying for various positions, from that of laborer to that of an engineer, thus showing the practical workings of the Civil Service system in its varied applications in the national, State, and municipal services, to different grades of work. The editor of this series of papers, Mr. R. R. Bowker, in an introduction makes a concise, matter-of-fact statement of the claims of the Civil Service system, treating the subject simply from a business point of view and dissipating many false notions regarding examinations

ROBERTS BROS. will publish this month Harriet Waters Preston's new novel, "A Year in Eden," her first work in this direction of pretensions; the second volume of the Old Colony series, entitled "Agatha and the Shadow," an anonymous novel founded on early colonial history; "Mabel Stanhope," a story by Kathleen O'Meara, which, though published in Europe several years ago, has never before been printed here, and has been rewritten and revised; a reprint of an English book, "Riding for Ladies, with Hints on the Stable," by Mrs. Power O'Donohue, the author of "The Beggar on Horseback," etc.; and a new novel in the No Name series, entitled "A Question of Identity," a story of New England life of to-day. Next month they will publish "Beyond the Golden Gates," a sort of psychological essay showing that, in these days of the craze for theosophy, it is not necessary for one to die to reach the blessed life, but that if people only live as well as they know how here, they can bring the state of Nirvana perfection to earth, and realize here the life which is supposed to lie beyond the golden gates.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. A remarkable story of adventure and of the supernatural by the author of "King Solomon's mines." Two Englishmen, in an attempt to elucidate a mystery, are irresistibly impelled to make a journey to unexplored regions in Central Africa. Here, after the most astounding adventures, they find a beautiful woman reigning over a fierce but intelligent tribe, who date their origin back beyond the dawn of history. "She" is not only immortal, having already lived for 2000 years, renewing her youth through baths in a fountain of fire, the source of life, but has godlike powers. The story of the Englishmen's sojourn in this wonderful country is most thrilling.

The writer has aimed to present in a kind, simple, straightforward manner the objections he has himself discovered against the Book of Mormon as a professed revelation from God. He hopes his effort will prove of special service to all honest, candid Mormons, the young people in Utah, and to persons in this country and Europe who may come into contact with Mormon mission-

75 C.; pap., 50 C.
A translation of a famous French book, Les Etudes de Maitre Pierre sur l'agriculture et les forets, consisting of a series of conversations between a village schoolmaster and a peasant, Master Peter, in which they discuss a scheme proposed by the French government to put an end to the devastation wrought by the freshets—the proposal being to replant the hills with trees. As this means a temporary possession of the pasture lands, the peasants object, looking no further than their present interest. The lesson the study teaches is designed to be taken to heart especially in America, and to demonstrate bow disastrous to our agricultural interests is the destruction of our woodlands.

The Publishers' Weekly.

JANUARY 1, 1887.

WE greet the youngster 1887—in the hope that he will grow to be a better customer of the booktrade than his predecessors of recent years.

We have in plan for the New Year two or three enterprises of importance which it now becomes proper to announce. These are all in line with the present policy of this office to attempt nothing unless we believe there is a real demand for it, and that it will return to the trade as well as to this office more than its cost, in labor saving or in promoting the sale of books. A new reaper costs more than a scythe, but the most economical farmers are those who buy the reaper and save money in labor and the additional return of the crop. The "American Catalogue," for instance, is an outlay which costs money, but we believe every dealer who has actively used it has found that it more than pays its cost in a very little time.

We hope, during 1887, to make the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY more valuable than ever before, and especially to be more free in giving illustrations of technical improvements of interest to the trade, new styles of binding and the like, and we invite our patrons to send us cuts or drawings from which cuts can be made as material for this purpose.

We are planning also to make the Literary News more attractive than before, here also adding illustrations, from the new books of each month, and we urge upon booksellers not already subscribers to consider whether their trade cannot be much increased by the use of this means. We are proposing to add a cover on which each subscriber who buys an imprint edition can take local advertising, by means of which the whole or the greater part of the cost of the edition may be defrayed, and we shall be glad to give particulars to any of the trade not already subscribers. In these days of competition with the great trade centres, such a periodical, issued as the bookseller's own and having a certain local character, should do much to hold and increase the local trade.

We also propose to develop the Library Journal considerably during 1887, and we call the particular attention of those interested to the Library Record Number, which will constitute a double number for January and February, 1887, and which will include a list of public libraries of 1000 volumes and upwards, arranged geographically, but classified by type according to size and with the name of librarian or reporting officer in each case—a list published by co-operation with the Bureau of Education, but in which the last-named features are added by special work. This list has been a costly one to compile and print, and it is not proposed to sell additional copies except to subscribers. The Library Journal for 1887 will contain much matter of interest to the trade, and we should be glad to have their subscriptions for it. The list may be issued later in a separate shape, but not at a less price than three dollars. We shall be glad to have advertising from publishers for this special number, but advertising is not solicited for the regular issues of the Library Journal, as the Literary News is sent as a supplement to Library Journal subscribers.

We have decided this year to extend the index of the Annual Summary Number of the Publish-ERS' WEEKLY, which will be that for January 29, by giving a short title list by author, title, and subject of the books of 1886, and we trust that this costly feature will be supported by an increase of the advertising patronage for that number. In view of the many calls upon us for an annual list, we have made arrangements, should the actual demand justify, to issue an annual catalogue of books published in 1886, reproducing in one alphabet the full entries with notes from the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for the entire year, preceded by the short title index prepared for the Annual Summary Number of the WEEKLY. price of this will be three dollars, and its issue will depend upon the number of subscriptions received from the trade. We should be glad, therefore, to hear from intending subscribers at once, as the work of re-production will consume some We should hope, however, to issue the list, if prompt responses are made, by the end of January.

The "Publishers' Trade List Annual" has grown to such considerable proportions as to call out protest from several members of the booktrade who value it most highly, as to the stationers' catalogues. We propose, therefore, hereafter to confine the "Publishers' Trade List Annual" exclusively to book catalogues, and to issue, probably during this spring, a "Stationers' Trade List Annual," which shall do for that branch of the trade the great service universally recognized as performed by the "Publishers' Trade List Annual" for the book-trade. Further particulars of this enterprise will be given later on; we believe that it will be a most useful help throughout the trade which is most closely associated with the business of retailing books.

We hope by these new features and enterprises to thank the trade practically for the support so far given this office by justifying their belief in its progressive spirit and its desire to serve them at every possible point.

SECOND BANQUET OF THE B. C. T.

On the evening of December 29, Mazetti's, at 102 West 49th Street, New York, was the objective point of about one hundred of as fine a body of men as one would wish to see, hugging in their inside coat-pockets a bright programme, in a musty-looking cover, relieved by a seal with the cheerful incription, "Wishing you three hundred and sixty-five happy days," also a dinner check to the Second Annual Banquet of the

The Committee of Arrangements, consisting of C. S. Plummer, J. W. Waltz, Will B. Walker, and G. W. Knott, reported "all clear along the line," and the Brotherhood and a few of their friends adjourned to the room where a most sumptuous repast was awaiting them.

The menu was enclosed in a cover with an original design, colored by hand, representing a swell Brother attired in the height of fashion with a handsatchel at his left and at his right a trunk standing on its beam-end. The cover of the trunk when opened showed the names of the newly-elected officers: President, Charles E. Hopkins: Vice-President, John H. Ammon; Secretary, John Hovenden; Treasurer, Samuel Eckstein; and Board of Trustees, J. Val. Koch, Boz. E. Pike, John H. Black, and John A. McQuillan. In Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers. They came practically from every point of the compass, and what was remarkable, there was stamped on each manly face the determination to have a H. O. T. And from what we learn—they had it.

At about half-past seven an informal business meeting was called, during which it was unanimously resolved that Brother C. S. Plummer be recognized as the founder of the Order, and that the President, Mr. Charles E. Hopkins, be empowered to appoint a committee of ten to consider the subject of a closer organization. It has been pretty thoroughly canvassed during the year that it would be desirable to organize as a club, so that members may have an opportunity to meet more frequently as a body. A club-room has also been talked of, to which we shall give attention in a future issue.

The President then read letters of regret from the following: Messrs. Lew Dockstader, Francis Wilson, and M. B. Curtis, and announced a prospective deficit, to cover which a number of the houses represented " on the road" by the men present, had contributed goods which would be sold under cover by auction.

the background on one side was visible a gay Lothario arm in arm with his Lucinda, and on the other, the traveller's bane—the baggage-room and "smasher."

After removing the cloth Brother Hopkins opened the programme of after-dinner exercises with a brief and pithy speech. Then came the presentation of an elaborate gold and ivory gavel to retiring President C. S. Plummer and a gold pen to retiring Secretary H. C. A. Gibbs. These tokens are to be worn as insignias.

Mr. W. B. Stone, one of the guests, then favored the company with a piano recital, which was heartily applauded.

The first toast of the evening was "Our Brotherhood, its aims and purposes,"

"Where'er I roam, whatever realms to see, My heart, untrammelled, fondly turns to thee."

This was to have been responded to by Bro. H. P. Beach, but being absent Bro. F. E. Hafeley was induced to do the subject justice and succeeded admirably, notwithstanding his apology that he was only an "eleventh hour job lot."

Bro. H. C. Bainbridge rendered a song, "The King's Highway," to the satisfaction of those present. As an encore he sang a parody on the ballad, "In Days of Old when Knights were Bold," the verses of which are as follows:

In days of old,
When Tramps were bold,
And Drummers got poor pay,
A Traveller bold,
With samples old,
Sang merrily his lay,
Sang merrily his lay;
"I have these goods to sell;
If I don't, the boss will raise—well.
Then what care I, though death be nigh,
I'll sell the stuff, or die!"

The shades of night
Were falling fast,
And his day's work was done.
He'd seen the trade,
Sold bills that paid,
And thought he'd have some fun,
He thought he'd have some fun.
So, dressed up in his best
Dress suit and clean, white vest,
Cried, "What care I, though death be nigh,
I'll have some fun, or die!"

The second toast, "Our License Laws: Millions for defence, but not one cent for tribute," was responded to by a letter from Bro. John Glenn, who was unavoidably detained in Philadelphia. The license laws alluded to do not of course refer to those in which the Prohibitionist party concerns itself.

The Banjo Solo had to be omitted on account of the absence of Bro. F. H. Newcombe. Mr. Nat Goodwin volunteered a story.

After the toast, "Our Benedicts,"

"Happy is he who through life's weary journey Hath an amiable companion," which was happily responded to by Bro. R. L. Thomas, the President announced that the auction would now be in order. Bro. C. S. Plummer was unanimously appointed to the office of auctioneer, and soon satisfied those present that he could sell goods under the hammer fully as well as in the orthodox fashion. Among the goods sold was a handsome autograph album, presented by Messrs Liebenroth, Von Auw & Co., containing the autographs of the one hundred members of the Brotherhood. The sale realized nearly double the amount of the estimated deficit and proved one of the most enjoyable features of the evening.

Mr. Robert B. Mantell, one of the guests, then favored the company with a recitation entitled "Our Folks," and Bro. McQuillan with a baritone solo, both of which were lustily encored.

The fourth toast, "Our Bachelors," with the motto, "His life of single blessedness to the world hath made him more kind," was commented on in a happy speech by Bro. A. E. Welsh; the sixth toast, "Our Trade Journals: ably conducted, intelligently circulated, the greatest adjuncts to the work of the Commercial Traveller," found an able spokesman in Mr. C. K. Urquhart; and the final toast, "The Ladies,"

"As for women, though we starve and flout 'em,"
We may live with, but cannot live without 'em," drew forth an eloquent eulogy from Bro. W. B. Walker. A quartette, by Bros. Plummer, Bainbridge, McQuillan, and Newcombe was one of the attractions of the evening.

It had been a bright, clear evening when this banquet began; when the brave band, who held out until the benediction, reached the street, the weather had taken a turn and it was bleak and snow was falling. But the boys didn't mind it a bit. In voices husky with—well, say emotion, they assured one another in the most confidential manner that this was the happiest moment of their lives.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. FROUDE is on a tour for the purpose of collecting material for a work on the wreck of the Spanish Empire.

HERBERT SPENCER, who has been restored to good health, will publish in January "Factors of Organic Evolution," enlarged from articles already printed.

MRS. CUSTER, it is reported, has finished the book she has been at work upon all summer. It will make a much bulkier volume than her "Boots and Saddles." It will be published by Charles L. Webster & Co., and sold by subscription.

PROFESSOR W. G. SUMNER has made a careful study of the question of "What makes the rich richer and the poor poorer?" and will communicate the answer to it which he has reached, through the January number of The Popular Science Monthly. His paper on this subject will be the first article in that issue.

THE late General Logan had in preparation a work on "The Volunteer Soldier," which he expected to have ready for publication by June next. The Rev. Robert Nourse, a close personal friend of the General, is authority for the statement that he was not a little disappointed at the reception of his literary venture—"The Great Conspiracy."

A NEW novel from the pen of "The Duchess" (Mrs. Margaret Argles-Hungerford) is promised, which, it is said, will bear a close resemblance to the author's "Phyllis." This latter work, says a correspondent of the Chicago Times, "it will be remembered, was written by 'The Duchess' when, as a young wife, she was, by the imprisonment of her first husband for forgery, thrown upon her work 'Molly own resources. Her second Bawn,' has proved to be her most successful novel, nearly 50,000 copies having been sold by her authorized American publishers. The J. B. Lippincott Co., alone. In addition to this sale, thousands of copies have been sold of the book in the six or seven cheap and unauthorized reprints put out in America. 'The Duchess' is not, as has been frequently stated, an elderly woman. She has not yet reached her 36th year, and was married to her present husband, Mr. Hungerford, three years ago."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE handsome January Magazine of American History opens with the initial chapter in its promised series of studies in the rise, progress, and development of journalism in America. This chapter, treating of "Pre-Revolutionary Editors," and the "Beginnings of Journalism in America," is very interesting, and is illustrated in the most useful, unique, and picturesque manner; the text is from the pen of the Hon. S. G. W. Benjamin, our late Minister to Persia, who writes delightfully, in an easy-flowing, narrative style, the strictest care being given to exact data,

The success of Scribner's Magasine, judged by the figures vouched for by the publishers, is unique in the history of magazines. The first (January) number was published on December 15th, the first edition being 100,000 copies. It was exhausted on the day of publication. On Saturday, December 18th, a second edition of 25,000 copies appeared, which was at once consumed, and an additional 15,000 was put to press—140,000 copies having been already sold. The demand was so great that it was impossible to keep the dealers supplied. On the day of publication, 2000 copies were sold upon the newsstands of the elevated railroads; at the newsstand of one the New York hotels, nearly 500 copies were disposed of on the first afternoon of its appearance, and several of the dealers at the ferries leading from New York sold 600 copies on the first day.

BUSINESS NOTES

Baltimore, Md.—The Baltimore Publishing Co. moved into their new quarters, 180 West Baltimore St., on the 15th ult. It is now the largest building of the kind on the street and is fitted up in the most handsome manner. On the ground floor is the show-room. The counting-room is located in the rear, behind a partition of handsome wood-work. On the second floor is the wholesale department. A reading-room for clergymen, where Catholic periodicals will be kept on file, will be in the front part of this floor. The composing-room occupies the third floor, and the press-room is in the upper story. All the rooms are magnificently lighted. The building is 130 by 26 feet, and is one of the most commodious in the city.

FOR F WORTH, TEX.—Max Elser is closing out his book-store.

MENDON, MICH.—M. E. Macdowell has sold out his book and stationery business.

Meridian, Miss.—Robert S. Wetmore has opened at this place a branch of his well-known Selma, Ala., book and stationery store. Mr. Wetmore asks the trade to send him catalogues and quote discounts at Meridian.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES

PUTTRAMMER & MUHLBRECHT, the well-known law booksellers and publishers of Berlin, have issued a catalogue of works in Jurisprudence and Political Economy, which the Publishers' Circular considers a marvel of industry in compilation and of elegance in production. Without claiming for this catalogue absolute completeness as a legal bibliography, Otto Mühlbrecht, the compiler, claims that it contains all those works which, judging from a long experience, he considers of absolute use to the legal practitioner. As a matter of course, almost, the collection is confined, with some notable classical exceptions, to the present century. An excellent classified index is given with the catalogue.

THE Bibliographical Notices, I., which Prof. Willard Fiske is on the eve of issuing at Florence, says the Nation, "comprises a list of such of his books from Icelandic presses, during the years 1578-1844, as are not enumerated in the catalogue of books printed in Iceland published by the British Museum. For the period in question the catalogue enumerates 170 titles, and Prof. Fiske owns 84 of these. He therefore describes in his supplementary list only 139 titles, or the remainder of the 223 in his possession. From 1845 to 1880, the date at which the Museum catalogue ends, the disparity is still greater in favor of Prof. Fiske's collection."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued Hallam Tennyson's "Jack and the Beanstalk," told in hexameters, and illustrated by Randolph Caldecott—his last work before his untimely end.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. announce new editions of "Beautiful Snow" and "Hans Breitmann's Ballads." Both of these volumes will be illustrated, printed on fine heavy paper, and handsomely bound.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. desire to assure their friends that the report that their store or factory had sustained serious damage by fire is unfounded. Their stock and buildings are wholly uninjured, the fire having been two doors away.

An association of ladies, it is stated, has been formed in Prussia to prepare a complete new translation, by women and for women, of the Old and New Testaments. The N. Y. Tribune thinks we may, therefore, expect a "Petticoat Bible" as a suitable companion to the celebrated version known as the "Breeches Bible."

KEEPERS of news-stands on the New York Elevated Railroad stations, and in the principal hotels and ferry entrances, are authority for the statement that more libraries and books in paper covers are sold at twenty-five cents each than at ten cents. They say the great travelling public do not seem to care very much about the price so long as it does not exceed a quarter.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have just ready a new volume of travel by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, entitled "The Midnight Sun, the Tsar, and the Nihilist." His experiences in the strange northern countries of Europe have the charm of romance, but are wonderfully true to the peculiar life of the people, and the vivid descriptions of scenery are further enhanced by the numerous fine illustrations that ornament the book.

The literature of the professions is being wonderfully increased. Especially true is this of the books on medicine and surgery. A prominent Chicago practitioner, whose specialty is the treatment of the eye, recently said to a reporter of a Chicago daily that the number of books which he now had for the study of the eye and its diseases far exceeded the number of those which be formerly used in studying the whole subject of medicine.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will bring out at an early date, for this and for the English market also, a work of singular interest to the educational world, and especially to those who desire to place education on a scientific basis, in Antonio Rosmini Serbati's "Method in Education," translated into English by Mrs. William Grey, who is widely known in England as a leader in the movement for the higher education of women. The work is said to be "an admirable exposition of the method of presenting knowledge to the human mind in accordance with the natural laws of its development;" and that "the disciples of Froebel will find in it not only a perfectly independent confirmation but also the true psychological estimate of the principles of Froebel's kindergarten system."

THE tenth volume of the "Archives of the German Book-Trade" has just been issued by the Börsenverein des deutschen Buchhandels.

Mr. J. W. ZAEHNSDORF is carrying on the bindery of his late father, of which he has had entire management for the last four years.

THE next volume in the Badminton Library, to be published in February, will be "Cycling," written by Lord Bury and Mr. G. Lacy Hillier.

CHAPMAN & HALL have arranged for the issue of what is hoped will be a really satisfactory edition of "The Pickwick Papers." The new edition will contain facsimiles of all the original drawings, including some never yet published.

WALTER SCOTT, London and Newcastle, will publish at once in his biographical series of Great Writers an account of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow by Eric Robertson. This will be followed in February by a volume on Coleridge, by Hall Caine. Volumes on Dickens and Rossetti are promised.

SAMPSON LOW & Co. will publish at once Admiral Semmes' "Service Afloat, or, the career of the Confederate cruisers Sumter and Alabama during the American civil war.' Ιt will be illustrated by steel plates and chromo-tinted engravings. They will also shortly publish an interesting work on "The Rothschilds: the financial rulers of nations," by John Reeve.

THE attempts made to stamp out underselling in Germany seem to be attended with satisfactory Out of five firms excluded from trade privileges on account of underselling, and whose names were made known to the trade by the Council of the Börsenverein in a circular dated Nov. 22d, two have already announced their intention of discontinuing their former practices.

ALLEN & Co., London, announce "A History of the United States," in two volumes. The work is said to cover the whole period from the foundation of Virginia and Plymouth down to the close of the War of Secession and the reestablishment of self-government in the Southern States. The author, Mr. Percy Greg, has been known from the publication of his first volume of verse-" Interleaves," in 1875-as a strong sympathizer with the Southern cause; and this work is, perhaps, the first historical account of the Civil War and its causes from that standpoint by one who was not an actor on the stage.

743 and 745 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Each Bookseller His Own Publisher.

The LITERARY News is intended to help sell books. We are intending to make it the best we know how through 1887—fresh, live, novel.

It will hereafter be illustrated from the new books, or with portraits of authors.

If the retail trade take to the idea, we propose to add a handsome cover, imprint on the first page, the other pages left free for local advertising (which we will print), which will cover the whole or most of the cost of an edition.

Subscriptions, at $1 per year, or sales over the counter, at 10 cents the number, will add another element of profit. If subscriptions are obtained, the bookseller may enter the periodical at his local post-office as second-class matter—rate, one cent per pound.

Large orders will secure exclusive rights for a locality.

Its 32 pages monthly will include the brightest reviews of the most salable books, the popular prize questions, the useful purchase-list and survey of current literature, reading lists on timely topics, etc., etc.

ZOLA'S NEW WORK.

Christine, the Model; Or, Studies of Love.

Zola in his new book has taken artist life in Paris among the beautiful models in the studios as his theme, which is graphically described and vividly and truthfully depicted, and it is one of his very best productions, being full of spice, dash, vigor, and originality. Claude Lantier, brother of the beautiful Nana, and son of Gervaise and Lantier of "L'Assommoir," is the hero. He and Christine pervade the book, a thrilling picture of their ardent love being given. Under the name of Sandoz, Zola personally figures largely in the fascinating novel.

The Best Book on Gardening Ever Written.

Gardening for Profit.

A Guide to the Successful Culture of the Market and Family Garden. Profusely illustrated. New edition, entirely rewritten and greatly enlarged. By PETHE HENDERSON, author of "Practical Floriculture," "Gardening for Pleasure," "Garden and Farm Topics," etc. Cloth, 12mo, postpaid, $2.00.

The immense and unprecedented sale of the earlier editions of Mr. Henderson's book, "Gardening for Profit," which sale has been continuous since the first day of its issue, indicates the estimate of its value as a thoroughly practical work. The new book, just issued, contains the best of the former work, with large editions drawn from the author's added years of experience. It cannot but be regarded by all as the best work on Market and Family Gardening ever published.

WILL PUBLISH SATURDAY, JANUARY 15:

The Emancipation of Massachusetts

CONTENTS: The Migration; The Antinomians; The Cambridge Platform; The Anabaptists; The Quakers; The Scire-Facias; The Witchcraft; Brattle Church; Harvard College; The Lawyers; The Revolution.

Mr. Brooks Adams' study of Massachusetts history has convinced him that certain important aims and objects of the early settlers of that State have been hitherto ignored or very inadequately recognized. In this book he attempts to point out and illustrate these, and to show the steps and agencies by which Massachusetts was emancipated from the ecclesiastical and political narrowness, bigotry, and intolerance, which he claims dominated the colony down to the Revolution. His book is vigorously written and challenges careful study.

The Golden Fustice.

A Novel. By WILLIAM HENRY BISHOP, author of "The House of a Merchant Prince," "Detmold," etc. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.25.

This is unquestionably the most striking novel Mr. Bishop has yet written. While appearing serially in the Atlantic Monthly it attracted marked attention by its plot (which has been pronounced worthy of Hawthorne), its dramatic incidents, its fine discrimination of character, and its excellent narrative style.

The Pioneer Quakers.

By R. P. HALLOWELL, author of "The Quaker Invasion of Massachusetts." I vol., 16mo, $1.00.

This work consists of a brief statement of the principles and the testimonies of the early Quakers, a condensed review of their devoted championship of religious liberty in the Massachusetts colonies, and some observations on their relations to the Indians. The author's purpose is to indicate the true place held by the early Quakers in the history of the world's progress towards freedom, as contrasted with the popular theory advanced by prominent historians and essayists, that they were merely religious "cranks."

Quaker Invasion of Massachusetts.

By R. P. HALLOWELL. New edition, revised. 10mo, gilt top, $1.25.

Shakespeare's Insomnia,

And the Causes Thereof. By Franklin H. HEAD. I vol., 16mo, parchment paper cover, 75 cents.

"A clever little brochure, in which the writer quotes copiously from Shakespeare's works to prove that he was a victim of insomnia, and then undertakes to account for it by showing that at the times when these particular plays were written the author was harassed by importunate creditors and heartless attorneys who were trying to make him pay debts which it was beyond his power to pay. . . . Specially interesting to lovers of Shakespearean bibliography."—Chicago Journal.

A TIMELY BOOK. Progressive Orthodoxy.

A Contribution to the Christian Interpretation of Christian Doctrines. By the Editors of the Andover Review, Professors in Andover Theological Seminary. $1.00.

The recent trial of the Andover Professors for "heterodoxy," largely for what they published in this book, renders it a work of unusual interest just now.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY, Boston.

II EAST SEVENTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK.

D. LOTHROP AND CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

HESTER, and Other New England Stories. By PERRY'S SAINTS, or the Fighting Parson's MARGARET SIDNEY. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

True to the life they represent, these stories are thoroughly imbued with the New England spirit. The dialect is choicely preserved, with the best flavor of village speech, like a fine aroma, and never allowed to be lost. The character sketches are bright, natural, and faithful delineations of New England life, customs and manners.

A NEW DEPARTURE FOR GIRLS. By MARGARET SIDNEY. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents

This is a bright story of two young girls whose father, dying, left an encumbered estate and two daughters without means of support. The "new departure" is the novel and sensible way these young girls took to earn their living without resorting to teaching, music, painting, Kensington work, nor going into a store, office, nor out to service. The story, which is full of interest and incident, moves graphically and forcefully to its conclusion, conveying a powerful lesson to any reader whether in affluent or needy circumstances. The volume is richly illustrated.

THE FULL STATURE OF A MAN. By JULIAN WARTH. THE ROUND WORLD SERIES. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

This initial volume of a new series is "transfixed with a purpose." The author handles the questions of Labor, Church-going and Socialism with rare skill and without obtrusive discussion. Though his views are strong and sharply expressed there is no detraction from the reader's eager interest in the story itself, which is bright, original in plot, and full of incident.

Dr. A. P. Peabody of Harvard writes of the author of this: "He has a resource in his power of imaginative fiction which could win him a large place in the best literature of the day. I am charmed with the vivid portraiture, the truth-like narrative, the strokes of wit, humor and merited satire, the breadth and loftiness of Christian faith, charity and aspiration."

LAST EVENING WITH ALLSTON, and Other . Papers. By ELIZABETH P. PRABODY. 12mo, cloth, $1.50. In her Allston paper the author records her recollections of a memorable evening spent with the painter a few days before his sudden death. She treats of his life and genius as of the greatest American painter, an ideal man and an intimate friend. She refers to his oft-stated belief that for the true painter, "drawing is the first thing; drawing is the second thing; drawing is the third thing." The first of the other papers was written in 1830. They are on varied subjects which have been of paramount interest during the literary life of the venerable author. "A Vision" was contributed to the Pioneer in 1843, "Brook Farm Interpretation of Christ's Idea of Society," from the Dial, and the "Atheism of Yesterday," from the Christian Examiner.

THE MODERN JEW, His Present and Future. By Anna Laurens Dawes. 16mo, cloth, 50 cents: paper, 25 cents.

The latest paper is a "Plea for Freebel's Kindergarten."

This interesting essay on a living question is by the talented daughter of Senator Dawes. In the engaging and succinct style which has made "How We Are Governed" so valuable and popular she discusses Jewish genius and characteristics with reference to the fitness and feasibility of the return of the Jewish nation to Palestine. It is a compendium of facts of popular interest.

IN LEISLER'S TIMES. A Story-Study of Knickerbocker New York. By E. S. BROOKS. Twenty-four Drawings by W. T. Smedley. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

The reader is introduced to a hitherto neglected region of American history. The author gives the result of patient research in the eventful life of Jacob Leisler, who was really the first " People's Governor" in America. The chief characters are taken from the young people of several old Knickerbocker families. The incidents are historically true and the scenes are of great dramatic interest. It is the story of a genuine patriot.

Regiment. A Story of the War for the Union. By Col. JAMES M. NICHOLS. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25.

Is the history of one of the most remarkable men and regiments that served during the late war. The hero, Rev. J. H. Perry, (who had been graduated from West Point), on receipt of news of the bombardment of Fort Sumter, said: "I was educated by the Government; it now needs my services. I shall resign my ministry and again take up my sword." The story is told with much spirit. The book is admirably illustrated from drawings by a distinguished army officer.

HEAVEN'S GATE. A Story of the Forest of Dean. By LAWRENCE SEVERN. 16mo, cloth, $1.25. A story of back country life in England of fifty years ago when Dissenters were ostracized and when there were no free schools for the English poor. "Heaven's Gate" is the name of the estate of a well-to-do English gentlemen and Dissenter whose son William is the central figure. As a story it has been pronounced "exquisite." SILVER RAGS. By WILLIS BOYD ALLEN. Pine Cone Stories. 16mo, cloth, $1.00. The name of this charming book is taken from the lines:

"Like beggar princes of the wood In silver rags the birches stood." It describes a vacation visit of Pet Sibley to the Maine home of her uncle Will Percival, whose stories, added to Pet's adventures and mishaps, while boating, roaming over the farm, climbing hay mows and so on, give rare variety of incident to the volume. It is handsomely illustrated. WHAT'S MINE'S MINE. By GEORGE MACDONALD. 16mo, cloth, $1.50. New edition (twelfth thousand now ready). The London Times pronounces this "One of the best books which MR. MACDONALD has written, strong in characterization, simple of plot, and abounding in incident, imagination, and local colour." With Alister Macruadh, his hero, the author is on his native heath. The reader enjoys with the author the various Highland localities which he describes with vividness and picturesque strength. The fortunes of the young Scottish laird who falls in love with the daughter of the merchant who is trying to get possession of his estates are followed with deep interest.

ETCHINGS FROM TWO LANDS.

ARTHUR MASON. 16mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.00. Some readers who know the author of this book by her "Cherryblooms of Yeddo" may be surprised to learn that she lived in Japan 25 a missionary. In these "Etchings" she combines the poetic insight of the "Cherryblooms" with the hearth, home and heart life of her missionary labors. She observed keenly and arrayed what she saw in attractive form, so that her book is full of interesting information on a large variety of subjects connected with Japanese life, and will serve to correct many mistaken ideas about Japan and its people.

THE EXCELLENT WOMAN. As Described in the Book of Proverbs. With an Introduction by WM. B. SPRAGUE, D. D. Illustrations in brown ink. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50, full gilt, $2.00.

Each of the twenty-two chapters of this unique volume is based upon a verse in regular order from Proverbs xxxi. 10-31. Under the titles of the "Virtuous," "Trustworthy," "Beneficent," "Active" Woman, and so on, it treats of the woman as Wife, Mother and Sister, and with the richness of imagery found only in the Oriental original. Each chapter is enriched with a

capacities assigned to her in the successive verses taken for the chapter text. POETRY AND SONG. By JAMES G. CLARKE. 16mo, doth, $1.00.

Many of the poems of this author have become familiar throughout the United States, such as "'Tis Sweet to Be Remembered," "Meet Me by the Running Brook," "The Mount of the Holy Cross" and "The Infinite Mother." This tasteful volume contains an excellent portrait and autograph of the author.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have just published "The Creed of Andover Theological Seminary," by Rev. D. T. Fiske, D.D., a statement of the case intended to enable the public to comprehend the subtleties of the controversy; "Andover Heresy," by Rev. Egbert Smyth; and "I Am That I Am," a religio-philosophical poem, by Rev. E. A. Warriner, of Montrose, Pa.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready "A Nomenclature of Colors for Naturalists, and Compendium of Useful Knowledge for Ornithologists," by Robert Ridgway, embellished with ten colored plates and seven outline illustrations; also the fifth edition of "A Treatise on the American Law of Real Property," by Emory Washburn, LL.D., by Jos. Willard and Simon G. Crosswell.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS now announce definitely that the first volume of the complete works of Benjamin Franklin will be issued this month. This edition, which will be edited by John Bigelow, will be published in ten royal octavo volumes, handsomely printed from pica type in the general style of Lodge's edition of Hamilton's works, with several engravings on steel. The work will include Franklin's private as well as official and scientific correspondence, and numerous letters and documents said to be printed now for the first time, also, the unmutilated and what is believed to be the correct version of his autobiography. The edition will be printed from type and be limited to six hundred sets, a large proportion of which have already been subscribed for.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish next week Mr. Bishop's excellent story, "The Golden Justice," which appeared in the Atlantic Monthly last year; a volume entitled "The Emancipation of Massachusetts," by Brooks Adams, a member of the famous Adams family, who takes a quite different view of the character and aims and methods of the early settlers of Massachusetts from that taken by most historians and essayists, and whose book is likely to cause no little commotion; a little volume entitled "The Pioneer Quakers," by R. P. Hallowell, who published a few years since "The Quaker Invasion of Massachusetts," and who in his new book gives an account of the origin of Quakerism, and shows by the history of Quakers that they have been always intelligently devoted to religious freedom, and not merely to some religious whim, as would be inferred from the way in which they are treated by some authors. A new edition of "The Quaker Invasion of Massachusetts," with some revisions, will appear at the same time. Two other books which have been on sale in some of the principal cities, but which have not been offered to the trade generally, are "The Heart of the Weed," a volume of poems with no author's name, but possessing much positive merit; and "Shakespeare's Insomnia, and the Causes Thereof," an essay read by Franklin H. Head before a literary society of Chicago, accounting in a humorous and quite imaginative way for some passages in Shakespeare's plays, which indicate that he may have been a victim of insomnia.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE February Atlantic will be a notable number, since it will contain a poem five or six pages long, by Mr. Lowell, satirizing in his inimitable way and deprecating the ascendency of materialistic and scientific theories, which seem to him to militate against religion and the best interests of society.

GINN & Co. announce that owing to the failure of a lithographer to produce one of the very elaborate plates of the Journal of Morphology (edited by C. O. Whitman) which he had undertaken, the first number cannot be issued until March. Most of the plates were sent in the first instance to Germany and placed in most competent hands.

The January number of the English Illustrated Magazine contains the first of a series of illustrated papers by the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," descriptive of a recent visit to Ireland. Among the other articles are "The Daughters of George III.," by M. W. Outram Tristram, with illustrations; and a series of illustrations to Fouque's "Undine," by Mr. Heyward Sumner, with an article on the romance by Miss Julia Cartwright.

Little games and exercises for teaching geography, history, composition, spelling, arithmetic, etc., compiled by Miss Bainbridge, who is a teacher of experience, from many excellent sources, and also written by herself. "She believes that the introduction of such exercises will not only rest the pupils, but will brighten their faculties, concentrate their attention, and strengther between concentrate their attention, and strengthen them for a renewal of more difficult mental work. It is really teaching by new methods; no less teaching that there is amu sement in it.

The author seems to be a fatalist; the characters are all grouped to illustrate a fixed belief in the part destiny plays in the lives of humanity. The heroine is a pretty little German peasant, who acquires some knowledge and strange ideas from books selected at random; these ideas are fostered by an English artist, and then fate again in-terposes by sending two English travellers who play a strange part in the life of the little Lieschen, who seems to have no power to combat her troubles, when the fitful fate behaves more kindly and sends Lieschen back to Passau, the quiet home of her youth, and leaves her at the beginning of her second romance.

Zola, Émile. Christine. the model; or, studies of love. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1886.] c. tr. 17-458 p. sq. S. cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c. Artist life in Paris is the theme and the characters are mainly Bohemian painters, journalists, and literary men, together with the women who have joined their fortunes to theirs. Claude Lantier, son of Gervaise and Lantier of "L'Assommoir" and brother of "Nana," is the hero. He and Christine pervade the book. Claude is a wild enthusiast with an ill-balanced mind. He has decided ability as an artist, but his monomania for founding a new realistic school of painting and producing a masterwork prevents him from attaining success. Biting poverty is finally his lot, and Christine devotedly shares his misery, tortured by jealousy of the women on his canvas, for whom he forsakes her and to whom he gives his passionate adoration. Under the name of Sandoz, Zola personally figures largely in the novel, and the statements made with reference to his life, literary aims, and methods of labor are said to be autobiographical.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN THE SENATE

THE Senate of the United States will presently be called upon to pass the first vote recorded for or against international copyright. It is a curious fact that, although the subject has been before each house of Congress many times, there has never so far in either house been a direct vote taken on any measure. It is understood to be the intention of Senator Chace not only to address the Senate, on the consideration of the report of the Committee on Patents, but to press for a vote on the committee bill, which is practically his bill.

The responsibility has been very clearly put upon Congress by the letters of successive Secretaries of State, Republican and Democratic, in connection with the conferences at Berne, as published recently in House Ex. Doc. No. 354, 40th Cong., 1st session, including the correspondence on this question, transmitted by the President July 9th and referred to the Judiciary Committee. On January 24, 1884, Secretary Freinhuysen wrote to our Minister to Switzerland:

"The question of international copyright has for many years attracted the attention of this Government. While disposed in principle toward the proposition set forth that 'the author of a literary or artistic work, whatever be his nationality and whatever the place of reproduction, should be everywhere protected on the same footing as the citizens and subjects of each nation,' this Government sees grave difficulties in the way of a general arrangement to embrace all countries in one scheme of copyright protection. The difference of tariffs of the several countries, and the fact that many other industries besides that of the author or artist are concerned in the production and reproduction of a book or work of art, must be borne in mind when considering any plan by which the originator of the work is to be vested with the right to produce or to prohibit its production in all other countries. A book is a manufacture towards which the paper-maker, type-

The relations persons in the trades contribute. between them and the author are dependent and mutual and must be considered in framing any general scheme, inasmuch as they place an author in a very different position from a printer or sculptor, whose personal handiwork goes upon the

"These points are mentioned not as expressing results reached by this Government, but as the obstacles to the adoption of an international copyright with a country whose tariff differs from our own.

On June 29, 1886, Secretary Bayard wrote:

"The important question of international copyright has been before the Congress of the United States for several years, and a legislative measure is there pending, which will authorize the conclusion of international treaties on the subject, The matter has not advanced far enough in the legislative channel to enable the Executive to act with the desirable knowledge that the course it might adopt would be likely to agree with the views of Congress. Moreover, the Constitution of the United States enumerates among the powers expressly reserved to Congress that to 'Promote the progress of science and the useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries," which implies that the origination and limitation of measures to those ends rest with the legislative rather than the treaty-making power. Copyrights and patents are on the same footing of regulation by Federal legislation, and the Executive branch of this Government cannot be unmindful that the Senate has only recently withheld its advice and consent from an international convention for the protection of industrial property, which modified and enlarged for the benefit of foreigners the municipal laws of the United States in regard to patents.

"All these considerations have necessarily deferred a reply to the invitation of the High Federal Council of November 6, 1885; and the continued pendency of measures in Congress makes it, as yet, impracticable for the United States to depute a plenipotentiary to attend the forthcoming conference at Berne for the purpose of signing the proposed international copyright con-

"The attitude of this Government toward the project is merely of expectancy and reserve. In principle, it favors the plan, but without determinate views as to the shape it should assume, and is at present unprepared to suggest modifications which might conform the convention to the legislation which Congress may hereafter deem appropriate. Without feeling authorized to join in the proposed convention as a full signatory, we do not thereby wish to be understood as opposing the measure in any way; on the contrary, the Government of the United States reserve, and without prejudice, the privilege of future accession to the international convention should it become expedient and practicable to do so.

President Arthur, in his message of 1884, wrote:

"The question of securing to authors, composers, and artists copyright privileges in this country in return for reciprocal rights abroad is one that may justly challenge your attention. It is true that conventions will be necessary for fully ac-complishing this result, but until Congress shall by statute fix the extent to which foreign holders of copyright shall be here privileged, it has been founder, the printer, the binder, and many other | deemed inadvisable to negotiate such conventions For this the United States were not represented at the recent conference at Berne."

President Cleveland referred favorably to international copyright in his first message, and in that of 1886 said:

"The drift of sentiment in civilized communities toward full recognition of the rights of property in the creations of the human intellect has brought about the adoption, by many important nations, of an International Copyright Convention, which was signed at Berne on the 18th of September, 1885.

"Inasmuch as the Constitution gives to Congress the power 'to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries,' this Government did not feel warranted in becoming a signatory pending the action of Congress upon measures of international copyright now before it, but the right of adhesion to the Berne Convention hereafter has been reserved. I trust the subject will receive at your hands the attention it deserves, and that the just claims of authors, so urgently pressed, will be duly heeded."

These extracts show that the Executive branch of the government under Administrations of both political parties has recorded itself in favor of international copyright, with perhaps some advances from one Administration to the other; and that the question is now definitely one for domestic legislation, the treaty plan having practically been abandoned on all sides. As the question comes practically before the Senate first, that body will undoubtedly give the decisive vote, and it is to be hoped sincerely that this vote will not be antagonistic to a line of progress in which all other civilized nations have joined.

We print elsewhere the circular of the Executive Committee of the Copyright League to its members urging that the Hawley Bill as well as the Chace Bill should be considered by the Senate. The recommendation is so academic as to be meaningless, because with the consideration of the Chace bill the whole question is necessarily before the Senate subject to any kind of amendment, but still more because the Hawley Bill in its original shape has practically been abandoned by Senator Hawley himself. Mr. Lowell's own remarks before the Senate Committee on Patents. as well as those of Mr. Clemens, also speaking for the League, virtually waived the opposition to the manufacturing clause, which is really the bone of contention of the League committee, and the present circular seems to be the result of endeavoring to reconcile opposing views by saying nothing at all. It is to be regretted that the Copyright League is dissipating its force in this way. The willingness to agree in some kind of compromise measure which could be accepted by all friends of copyright would on the other hand have been of great service at this juncture.

The Chace Bill is to be sure scarcely such a compromise, for it is drawn from the extreme point of view on the other side. Its passage would be a gain, for it would put this country at least a step in advance of its previous record. The clause absolutely prohibiting importations, however, cannot but raise strong opposition on the part of many others as well as authors, and we could wish heartily that Senator Chace and those associated with him in preparing the measure could see their way to liberalizing the bill in this direction. If the Copyright League would follow the lead of its own President in expressing a willingness to accept a copyright bill containing a manufacturing clause, and those represented by Senator Chace would consent to liberalize the non-importation clause, a way out might be found which would enable all interests to unite on this most desirable measure.

We join heartily in the desire that the copyright question should not be involved with the tariff question. If a manufacturing clause must be made, as is apparent, a sine qua non of an international copyright measure at the present time that is certainly providing all necessary conditions in favor of the American manufacturer. The tariff on books is a separate matter, which must be treated separately. If one side or the other insist upon involving this question with the far wider one of protection vs. free trade, there would seem to be no present possibility of outcome. But on a moderate measure such as we have indicated there should be no reason why the Fortyninth Congress should not relieve this country from the disgrace of being behind all other nations in its treatment of the rights of authors.

THE PROPOSED ANNUAL CATALOGUE.

"YES, the trade do want it and want it badly. Enter my name for two copies. Every bookseller (not book-butcher) should have one." So writes Robert Beall, Washington, in sending the first order received for the proposed Annual Cata-LOGUE, 1886. "Glad to see that you propose issuing a yearly catalogue, and will subscribe for two copies, one for the store and one for myself. We will do this much each year to help this much-needed annual," writes another Washington friend. "We sincerely hope the trade in general will appreciate the publication by responding promptly with their orders," writes a New York dealer. These are among the immediate responses to our advertisement of last week asking, Does the trade want an Annual Catalogue? but, though they seem to show a decided demand. there are so far by no means enough to warrant our going ahead. If any others want the Catalogue, they must say so at once. We propose to print, if we print at all, only a small edition, that will not supply many orders beyond those entered in advance.

THE LOVELL-HOUGHTON LIBEL CASE.

THE following decision, in General Term of the New York Supreme Court, in the case of John W. Lovell Co., appellant, vs. Henry O. Houghton and ano., respondents, settles the law, unless the case is carried to the Court of Appeals, in a matter most important to publishers engaged in copyright controversies. The original case was a libel suit for $25,000, brought by Lovell against Houghton because the latter house, in advertisements printed in the Publishers' Weekly, denounced the Lovell cheap editions of "Hyperion" and "Outre-Mer" as a violation of the rights of the Longfellow heirs, as they contained alterations not yet out of copyright. The decision, which we give in full, has no bearing on copyright law, but only on the law of libel. In the lower court Judge Ingraham had directed a verdict for defendants (PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, Jan. 30, 1886, p. 139).

Before Sedgwick, Truax, and O'Gorman, J. J. June, G. T., 1886. John W. Lovell Company, Applt., v. Henry O. Houghton & ano., Resps. Appeal by plaintiff, from judgment dismissing plaintiff.entered upon direction of Judge at trial

Mr. Roger Foster for Applt. Allen W. Evarts and Mr. Joseph H. Choate for Resps.

SEDGWICK, J.: The learned Judge below was of opinion that this action was to be determined by the rules that are applied in actions for slander of title and cited Hovey v. The Rubber Tip Pencil Co., 57 N. Y., 125. He further said that the matter complained of was at least a privileged communication, and that the complaint must be dismissed because the plaintiff had not proved malice in fact. A supposed slander of title is one kind of privileged communication. Its subject matter is, as in the present case, a claim of right, in the nature of property, antagonistic to a right claimed by the plaintiff.

The learned counsel for plaintiffs claims that the circulars sent out by defendants charge that the publication by the plaintiffs of the books in question infringed a copyright which the defendants claim still existed in later editions of "Hyperion" and "Outre-mer," reissued by Longfellow after their first publication.

The testimony disclosed that the defendants had made agreements with Mr. Longfellow under which they published the books; that Mr. Longfellow claimed that he had copyright in the books, and that on "Hyperion," when published in 1869 by defendants, there was a claim of copyright:

"Outre-mer" was published in 1835. The plaintiffs claimed the right to publish their editions of the books because, as they claimed, they were reprints of the early editions of the books printed in 1835 and 1839, the copyright in which had expired with the 42 years thereafter.

The plaintiffs knew, before they published, the nature of defendants' claim as to "Hyperion," for in order to ascertain what was the edition of 1839, they compared a copy of defendants' edition of the edition of 1839 that was in the library at Cambridge. The comparison was imperfect, and the plaintiffs published in their edition 183 variations of the early edition. These variations were in defendants edition of 1869. The plaintiffs seem to have been mistaken in the assertion of their circular of April 13, 1882, that "we obtained a copy of the 1835 edition of 'Outre-mer' and a copy of the 1839 edition of 'Hyperion,' and ours are exact reprints of these two editions.

In Like v. McKinstry, 4 Keyes, 409, the court declared: "It is, however, not enough that the words spoken were injurious and were untrue. It must also be shown that they were malicious. It is entirely clear that if a person have, or believe that he has, a claim to property offered for sale to third persons, and in order to prevent their purchasing he in good faith discloses his claim according to its true import, no action will lie against him. . . It must, therefore, appear that he acted with malice in ascertaining that he had a title."

In the same case in the Superior Court, 41 B., 190, Judge Miller had held that the plaintiff must show that the words were false and that they were uttered maliciously.

In Kendall v. Stone, 2 Sandf., 284, the Court said, "The plaintiff assumes the burthen of proving not only special loss, but actual malice.

In Gerard v. Dickenson, 3 Co. R., 309, it was resolved that a defendant was not liable for saying that she had an interest in a manor, in fact the property of the plaintiff-" For if an action should lie when the defendant herself claims an interest, how can any make any claim or any title to any land or begin any suit or seek advice or counsel, but he should be subject to an action, which would be inconvenient?"

But it was also resolved that an action did lie, if the plaintiff alleged and proved that the defendant knew that the interest she claimed depended upon a deed, which she knew to be forged. In such a case malice would be proved.

And so in the present case, if the plaintiffs had given evidence to show that the claim made by defendants was groundless and proven by them to be groundless, there would be room to assert that the evidence tended to show malice. More than the mere falsity of the claim would appear. The jury might find that the defendants had intended to stop the sales of plaintiffs' books by means of falsehood.

The plaintiffs' case assumes that it is impossible that the publications of the original editions of "Hyperion" and "Outre-mer" should be an infringement of the copyright of books of the same names published after the expiration of 42 years, and that the defendants could not have believed that such publications were infringements. In fact, however, speaking now only of "Hyperion," the plaintiffs did not publish only the original edition. Their publication contained the 183 variations referred to. These had been made by Mr. Longfellow. They were part of the ground of his claim of copyright. The defendants' claim as to copyright rested upon these variations. The counsel for plaintiffs agrees that there can be no copyright in such variations, inasmuch as is asserted they do not affect the sub-stance of the original work. I retrain from passing upon this position, to avoid incidentally pass-1869, which claimed a copyright, with a copy of ing upon what is copyright and what is a infringement of it, when the Court has no power to pass upon such matters directly.

I prefer to say that the issue at this point turns | members of the American Copyright League: upon a matter of law and that a mistake as to the law, when made by one in a claim of right in himself and appearing to be only a mistake, is not malicious and could not be found by a jury to be malicious.

In Mildmay's case, 1 Co., 421, it was held that in slander of title for declaring that a third person had a lease of 1000 years of the plaintiff's land, when the lease was void at law, it is no defence that such a lease was actually made. The note to the case observes that the words were spoken by a person not interested in the property and the case itself gives as the reason of the decision, that the defendant had taken upon himself the knowledge of the law meddling with a matter that did not concern him.

There was no testimony tending to show that any part of the defendants' claim in respect of "Hyperion" was not made honestly or that the defendants knew or believed that the claim was without validity.

As to "Outre-mer" the defendants proved that the edition published by plaintiffs contained twenty-four variations from the original editions and which were in defendants' edition. The witness who spoke to this was allowed to put in evidence a written list of these variations, without producing the books that had been compared. The counsel for plaintiff objected to the list as secondary evidence, maintaining that the books should first be placed in evidence.

The objection does not appear to be valid. The plaintiffs had previously undertaken to prove, by a witness called by them, that their edition was a reprint of the original edition, without producing that edition. This justified evidence from This justified evidence from the defendants on the subject, without their production of the books. The alleged libel as to "Outre-mer" was in part an advertisement by defendants that their edition was the only Revised Copyright edition. What has been said of defendants' claim as to "Hyperion" applies to their claim of copyright in "Outre-mer. The plaintiffs gave no testimony tending to show that the defendants were malicious in making their claim.

The defendants also advertised of editions of " Hyperion " and "Outre-mer," which they were about to publish, as follows:

"They contain all the changes and revisions made by Mr. Longfellow in later years and are the only authorized cheap editions in the market.

The plaintiffs claim that the latter statement was false as to the re-publication by plaintiffs of the original edition. Still bearing in mind that the plaintiffs published in their editions changes and revisions that had appeared in the editions of defendants published by Mr. Longfellow's authority, there was no proof that the claim of defendants as to sole authority was malicious.

In my opinion the admission of the certificate by the Librarian of Congress was erroneous. That does not call for a reversal, as the admission does not affect the question here discussed, of whether the plaintiffs had given any testimony tending to show malice. Because they did not, the judgment appealed from should be affirmed, With costs.

AMERICAN COPYRIGHT LEAGUE

THE following circular has been sent to the

New York, December 27, 1886.

To the Members of the American Copyright League,

At the recent meeting of the "American Copyright League, held in New York, on the 2d day of December, 1886, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the League be instructed to request the Committee on Patents to report to the open Senate the League Bill as originally presented by Senator Hawley, as well as the Chace Bill, together with the committee's urgent recommendation that an early date be fixed for their joint consideration.'

In order that the friends of the movement may understand the exact scope and intention of this resolution, a brief review of what the League has been doing during the past year is necessary.

At the last session of Congress, in obedience to the commands of the organization, the Executive Committee introduced into Congress, through the assistance of Senator Hawley, a bill, since known as the Hawley Bill, a copy of which is printed in connection with this statement. The bill had been drafted by the Counsel and Executive Committee after careful examination of the Statutes of the United States bearing on copyright and a thorough investigation of the history of the negotiations between England and the United States at the time of the proposed treaty on the subject; and the bill as finally drafted was supposed to, and no doubt did, represent the views of all American authors interested in the subject, as well as those of all disinterested persons who had given it attention.

The principal aim of the bill was to establish complete reciprocity between England and the United States. England, it is well known, now stands ready to give copyright to any foreign country which will accord the same right in return, and the effect of the passage of the Hawley Bill would have been that English authors would have had the same literary property rights in this country that American authors possess, while in England American authors would have received like privileges.

As was stated in the argument in behalf of the bill submitted to members of Congress by the League, "Many of the measures of international copyright heretofore proposed have suffered under the disadvantage of being incumbered with The proposed measure is perfectly simdetails. ple, and, after having been very carefully considered, is believed to be entirely effective for its purpose. The principle on which it proceeds is to put a foreign citizen on an equality, as regards copyright, with the American citizen, when the American citizen has equal copyright with that foreign citizen under the laws of the latter's country. This scheme is very much better for many reasons than the alternative of giving the foreign citizen exactly the rights which his country allows our citizens. In consequence of the fact that foreign copyrights are generally more liberal than our own, we shall get under the proposed scheme more than we give. As regards Great Britain, whose copyright is most important to our authors, the exchange will be about equal."

The design of the bill also was to eliminate wholly from the discussion any question of protection or free trade. It was felt that the inherent difficulty of establishing a reciprocal system applicable to a protectionist country like the United States and a free trade country like England made this necessary. It is impossible that a copyright system based on protection to the American manufacturer or printer should be regarded in England as a measure of reciprocity. Moreover, the demands of protection have always been supposed to be fully met by the existing requirements of law, imposing a heavy duty upon all imported books. To quote again from the argument of the League:

"The question of international copyright should not be confused with that of protection to the industry of the book manufacturer. The advocates of copyright, as such, have no wish to interfere with the protection of the manufacturer but they do not believe that his protection should be effected by forfeiting the rights of the author. The book manufacturer is now protected by the provision in the tariff which imposes a duty of twenty-five per centum ad valorem on imported books. Inasmuch as the price of the imported book embraces a sum which represents the value of the copyright, that sum also operates as a protective duty, and increases the chances of the reprinting in this country of the foreign book. thus appears that by the absence of copyright to the foreigner, the business of the manufacturer is enlarged, although the rates of his labor are not enhanced. In other words, the right to the product of his labor is entirely denied to the author, and thereby the business of the manufacturer is made brisker. Protection in that form is robbery. There is no reason why, in the interests of protection, the right of property should be denied in one industry rather than in another. If the manufacturer of books is to be protected, let him be protected by a proper tariff. If the present duty of twenty-five per centum does not protect him, the logical remedy is to protect him by a higher The distinction between the two methods is that between robbery and taxation.

On the introduction of the bill in the Senate, it was referred to the Committee on Patents. That committee, it was hoped, would look favorably upon a measure to establish a general copyright law between England and America, inasmuch as the patent system of the two countries is one of entire equality and reciprocity, and patents and copyrights are supposed to rest upon the same foundation in law and in public policy.

The Committee on Patents of the Senate granted a hearing to those interested in the matter, which attracted very wide attention in the press and throughout the country, and many important statements were made before the committee by gentlemen interested in the publishing business, by authors, and others.

It became apparent, however, on the hearing, that although the question of free trade and protection had been carefully eliminated from the bill, and although all the advocates of the bill carnestly deprecated the introduction of this question into the discussion, the committee were disposed to consider the whole matter of copyright as being primarily not a question of recognizing a right of property and abolishing an iniquitous system of piracy, but as one in which the only interests involved were those of persons engaged in the manufacture and mechanical production of literary works.

Almost at the same time that the Hawley Bill was introduced, one of the members of the committee before which the hearing took place drafted a bill of his own for the purpose of dealing with the whole subject, and had it referred to the committee for the purpose of combining an enactment in favor of copyright with an enactment to make compulsory the manufacture of all foreign copyrighted books in this country. A copy of this bill is also given below.

This bill has many peculiarities, the principal one being that it establishes copyright for foreigners here on the condition that, during the existence of a foreign copyright, the importation of the copyrighted article shall be totally prohibited. All officers of customs and postmasters are required to seize and detain the foreign copyrighted article, and the author himself is not permitted to introduce his own book into the country. On the other hand, there is not the slightest provision in the bill for reciprocal rights being granted to American authors abroad; and it is manifestly impossible that such a bill should contain any provision for reciprocity, inasmuch as it is out of the question to suppose that England, a freetrade country, would ever adopt a similar statute or grant similar rights. In fact a copyright bill based on mutual prohibition is a fanciful absurd-The clause prohibiting the author from importing his own book is curiously enough taken from the existing statutes for the protection of literary property, and diverted to new purposes in the ingenious measure of Mr. Chace for the purpose of aiding the manufacturer of books at the expense of the author. All countries have, as the United States has, a statute preventing the importation of foreign pirated editions of copyright books. This is a restriction for the benefit of the author which he can, of course, waive. In Mr. Chace's bill it is the author who is prevented from allowing the importation of his own book. in order that he may be compelled to make a contract with an American manufacturer.

This bill, although it was asked for by nobody at the hearing, has been reported by the Senate Committee.

These considerations led the League at its recent meeting to consider that the best means of bringing the whole matter to the attention of the public, of dispelling the misconceptions which must be assigned as the effective cause of the drafting of such an extraordinary measure, would be an open discussion of these two rival measures the original Hawley Bill of the League and the Chace substitute for it in Congress. The only way in which this can be accomplished is by the Senate Committee on Patents reporting the Hawley Bill in addition to the Chace Bill for debate without recommendations. This is certainly very little to ask, and, on behalf of the great body of American authors, and of common justice and right, we urge this.

FUNERAL OF J. W. HARPER.

JOSEPH W. HARPER, formerly United States Consul at Munich, who died in that city December 8th, was buried on the 4th inst. from the residence of his son, Joseph Henry Harper, of Harper & Bros., at No. 269 Madison Ave., N. Y. The services were attended by many members of the family, as well as a large number of Mr. Harper's friends. The Rev. Dr. G. R. Crooks, of Drew Theological Seminary, who was Mr. Harper's former pastor and officiated at his marriage, conducted the services. The Mendelssohn Glee Club sang "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and a member of the club sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The body was taken to Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, at Tarrytown, for burial.

Of the many tributes to the memory of the deceased the one by Mr. Randolph, or, as Mr. Harper affectionately called him, "Father Randolph," may not be out of place here. The veteran publisher, recalling the pleasant association with Mr. Harper, says:

"It was never my good fortune to meet him in his official position, but I did know him as a member of the 'trade.' In this connection I frequently met him. His warm and generous nature made him a favorite with all. I doubt if he had an enemy. I remember the hearty welcome he gave me at Irvington, whither I had gone on a day in June to pay my respects to Mr. Fletcher Harper, and vividly recall now the pose of the latter as he sat at his ease upon his broad piazza, looking across the spacious and beautiful lawn upon an exquisite bit of landscape, and with that peculiar quiet smile which always lighted his face when he was 'well pleased.' It was the last time I saw the father and son together. The picture of each still lives in my memory, though the originals have now passed on.

HOW FRENCH NOVELISTS ARE PAID.

From the Christian Union.

FRENCH novel-writers are paid on the piece plan. They were formerly given a lump sum for their works, the publishers assuming all risks and likewise all profits. This system has now been discontinued, and the author is paid from seven cents to twelve on each volume sold. Only in case the author is renowned does he receive twelve cents. Ordinarily, the novels are issued in paper-covered editions, which nominally sell at three francs and a half (seventy cents); but there, as here, almost everybody gets his books at a twenty per cent. discount. The system of issuing paper-covered editions is pursued not only in reference to novels, but in reference to all kinds of books. Scientific books are much dearer; but the purchaser buys the book unbound, and either uses it in this form or has it bound in whatever style suits his purse and taste. Though books are not in general cheaper in France than in America, bookbinding is singularly cheap. one has but a single book bound he pays but little more than American wholesale rates. this way the book-buyer is able to have a uniform binding for whatever book he wishes.

That which makes the prices of French books and the payment of French authors of peculiar interest at the present time is the discussion which is going on in French literary circles in reference to the wrongs of authors. English authors have from time immemorial accused their publishers of niggardliness; but the French authors accuse the French publishers of absolute dishonesty. Being paid by the piece, it is of the utmost importance to know just how many volumes are sold. No method has been devised by which this can be ascertained. As a consequence, every writer suspects his publisher; and (according to the publisher) the writer whose books sell least suspects most.

'n America books are issued by the thousand, so that it is comparatively easy to keep the account. In France both authors and publishers like to resort to the trick of getting out as many editions as possible. It gives the appearance of a big sale, and nothing succeeds like the appearance of success. As the authors do not like to give up this system, they have been ransacking their brains to devise some other method of watching their publishers. Some suggest that the Government impose a small tax, so that a Government official shall keep the count of the copies printed. But most of the authors do not like this kind of a protective tax. Others propose that a bureau be constituted by the society of men of letters to act in the name of the authors; but the publishers object to this kind of surveillance of their business, which this would necessitate. A third proposal is that none but authorized copies, containing the author's autograph, shall henceforth be published. But even this plan fails to give general satisfaction.

One of the great publishers of Paris, in a recent interview with a representative of the Pall Mall Gazette, made a statement of the total sales of the most popular French novels. Two of Zola's led the list: "Nana," 149,000; "L'Assommoir," 111,000. Alphonse Daudet ranks next to Zola in Two of his books have reached a popularity. sale of over 80,000 copies. As both of these novelists receive the maximum rate, twelve cents on each copy, it is easy to calculate their income from their books. Zola's two most popular novels have each netted him upwards of $13,000. Alphonse Daudet has received from his "Sapho" But these sums are the result of a lifetime of toil by men who not only had genius, but a very popular type of genius. Hector Malot's most popular book, "Micheline," has brought him only about two thousand dollars. What, then, is the remuneration of the thousand and one lesser lights whose books are bought only by a few hundred readers? The publisher who would rob one of these would certainly steal the crape off of door-knobs.

The French writers of histories and standard works on science have a plan of their own to secure compensation. They know that it is impossible for them to secure a large sale no matter how cheap they make their books, and they know that a certain number of libraries in France will buy their books no matter how dear they make them. The authors, therefore, pursue the plan of publishing their productions in as many volumes as possible, at as high a price as possible for each volume. But the amount which they realize even by this method is usually small. In France as in America "a literary man should have another profession," and generally, as Dr. Holmes suggests, "he should stick to it."

FRANKING PRIVILEGE FOR PUBLICATIONS OF HISTORICAL SOCIETIES.

SENATOR MORRILI, believes that historical societies do a great deal of good in the dissemination of reports of their researches, and he thinks the Government should lend a hand in helping the spread of knowledge gathered by such organizations. In the line of these views, Mr. Morrill proposes that the franking privilege shall be extended to cover the publications of all historical societies within the United States. A bill to this effect was introduced in the Senate by Mr Morrill, Jan. 5, and sent to the Post Office Committee, from which Mr. Morrill will try to secure an early favorable report.

HOW "LA DAME AUX CAMELIAS" WAS WRITTEN.

Th. Child's French Letter to the American,

The publisher Quantin has published a magnificent edition of "La Dame aux Camélias," illustrated with ten etchings and thirty heliogravures from drawings by Lynch, and accompanied by a new and interesting preface by M. Alexander Dumas. The real story of Marie Duplessis, La Dame aux Camélias or La Traviata—many names for the same figure—has been related in all its details by M. Dumas himself, by Jules Janin, and recently in the monthly review Le Livre by M. de Contades. What remains to be said then about this worldfamous work? Simply how it was written in three weeks on the corner of a table at St. Germain-en-Laye, in a room for which Dumas paid one franc a day at the inn called "Le Cheval Blanc," which has since then disappeared.

Dumas had gone with a friend to dine with his father at Monte Cristo; after dinner they missed the train, and so each took a room in this inn, which was frequented by the carters and the drivers of the diligences which used then to ply between the neighboring villages. This was some thirty-eight years ago. The next morning Dumas and his friend decided to take advantage of the fine weather and stay a few days at St. Germain. The friend went to Paris to bring all the clothes and linen necessary. "Hardly had he started," continues M. Dumas, "hardly had I found myself alone on the terrace of St. Germain, where I had so often walked with Marie Duplessis, than I be-gan to think about her, and the idea of writing her history or rather a story about her came into my head, and so imperiously that I bought three or four quires of paper and returned to my chamber at the inn and began my book. When my friend returned for dinner he found me hard at work and working with such enthusiasm that I refused to leave St. Germain until I had written the last word. This was a matter of three or four weeks. My friend at last became so interested in my work that he copied it as I wrote it on condition that I should give him the original manuscript. I did give it to him, and he took it with him on a voyage to India long before the Suez Canal was opened. In the vicinity of the Cape of Good Hope the ship encountered such a terrible tempest that everything possible was thrown overboard to lighten her. The manuscript of the ' Dame aux Camélias' was in one of the trunks that were sacrificed.

When I had finished the novel 1 took it to Cadot the publisher, who received me as he usually received the writers who worked for him, and who ruined him as he said when they sold him a volume for four or five hundred francs. After many difficulties he concluded to give me 1000 francs for my book, for an edition in two volumes 8vo of twelve hundred copies, which he sold. Afterwards he gave me two hundred francs more for the right to publish a second edition of fifteen hundred copies, which he sold likewise; but when I asked him to publish a third edition he sent me about my business. I followed his advice, and as I passed along the Rue Vivienne I called on Michel Lévy, who gave hospitality to my heroine," and it may be added still gives her hospitality and profits thereby, for "La Dame aux Camelias," both the novel and the play, have a constant sale.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE author of the novel, "A Demigod," lately published by Harper & Bros., is reported to be Mr. E. P. Jackson, a teacher in the Boston Latin School.

A FRIEND calls our attention to the fact that the home of Gen. Lew Wallace is at Crawfordsville, Ind., not La Fayette, as we had it in a previous issue.

Mr. Ernest Coleridge is said to have made such progress with his biography of Samuel Taylor Coleridge that its publication may be expected early this year.

CAFT. J. THOMAS SCHARF, of Baltimore, is writing a history of the Confederate Navy, to be illustrated with portraits of naval officers and views of bombardments, conflicts, and vessels. The work will extend over the entire period "from the laying of the keel of the first ship to the sinking of the last vessel,"

MR. JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY's forthcoming book, "The Country with a Roof," is supposed to be a study of the conditions of human existence, "his idea being that it is the rich who in this life obtain all the brightness, the sweetness, the freshness, and the sunshine of existence, while the poorer classes are oppressed with the gloom, the shadows, and the desolateness of poverty and degradation."

Dr. J. Berrien Lindsley, of Tennessee, says the N.Y. Times "has completed the first of several volumes which he is editing on the military annals of his State. He has visited every neighborhood involved in the work and brought together a history of every company, regiment, brigade, and division that Tennessee contributed to the Confederate service. The present volume comprises nearly 1000 pages, and is all the work of Tennessee men. Many steel portraits are given. Next year Dr. Lindsley will bring out a companion volume, to be called 'The Index of Officers and the Index of Men,' giving in alphabetical order the names of 8000 officers and 60,000 soldiers. In the following year a third volume will be issued."

PHILIP D. HAVWOOD has been dropped from the Century's list of contributors. He has been identified, says the N. Y. Times, "with one James Young, one James H. Harlin, and one F. A. Vaughan, and is said to have been known very unfavorably in Lancaster County, Penn. He wrote the Century's recent article entitled 'Life on the Alabama,' and on hearing the unfavorable accounts of him the Century caused an investigation to be made with the result of getting an admission from Haywood's own lips that he was not on the Alabama at all, but had obtained the facts on which his paper was based from a sailor whom he met in Havana. When the war papers are issued in book-form 'Life on the Alabama' will be dropped from the series."

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—J. F. Lester and H. G. Kuhrt, Jr., under the firm-name of Lester & Kuhrt, have succeeded the old firm of Michael Lynch & Son, formerly Lynch & Thornton. They will continue at 7 Whitchall Street, to which place Mr. Lester will remove his present stock. "A firm never began work under brighter auspices," says the Atlanta Constitution.

"than does this one. Mr. Kuhrt has long been in the tobacco business with his father, and combines rare business talent with a happy disposition of making friends and holding them. Almost everybody knows genial Frank Lester, than whom there is not a young man in the city with more friends. He has long been in the book and stationery business, and on every detail connected with the trade he is probably as well posted as any man in the South. The copartnership of these two sterling young men guarantees the un-bounded success of the firm." The new firm desires to receive new catalogues of publishers and manufacturers of stationery, etc.

LOGANSPORT, IND.-Augustus D. Queally, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

MANSFIELD, O .- Hugh E. King, bookseller, has sold out.

MAYVILLE, N. Y .- W. S. Gleason, bookseller and stationer, has sold out to Herman Sixbey, who will continue at the old stand.

New York.-Funk & Wagnalls are about removing their store from Dey Street to new and more commodious quarters in Astor Place, corner of Lafayette Place. The firm will hereafter devote more attention to their two periodicals, the Voice and the Homiletic Review, which have proved the most successful of their publications during the past year.

TROY, N. Y .- Nims & Knight have just made a lease for one-half of Cannon Place, for seven years from next May. When this lease expires, Cannon Place Book-Store will have been in its present location fifty-two years. They will hereafter, for the conduct of their wholesale and pubishing business, use half of the second and fourth floors of Cannon Place.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. CHARLES SCRIBNER has sailed for the Bermudas on a trip for pleasure and recreation.

A " HISTORY OF THE NEW YORK ACADEMY OF Sciences" is in preparation. It is to be handsomely illustrated.

BOSTON ATHENÆUM LIST OF ADDITIONS, No. 200, which will contain an index to the year 1886 and a title-page for Vol. 1 (Nos. 1-200), will not be issued for some months.

GINN & Co. have been encouraged by the large call for Minto's "Manual of English Prose Literature "to print it themselves instead of importing sheets. This will enable them to reduce the price from $2 to $1.50.

"PROGRESSIVE ORTHODOXY," a little book published by the Andover Professors who have ust been on trial in Boston, and which indeed served as the principal reservoir of charges against them, is brought very prominently to notice by the somewhat dramatic attitude of the Professors and their accusers, and is likely to gain a far wider reading than it has yet had.

PROF. B. SCHAFF, of Wartburg Lutheran Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, an alleged mythical institution, who has ordered books on credit from Scribners, Hurst & Co., Westermann & Co., and ohn B. Alden, New York; Belford, Clarke & Co., Chicago; Estes & Lauriat, Boston, and others in Jots worth $50 and $125, was arrested in Cincinnati, on December 30, and has confessed his guilt. Books worth about $500 were found in his room. It is suspected that he is the man that swindled the Putnams, and who in St. Louis, under the name of Rev. H. Muller, of St. John's College, got away with a lot of books.

CHATTO & WINDUS, London, have about ready small volume entitled "Ireland Since the Union: sketches of Irish history from 1800 to 1886," on which Justin H. McCarthy has been for some time engaged.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press a biography of Sir Joseph Napier, Bart., formerly Lord Chancellor of Ireland, by Mr. A. C. Ewald. The work contains correspondence from the late Lords Derby and Beaconsfield, Mr. Gladstone, the Duke of Newcastle, Lord Eglinton, Lord Chancellor Chelmsford, Lord Ashbourne, and other distinguished statesmen, and throws much new light upon the political history of the times. Sir Joseph Napier was Attorney-General for Ireland in Lord Derby's Government of 1852, and introduced on that occasion his Irish Land Bills, often alluded to by recent legislators on the same subject.

OTTO VON RANKE sent a letter to the St. James' Gazette, dated No. 4 Finchley Road, London, Nov. 4, 1886, in which he says that the seventh volume of his father's "history" will not be the last publication from the literary remains of his father, Leopold von Ranke. Besides a considerable number of smaller essays that the historian intended for publication, there are lectures delivered before King Maximilian of Bavaria, which were taken down in shorthand; also an autobiography which, though unfinished, will certainly be published. It is at present difficult to say whether the "History of the World" will terminate with the seventh volume, or whether one of his competent pupils will succeed in continuing the history, at least down to the Reformation.

MACMILLAN & Bowes, Cambridge, England, announce that they purpose to complete, as soon as possible, the series of facsimile reproductions of the first eight books printed at Cambridge, by J. Siberch, in 1521, of which collection three have already been issued. The books have been an-notated by the late H. Bradshaw, librarian of The books have been an-Cambridge University, and are said to afford an admirable example of Mr. Bradshaw's method of working out difficult bibliographical problems. The titles of the promised volumes are: "Lucian, Lepidissimum Luciani Opusc, etc. Henrico Bul-low interprete. Cant. 1521;" "Baldwin, Archbishop, De venerabili ac divinissimo Altaris Sacramento Sermo. Cant. 1521;" "Erasmus, Libellus de conscribendis epistolis. Cant. 1521;" and "Fisher, Bishop John, Contio in Joh. xv. 26. Cant. 1521." The edition in each case will be limited to 150 copies.

AFTER HOLIDAY TRADE.—Following the now almost universally observed "Week of Prayer" the interest in devotional and other religious works invariably increases. In this connection we invite attention to our Catalogue and New Lists of recent helpful issues, which will be sent upon request. A few late publications and new editions named below are worthy of special note.

NEW BOOKS.

Prophetic Studies

Of the International Prophetic Conference upon the Near Coming of the Lord, its literal and personal character and kindred topics and events, together with their practical application as an incentive to evangelistic and mission effort. 240 pages, 8v0, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 50 cents. Illustrated with portraits of many of the contributors.

Current Discussions in Theol-

Vol. IV. By the Professors of the Chicago Theological Seminary. 331 pages, $1.50.

"To the minister who wishes to keep abreast of the times this is the most convenient aid in our language of which we have any knowledge."—Lutheran Church

"For men under the pressure of heavy pastorates the book is a boon and a blessing. Candor, intelligence, and industry survey the whole field for the benefit of those who cannot do it for themselves."—New York Christian Advocate.

Abraham: The Typical Life of Faith.

By Rev. David R. Breed, D.D. A timely work in view of the Sunday-school lessons of 1887, following for some time the life of the "father of the faithful." "Example is better than precept; and the author of this book has derived from the example of the great patriarch the most distinct and emphatic teaching with regard to the life of the believer. There is no straining of the meaning of Scripture, nor any fanciful construction of its words. The way of life is shown to have been the same in all ages, and the unity of the indivisible Church of God is beautifully exhibited." 12mo, 214 pages, bevelled cloth, $1.00.

D. L. Moody at Home.

HIS HOME AND HOME WORK.

"A striking and valuable work. It contains a sketch of Mr. Moody's educational enterprises, and his wonderful success in building up the schools at Northfield and Mt. Hermon. There is nothing in the career of this remarkable man more striking than the history of these two establishments. The major part of the volume is devoted to Mr. Moody's summer schools, and contains outlines of his methods and reports of papers read and addresses made."—The Independent.

Eight illustrations, 228 pages, 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper,

Many Infallible Proofs.

By Rev. Arthur T. Pirison, D.D. A series of exceedingly practical chapters on the Evidences of Christianity or the Written and Living Word of God. In "A Word Preliminary" the author says: "The writer of these pages once found himself getting into the deep darkness of doubt. Beginning at the foundation, he searched for himself until he found the proofs ample that the Bible is the word of God. It was like finding one's way out of a dense wood into the full light of day. Others are still in the dark, and these chapters are the blazed trees that mark the path by which one are the blazed trees that mark the path by which one man got out of the forest. Perhaps some one else may try the same route, with a like result." 317 pages, 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"What is Maranatha?"

In this popular little work, first issued in Australia, and now just published in this country, the subject is taken up in the form of a series of conversations between a father and his son and daughter. This method of presentation is particularly interesting. 146 pages, paper cover, so cents; full cloth, so cents.

NEW EDITIONS.

"C. H. M.'s" Notes on Genesis. "C. H. M.'s" Notes on Exodus.

A cheap edition. Price only 35 cents each per copy net. Edition in cloth, 75 cents per copy. The set of six volumes, covering the entire Pentateuch, may be had in cloth binding. Price $4.50 per set.

During the entire first six months of 1887 the International S. S. Lessons are to be devoted to a study of the book of Genesis and Exodus.

Anticipating the demand for these popular works, and in order to bring them within the reach of the mass of Sunday-school Teachers, we have issued a cheap edition in paper covers.

Wonders of Prayer.

(Fifth Edition.) Enlarged and revised by Major D. W. WHITTLE. 370 pp., bound in fine cloth, $1.00.

A book of well-authenticated and wonderful answers to prayer, as narrated by George Muller, D. L. Moody, C. H. Spurgeon, Newman Hall, D.D., Bishop T. Bow-man, Charles G. Finney, W. W. Patton, D.D., S. I. Prine, D.D., F. Krummacher, Martin Luther, John Prime, D.D., F. Krumma Knox, and a host of others.

The Open Secret.

Fifty Years and Beyond; or, Old Age and How to Enjoy It.

(The twenty-fifth thousand). A most appropriate gift-book for "The Old Folks at Home." Compiled by Rev. S. G. Lathrop. 400 pp., cloth, black and gold stamp, $1.00; presentation edition, full gilt, $1.50.

Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

(Forty-second thousand). By H. W. S. New presentation edition, printed on laid paper, bound in English cloth, stamped in gold and colors with full gilt edges. $1.00; regular edition, fine cloth, gold and ink dies, 75 cents; cheap edition, paper cover, 50 cents.

The work has been so helpful to thousands who have read its pages, that it is no doubt destined to become a devotional classic.

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

(The twenty-eighth thousand). Compiled by S. R. BRIGGS and J. H. ELLIOTT. "A valuable help." 26 pp., large 12mo, with complete index. Bound in fine cloth, $1.00; cloth, flexible, 75 cents; paper cover, 30 cents.

A most suggestive help for the pulpit, the prayer-room, the gospel meeting, or other religious services.

Works by D. L. Moody.

Lord Tennyson's New Book.

By Alfred Lord Tennyson, P. L., D.C.L. Fcap. 8vo, $1.50.

"There is not a page in which this volume has not upon it the stamp of the great poet, the man of the world, the representative of whatsoever is aristocratic in England. It is for this reason that Americans should study this volume. They may not accept its politics; they cannot but honor its sentiment, its high-mindedness, its poetic fervor, its beauties, and its touch with the realities of modern England. . . . It is the work of a great poet and a representative utterance of permanent importance."—Boston Beacon.

THE CHIEF PERIODS OF EUROPEAN HISTORY.

Six Lectures, with an Essay on Greek Cities under Roman Rule. By Edward A. Freeman, M.A., Hon. D.C.L., LL.D. 8vo, $2.50.

MACMILLAN & CO., 112 FOURTH AVENUE, NEW YORK.

The last sets of the great AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876 were sold in 1886 at $60, over double the original price. We have recently bought back two sets; one, quite fresh, for sale at $60; the other, showing little sign of wear, at $50.

The American Catalogue, 1876-1884, of which the edition is also limited, is going out of print. It is now priced at $12.50 paper parts, $15 half morocco; later this price will be raised. It is worth twice its cost each year in any library or book-store.

THE COMPLETE WORKS

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

Including his Private as well as his Official and Scientific Correspondence, and Numerous Letters and Documents now for the first time printed.

ALSO

THE UNMUTILATED AND CORRECT VERSION OF HIS AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

TO BE EDITED BY

JOHN BIGELOW.

This edition (which will be the most complete ever issued) will be LIMITED TO SIX HUNDRED SETS.

and be published in ten royal octavo volumes, handsomely printed from pica type, in the general style of Lodge's edition of Hamilton's Works, with several engravings on steel.

Price per volume, $5.00.

The first volume is expected to be ready in January, and the others will follow at short intervals. As the edition is limited and will not be stereotyped, those desiring sets should enter their names at once. (The subscription for the set of Hamilton exceeded, by a considerable number, the copies printed, and many of the later orders the publishers were unable to fill.)

The set will contain a number of previously unpublished papers of Franklin, and also the correct unmutilated version of Franklin's Autobiography, to be printed from the Autograph Manuscript, now in the possession of the editor.

This edition now in preparation will, it is believed, be not only the most complete, but as far as the material is concerned, the final edition of the writings of "the most eminent journalist, philosopher, diplomatist, and statesman of his time;" of one whose writings, whose picturesque career, and whose incalculable services to his country are supposed to have done more to shape the opinions of mankind than those of any other American.

PUBLISH TO-DAY:

The Self-Revelation of God.

By Samuel Harris, D.D., Ll.D., Professor of Systematic Theology in Yale College. 1 vol., 8vo, uniform with "The Philosophical Basis of Theism." $3.50.

This work is a restatement of the evidence of the existence of God and of the reality of His revelation of Himself, as modified by and in harmony with the legitimate results of recent thought, and meeting scepticism in its present positions.

The subject is divided into four parts, the first of which treats of the Revelation of God, in the experience or consciousness of man. The three remaining parts are concerned with the verification of this fundamental fact by the other revelations which God makes of Himself, viz.: Part II. His Revelation of Himself as the Absolute Being. Part III. His Revelation of Himself as the Personal God in the Constitution and Course of Nature, and in the Constitution and History of Man. Part IV. His Revelation of Himself reconciling the World to Himself in Christ.

Some Problems of Philosophy.

By Archibald Alexander, Professor of Philosophy in Columbia College. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.00.

Prof. Alexander states briefly but comprehensively and clearly those problems of philosophy which may be regarded as still unsolved, and to understand the nature of which is to understand the present condition and work of philosophy itself. The range of the book may be surmised from such titles as "The Problem of the Ultimal Nature of Matter," "The Relation of Belief to Knowledge," "The Problem of the Human Will," "The Immortality of the Soul," "The Doctrine of Cause and Effect," etc.

Old Faiths in New Light.

By NEWMAN SMYTH. New and Revised Edition. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

The current discussions in Theology give the appearance of this volume in a new edition a special and timely interest. Dr. Smyth's book is a very comprehensive and singularly clear survey of the whole field of modern thought in relation to the fundamental questions of theology, and a very lucid presentation of the changes which have been effected and the positions which are now held by those who believe in the "new theology."

The Mexican Guide.

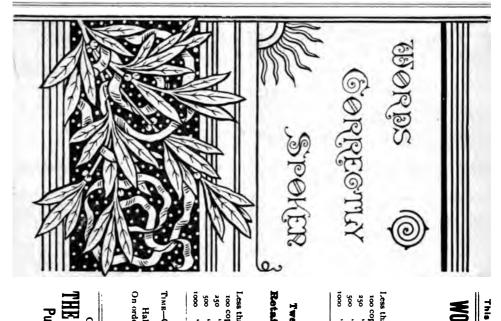

New Edition for 1887. By Thomas A. Janvier. 1 vol., 16mo, with large folded maps, leather, net, $2.50.

In conformity with the original plan of the work, that it should be annually revised and amended, the New Edition for 1887 contains, in addition to other important changes, an entirely new part treating of Provincial Mexico. The Guide has received the official indorsement of the Mexican Government, the warm commendation of the newspaper press, and the substantial approval of the travelling public.

"There is little but hearty praise to be given to Mr. Janvier's work. He has succeeded in producing a happy combination of Baedeker and Murray, uniting the practical helpfulness of the former with the latter's tendency to supply artistic and historical details."—The Nation.

NOTES IN SEASON.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co., Philadelphia, announce an authorized reprint of Prof. W. R. Gowers' "Text-Book of Diseases of the Nervous System," the two volumes of the English edition being put into one compact book.

LEA Bros. & Co. have just issued an important work on the "Science and Art of Obstetrics," by Dr. Theophilus Parvin, who has been actively engaged in practice for upwards of thirty-four years. His work will prove valuable alike to practitioners and students. It is handsomely illustrated with 214 wood-cuts and one colored plate.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will issue this week Canon Luckock's new book entitled "The Bishops in the Tower," a record of stirring events affecting the Church and Non-conformists from the Restoration to the Rebellion. He will also have ready the second edition of the "Symposium on Future Probation," the first having been exhausted the week after publication.

TICKNOR & Go. will issue on the 25th inst.
"Happy Dodd," by Rose Terry Cooke; Scott's
"The Lay of the Last Minstrel," edited by W. J.
Rolfe; and a new novel by the author of "Margaret Kent" under the title of "Sons and Daughters," a story of Philadelphia life, in which the lively fancy of the author touches lightly and wittly upon several of the popular interests of the day, such as Shakspeare societies, the Browning craze, mind cure, etc.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish to-day a work on "The Geographical and Geological Distribution of Animals," by Prof. A. Heilprin, which form vol. 57 of the International Scientific Series; "Creation or Evolution," a philosophical inquiry into the modern doctrine of animal evolution with special reference to the theories of Darwin and Spencer, by George Ticknor Curtis; "The Poison Problem, or the cause and cure of intemperance," by Dr. Felix L. Oswald, and a new edition of "Social Etiquette of New York," which has been entirely rewritten and augmented by several new chapters.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "The Self-Revelation of God," by Dr. Samuel Harris, which is said to be a "restatement of the evidence of the existence of God and of the reality of His revelation of Himself, as modified by and in harmony with the legitimate results of recent thought, and meeting scepticism in its present positions;" "Some Problems of Philosophy," by Prof. Archibald Alexander, which discusses such problems as the ultimal nature of matter, the relation of belief to knowledge, human will, immortality of the soul, first cause, cause and effect, etc.; and new and revised editions of Dr. Newman Smyth's "Old Faiths in New Lights," and Janvier's "Mexican Guide."

HARPER & BROS. have nearly ready Dr. Franz Reber's "History of Mediæval Art," which includes the cycle of art developed from early Christlan and Byzantine architecture, painting, and sculpture to the culmination of the Gothic period, translated by Joseph F. Clarke, and revised by the author; "Retrospections of America—1797-1811," by John Bernard, the author of "Retrospections of the Stage," edited from the manuscript by his daughter-in-law, with an introduction, notes, and index by Laurence Hutton and Brander Matthews; "Haifa, or Life in Modern Palestine," a series of letters from Syria to the Sun, by Laurence Oliphant, with an introduction by Charles A. Dana; and "A Tramp Trip—how to see Europe on fifty cents a day," by Lee Meriwether, who travelled on foot over most of Continental Europe and gives his impressions of his decidedly unconventional tour.

FUNK & WAGNALLS announce for early publication the life of Rev. Geo. C. Haddock, who was murdered in Sioux City, Iowa, by a foreman of the largest brewery in the city, in consequence of his persistent and uncompromising enmity to the saloon power of the neighborhood. He was a man of fine appearance, of warm heart and bright intellect, who used his great talents as a preacher in a determined fight to make the liquor men obey the laws of the State, and more than a score of these planned to get him out of their Ten of these guilty men are under arrest. This life has been written by his son, Frank C. Haddock, a promising young lawyer, and it is hoped the sale of the book will be of help to the murdered man's family, who need it sorely. Many of the murdered man's reasons and arguments are given by his son, and the book promises to be of great interest to all concerned in the temperance question, which is becoming one of the most important social problems of the hour.

now to solve it. N. Y., runk & wagnaiis, 1887. c. '86. 2-195 p. D. cl., $1.

This volume is the product of two years' careful study and research. The leading authorities, both Mormon and non-Mormon, have been consulted. The author divides his subject into four parts: The history of Mormonism; The political puzzle; The social puzzle; and The religious puzzle. He thinks the intricate problems of Mormonism might be solved by a national colonization scheme, inducing non-Mormons to impalt Mormon territary, establishing the solve of the s ducing non-Mormons to inhabit Mormon territory, estab-lish free schools and Christian churches, all of which would surround the rising generation with an atmos-phere of freedom that would in time break up the present system of slavery.

It has been the author's good fortune, in his search for archeological treasures in Nicaragua, to meet with localities rich in remains from the prehistoric, or, rather, presented period. These comprised a large number of Spanish period. These comprised a large number of statues, most of which have never before been figured or statues, most of which have never before been figured or described; also, a number of rare examples of pottery. The latter are now deposited in the ethnographic collection of the R. Swedish State Museum. The antiquities figured and described in this work were found for the greatest part in the Island of Zapatera, the rock carvings in the isle of Ceiba, close to Zapatera, and a few ceramic objects on the island of Ometepec. The localities being within the territory occupied by the Niquirans, the specimens may probably be considered as being of Aztec art, or of an art very closely related to this. The drawings are made after the author's original sketches or from photographs taken on the spot. The author gives a brief sketch of his stay in Nicaragua, the storehouse of Amercan archæology, and a very full description of each plate. can archæology, and a very full description of each plate.

W: S. Gottsberger, 1887. c. tr. '86. 2 v. 14+448; 5+364 p. S. pap., $1.

"'The Martyr of Golgotha,' which treats of the birth, the bringing up of Christ and his martyrdom, is remarkably well written. It may be called an amplification of the New Testament, but within certain sober limits. A careful study of the manners and customs of the Jews and Romans adds interest to the text. . . . Many of the most beautiful of the old levends are introduced, but the and Romans adds interest to the text. . . . Many of the most beautiful of the old legends are introduced, but the author is careful as to giving such side issues undue space. With commendable fidelity he follows the grand story of Christ, of Mary and Joseph, and writes of them with true Spanish fervor. It is with feelings of awe and respect that the author undertook the task, and he begs that his work be considered 'as a mere stone placed humbly by him on the immense pyramid of Christianity erected by рар., 50 с. Scene laid in an ancient English country hamlet. Cyril Maitland, the Dean, is introduced at the age of twenty, and is described as a very fascinating man. His twin sister, Lilian, is remarkably well drawn. The "silence" of the Dean concerns a crime committed at the age of twenty-one, for which he lets his most intimate friend suffer p.nal servitude for twenty years, while he rises in the church until he receives the highest honors, and be-comes the leading preacher in England. A powerful analysis of human strength and weakness.

A proverbial London fog brings about a meeting which is supplemented by theatre-goings, an interchange of visits, and an event which seems to transform the lives of Zeph Treherne and Godfrey Doylesford into a game of cross-purposes that misleads, interests, and at times repels. The characters are all typical and play their parts well, one of them, a ghost, giving a touch of the uncanny when he appears upon the scene. The peccadillos of the hero and heroine and the loss of some valuable papers form the basis of the story. By the author of "The leaden casket.

Kennard, Mrs. E: The girl in the brown habit: a sporting novel. N. Y., Harper, 1887. 57 p. Q. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 560.) pap., 20 C.

The two young men whose fortunes are the subject of this novel are officers in a "crack" cavalry regiment about to depart for India. The "leave" allowed them before their departure is spent in a well-known sporting county, where their time is occupied in about equal proportions between hunting and love-making. Thrilling incidents in the field and a dashing attempt on the part of each to win a lovely heiress afford pleasant and entertaining reading.

Newark, N. J., L. J. Hardham, printer, 243 and 245 Market St., 1886. c. 29 p. O. bds., 40 c.

The title is so comprehensive that further explanation is almost unnecessary. The author, Col. Lottner, has successfully demonstrated the effectiveness of his exercises in giving an elegant bearing, distinct pronunciation, a pleasing animation while speaking or singing, and a practical mode of preparing any piece of poetry or text of song for good delivery, in some of the best schools in this and neighboring cities.

This novel has run through eighty editions in France.
It is from the pen of the well-known author of Lemattre des forges. It is the story of the Countess Régine de Croix-Mort, a rich and beautiful French widow, and her daughter Edmée. A second marriage that the Countess contracts with an unprincipled fellow, who is attracted by her money, is the dark shadow in Edmée's life.

Temple, G: Britta: a Shetland romance. N.Y., Harper, 1887. 3-168 p. il. S. (Harper's handy ser., no. 110.) pap., 25 c.

The material is simple and usual enough, still the writer has succeeded in making a strong, pathetic story, full of local color and careful, striking pictures of the people of the lonely, remote Shetland Islands. The story is told by Thomas Jack, the parish clergyman, who comes a stranger to the parish of Eastwick in his six-and-twentieth year, some forty years ago. A secret marriage and a murder are the leading incidents—the young girl "Britta" being the heroine throughout. With 8 page il. by W. Lockhart Boyle. Lockhart Boyle.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE new weekly paper entitled The Epoch will be issued next month by Mr. De Witt Seligman.

MR. FRANK H. DOUBLEDAY, who has edited and managed The Book Buyer with so much energy and success, has been promoted to an important position in the publication department of Scribner's Magazine.

WITH this week's issue of Harper's Weekly will appear the first of a series of papers in the form of a supplement devoted to the illustration and description of the industrial resources of the new South. The series appropriately opens with the subject of "Richmond."

THE Critic has signalized its entrance upon the seventh year of its existence by removing from 18 Astor Place to 743 Broadway, the building occupied by Charles Scribner's Sons. We are pleased to hear that it is prospering and encouraged as to the future. It is still edited, by its founders, J. L. & J. B. Gilder, and published by The Critic Co., of which Mr. Charles E. Merrill has been the president since its organization.

THE first number of Murray's Magasine does not offer a single article of more than average merit. The "Byronia," which forms the pièce de resistance, is confined to a single page of verse, "Opening Lines to Lara," and three pages of a letter of Byron's giving his recollections of Madame de Staël. George von Bunsen contributes a paper on "What Germany is About," and Matthew Arnold writes a biographical sketch of General Grant. The other contributions—six in number—are agreeable reading. The magazine is attractively gotten up at a shilling the number. The agents for this country are the International News Co. .

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO.—Mr. H. D. Chapin has at last succeeded in interesting some one in the plan of providing for the Northwest a "large store or book bazar which will offer to the scholars of that section an opportunity to secure at fair prices the rare books of antiquity which seldom find their way out of London and New York." He has sold out his business to John E. Burton, "the Gogebic Iron Man," who for the present will carry it on under the name of Burton's Book Bazar, at the old stand, 91 Dearborn St. It is his intention as soon as possible to move into larger quarters. Mr. Chapin has been authorized by Mr. Burton to make an European journey to gather all that may be historic or valuable in literature.

PHILADELPHIA.—A fire broke out in the building at 17 and 19 S. Sixth Street, above Chestnut Street, on the evening of the 9th inst., which damaged the stock of E. H. Butler & Co. to the amount of about $2000.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 15, 1887.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenence and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

DO THE BEST YOU CAN!

THERE are indications from the publishing side of the trade that the new year opens with unwonted prospects. We hear of presses running night as well as day, and in New York it has been difficult to get binding facilities for some of the overflow work. If the retail trade through the country is able to make like report for January and February, the harvest of the trade will certainly be better than for some years back.

There is one possible reform which cannot be too much or too often impressed upon the retail trade. To our thinking the book-trade will never be in healthful condition again until a reform is made by the publishers themselves in the matter of long discounts. But this is not the only evil, and for some difficulties of the trade the retailers are themselves to blame. It is they who do most to prevent a better system of discounts by insisting on getting longer and longer discounts from publishers for the sake of making longer and longer discounts to retail customers. The kind of competition which ensues is disastrous in the long run, for it leads, in the case of rival dealers, sooner or later to the bankruptcy of one or both. We have been glad to find from the experience of several houses in New York City, especially during the Christmas holidays, that it is much easier to hold even the present prices than is supposed, and this in the parts of the city where there has been the most direct competition with the "leaders" of the bazars. It is worth while for retailers in general to consider whether they cannot be a little more stiff in their own prices instead of giving customers a big discount even before they ask it.

This is but one example of what retailers may do of their own motion, aside from questions as to the policy of publishers. In the present condition of the book-trade it is most important that the regular bookseller should be ready to give to his would-be customers that full information which the bazar does not pretend to furnish, and although in some cases he may lose sales to the bazars and to underselling competitors in the large centres, sending their circulars through the mails or otherwise reaching customers far and wide, much can be done if the retailer will simply hold his own. It is becoming so much the fashion to say that the retailer can do nothing in the present state of the trade, that it would be worth while on the other side to try a little more individual enterprise. If also the retail trade would be more willing to see a reform on the part of publishers, which alone can put the trade permanently in good condition, there would be a great deal more profit in this year's and next year's and future years' business. A word to the wise!

WHY FIRST EDITIONS OF DICKENS ARE SCARCE.

II. L. in the Bookmart.

WE have often been asked how it is that seeing the great circulation attained by Dickens' books, as they appeared in monthly parts, first editions have already reached so great a price. There be first editions and first editions. Those that have passed through that Slough of Despond, the average bookbinder's workshop, have had their margins mercilessly cropped, and have undergone every indignity that the bookbinder fiend could inflict upon them, do not bring very high prices—unless, indeed, the purchaser be unwary, and in, as one may say, his Elzevir stage of collecting. But when copies are in all their pristine beauty and in the original green covers, or have been bound up with the covers by a binder—then, indeed, many shekels must be disbursed ere the maiden tomes can be enticed from the shelves of the cautious bibliophile. Copies in such condition are rare because most people who possessed the original parts knew no better than to entrust them to the hands of ignorant idiots, professing to be binders, who at once proceeded to hew and hack and plough with all the callous indifference of raw surgeons on a battlefield. Further are they scarce because a very long-headed firm of London booksellers, forecasting the event, have for more than twenty years bought all over the country-one member of the firm was always "on the road "-all the original parts that they could find either at auction or in private hands. As they came to hand the books were then "salted down"-that is, they were packed away in cases in the warehouse and the said wily booksellers are now reaping the benefit of their prescient foresight by unloading a few copies at a time at ever-increasing prices. So it partly comes about that the books are scarce, dear, and rising in value. And the name of that wary firm is Walford Brothers in London and they dwell over against the church of St. Mary-le-Strand.

DICKENS collectors who are in the second stage of the mania, that is who having already obtained first editions of all his writings and duplicate and triplicate copies of many of them have plunged into the collection of Dickensiana, should get M. Louis Depret's "Chez les Anglais" published by Hachette in 1879. It contains an appreciative paper on Dickens and criticisms of "Great Expectations" and "Our Mutual Friend." In addition there are papers on Shakspere, Longfellow, Curran, Wilkie Collins, and Lord Byron.

THE VALUE OF OLD BOOKS.*

As a librarian, I have often been consulted by persons owning some old book or books as to their value. In most cases, in fact in all that I can remember, the result has been a serious disappointment to the owners, who had been led by current misconceptions on the subject to suppose they had a treasure. These misconceptions as to the money value of old books are so common that it seems worth while to attempt to remove them by giving the public some correct notions on the subject; and the Christian Union is suggested as a fit medium for the purpose by the fact that it contained, a few months since, a letter from a correspondent admirably illustrative of the misconception to which I have referred. cle spoke in glowing terms of a rare old book owned by a lady in New York State, and went so far as to intimate that good judges had placed its value as high as $3000. I was subsequently applied to by a friend of the owner of this book, who desired me to see how it could be disposed of so as to yield to the owner, who was in distressed circumstances, money for her support. An examination of catalogues at once revealed the fact that, although the book was a fine large folio, printed two hundred and fifty years ago, and in good condition, it could not be sold at all without difficulty in finding a purchaser, and was not likely to bring more than $3 instead of the $3000 which had been named. It seemed nothing less than cruel to dispel this illusion, but, after all, the cruelty was on the part of those who, claiming to know something of the subject, placed such an absurdly high estimate on the book.

Another good instance of this popular misconception occurs to me as I write. I was in the office of one of our oldest newspapers one evening, when the editors made me a sharer in their amusement over a letter they had just received. The letter related that a young girl in the family of the writer had found inside an old partition a copy of the first number (over a hundred years old) of the newspaper in question. It was enclosed with the letter, and the hope expressed that the editors would do the generous thing and make the girl a present as a partial compensation A cabinet organ was for the treasure-trove. hinted at as a modest suggestion of this partial equivalent! The joke of it all was that the paper sent was a copy of the facsimile printed on the one hundredth anniversary of the newspaper, and But had scattered broadcast through the State. it been a copy of the somewhat rare original issue, one dollar would probably have been a high market-price for it.

To strike at the root of this popular error, one may say distinctly that age is no criterion of value in books. The mere date of printing is no evidence of such rarity as gives fancy prices. To be sure, any book bearing a date earlier than 1470, if in fair condition, is worth something merely for its approach to the date of the invention of printing. But it may safely be said that no book printed after Columbus sighted this Western world is of special value merely from its age. Every frequenter of book auctions has seen dozens of books printed between 1489 and 1550, and in very fair binding and condition, sell for price ranging from one dollar to ten, and knows that it must be a book of remarkable interest

On the other hand, books are sold every month for prices running up into the hundreds and occasionally into the thousands. this? It is simply from the fact that there are very many books, printed at dates ranging all the way from 1455 to 1886, which are rare and desired by certain classes of buyers. These are the elect among books, resulting from the careful sifting of the centuries. Before the war, there was an occasional find of one of these books among the heir-looms in the garrets of our New England houses. But our good friends are about as likely to plough up diamonds in their gardens as to unearth any of these treasures since the fabulous prices paid for paper stock during and soon after the war have made so much old literature the prey of the paper-mill, and the collectors have been so assiduously going to and fro through the land seeking what they might devour.

Nor would it avail anything to attempt to give any rules for knowing the comparative value of old books. The value of a "nugget," as Henry Stevens called his treasures, may depend on any one of so many points in authorship, imprint, edition, and condition, that it is only by years of training that one can become qualified to judge, and even those best qualified place much dependence, to the last, on catalogues and on information derived from other experts, each of whom is generally especially versed in one field only.

So the best that can be done is to give the general rule that old books are worth nothing for their age, and those one finds among the heir looms of the past are much more likely than otherwise to have no other element of value, Especially valueless are those lacking some part, or badly stained, or dog-eared, or worn. And nearly all the old books submitted to me as an expert by hopeful owners have been defective in one or more of these respects, and have been the higher prized for these marks of antiquity.

But one caution should be added. Thus far only money value has been considered. Every book and printed leaf has another value, and a higher, which should save it from wanton destruc-The true lover of books cares little for the grosser estimate of the bookseller, and much for the soul of books. There is a treasure of interest, partly intrinsic and partly arising from associations, about every old book, especially if it has come to our hands from former generations of our ancestors. I have one old religious treatise, in wretched condition, bearing the autographs of my paternal ancestors for four generations back. They had very few books, and passed them along reverently from father to son. I couldn't sell this old rag of a book for ten cents, nor would I part with it for any price Value the old books, then, for I can name. what they are, for the past of which they bear mute testimony, for the associations that cluster about them, and rejoice, if you have some such treasures, that there is no money locked up in them that might tempt you some day to part with them for filthy lucre.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM BALLANTINE, the well-known sergeantat-law, is dead, at the age of seventy-five. About five years ago he wrote a book entitled "Experiences of a Barrister's Life," dealing with the public men of two generations (published in this country by Henry Holt & Co.). In December, 1882, he visited this country.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS AT THE SOUTH.

Maurice Thompson, at Nashville.

NORTHERN people appear to have formed strangely erroneous notions in regard to the literary feeling in the South. A distinguished New England writer not long ago made the broad assertion that Southern towns and cities were distinguished by the absence of book-stores. own knowledge flatly contradicts the statement. I have seen these towns and cities and have been in their book-stalls. I may not dare to begin a catalogue of the writers who, since the war, have drawn sharp and approving attention to the new literary movement in the Southern States. nessee has Miss Murfree, Alabama has Samuel Minturn Peck, Louisiana has Cable, Georgia has Harris, Virginia has James A. Harrison and Thomas Nelson Page, and Kentucky has Robert Burns Wilson. And there are vacant seats in the choir where lately sat those noble brothers in song, Hayne and Lanier. Their songs will live It seems credible to me that the South should show, within the next few years, a very great growth in the field of creative literature, a growth of a rarer and more original fibre in art than anything yet seen in any part of our coun-The reason for this prediction, if it may be called such a name, lies in the fertilizing power of the new relation which the South bears to all the world. Genius is as sensitive to a new environment as is litmus-paper to the touch of acid.

THE PRESENT OCCUPANT OF "THE OLD CORNER."

THERE is no club in Boston where one is so likely to meet literary people and to hear literary news as at the Old Corner Bookstore of Cupples, Upham & Co., through the dusky interior of which a good deal of the literary history of the town reverberates, bringing up visions of Dickens and Thackeray, Longfellow, Emerson, Lowell, Holmes, and Whittier. There is no place of the kind in New York, writes Mr. Rideing to the Critic. It is an old gambrel-roofed building at the corner of Washington and School Streets, with low-studded ceilings and a general appearance of having been lifted bodily out of Paternoster Row or Fleet Street. It was built after the fire of 1711, and it has been occupied as a publishing-house and a book-store since 1828. The palmiest days of Ticknor & Fields were spent here; here James T. Fields came to begin life as a clerk at the age of 14; and here, too, James R. Osgood served his apprenticeship. Ticknor & Fields were succeeded as tenants by E. P. Dutton & Co., and in 1869 A. Williams & Co. took possession, to be succeeded in turn by the present occupants, Cupples, Upham & Co. It is scarcely possible for one to enter at any time of the day without noticing a youngish-looking man of quiet, unobtrusive ways, and an air of sagacity beyond the years which his face would-indicate. This is Mr. J. G. Cupples, the head of the firm, who, though not more than 36 years of age, has long been a notability among the publishers of this city. He is a nephew of George Cupples, author of "The Green Hand," which Clark Rus-He is a nephew of George Cupples, sell has called the best sea-story ever written, and his aunt, Mrs. George Cupples, is also the author | of several clever books. Mr. Cupples was born | in Edinburgh, and came to the United States when he was 10 years old.

He was a very small boy, indeed, when he entered the service of A. Williams & Co., at the store No. 100 Washington Street, where the Advertiser building now stands, but before he reached 20 he was a partner in that firm. James T. Fields took the friendliest interest in him and constantly helped him with suggestions and advice, and the celebrated author-publisher never had a distinguished guest that he did not bring down to the Old Corner for introduction to his young protigé. An excellent bookseller, Mr. Cupples is also a shrewd publisher, and is constantly extending the higher branch of his business.

THE CENTURY DICTIONARY.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

OVER 25,000 sheets of "copy" are already pre-pared for the "Century Dictionary" and their preservation has been a serious problem. It is necessary to keep this large mass of manuscript in the printing-office for frequent consultation in regard to cross-references and the like. But if the manuscript were destroyed the loss would have been irreparable, for death or other reasons might make it impossible to consult again some of the experts whose opinions were embodied. It was proposed to insure the "copy" for $150,-000, but the insurance money would not have replaced the loss. Finally photography was suggested and the idea has been successfully carried out. Each sheet of "copy," which is of brown paper, is 8 inches by 12 and bears printed extracts with corrections, interlineations, and additions as well as written paragraphs. Each has been photographed and reduced to a size measuring only 13/4 inches by 2. All the words upon the positives of this size can be read with a magnifying glass, for every detail is, of course, accurately reproduced. The reduction is for convenience in storage and handling. The negatives are preserved and the entire 25,000 would hardly more than fill a large bureau drawer. These negatives can be enlarged to any size which may be convenient. Should the manuscript now come to grief, these negatives would furnish a ready means of reproducing it in a very short time, and the cost for the whole 25,000 will not exceed The idea was suggested to Mr. Fraser by a remembrance of the photography and reduction of letters to be taken out of Paris by carrier pigeons during the siege; but this is believed to be the first time that book manuscript has been treated in this manner.

BOOKS FOR NEW YORK CITY'S WARDS.

A CART-LOAD of gift-books for the wards of the Charity Commissioners on the islands was dumped on the 30th ult. at the department office in Eleventh Street, New York. It had been collected from various charitable sources. Many of the volumes had no covers and were lacking several leaves. A clerk was set to assort the pile for the different institutions. "A treatise on the 'Philosophy of Style and Causes of Force in Language which Depend Upon Economy of the Mental Energies," says a reporter of the World, "was assigned by him to the Lunatic Asylum library. Pamphlets on the 'Evidences of Evolution' Civilization in Asia' found their way to the Almshouse pile. A report of a session of the What-to-do Club' was marked 'Workhouse. The Penitentiary received a detailed account of the 'Sanitary Condition of Summer Resorts.'

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. T. JONES & Co., N. Y., have just issued a neat edition of "Manon Lescaut," translated by Arthur W. Gundry, with illustrations by Leloir.

BELFORD, CLARKE & Co. publish a second and much revised edition of Mr. Starr Hoyt Nichols' "Monte Rosa," a poem which attracted considerable attention on its original appearance four years ago.

OUR attention is called to a misprint in the Lovell-Houghton Libel Case, published in our last issue. In the sixth line from the bottom of the second column of page 43, "agrees" should be "argues."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in press a novel entitled "The Jesuits' Ring," by A. A. Hayes, who has written some clever stories of Western life. The forthcoming one is a story of the Mt. Desert of to-day.

ROGERS & SHERWOOD, 21 Barclay St., N. Y., will be the publishers or printers of "The History of the Confederate States Navy," by J. Thomas Scharf, of Baltimore. It will make one octavo volume of about 800 pages and will be sold by subscription.

D. C. HEATH & Co. announce for immediate publication "A Synopsis of the Nature and Effects of Alcohol and Narcotics," by L. H. Luce, M.D., who, in the course of twenty years' practice, has given a great deal of time and attention to this subject.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE promise unusual attractions at their annual dinner, to be given at the Brunswick, on the 10th of February. Chauncey M. Depew, Mark Twain, Gen. Horace Porter, Mayor Hewitt, Senator W. Miller and others have promised to be present.

MR. H. M. REED, of George Routledge & Sons, left for London on the 8th inst. Mr. James Pott, Jr., sailed by the same steamer. Previous to their departure they were tendered a complimentary dinner by a number of their friends in the trade and fellow "travellers." It was quite an animated affair, and wound up in a most fraternal manner.

HARPER & Bros. have in preparation an "Introduction to Psychological Theory," by Borden P. Bowne, Professor of Philosophy in Boston University, and "Charles Reade: a memoir," edited by the Rev. Compton Reade and Charles Luton Reade, a work which will be looked forward to with great interest by all readers of good English novels.

Some years ago the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," published a "Parable for Young and Old," entitled "The Little Lame Prince and his Travelling Cloak," with twenty-four illustrations by Mr. J. McL. Ralston. The volume has been out of print for some time, but we understand that a new edition is to be issued immediately by Messrs. Macmillan & Co.

THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING COMPANY, Norwich, Ct., publishers of James G. Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress," have arranged for the production of another book from Mr. Blaine's pen. The title of the work will be: "Speeches and Diplomatic Papers." It will include his arguments upon various subjects of general political interest, beginning with the Fremont campaign in 1856, when he supported the first presidential candidate of the Republican party, and extended to the present year.

BERNARD SCHAFF, of the bogus Wartburg Lutheran Theological Seminary, whose arrest we noted in our last issue, committed suicide in prison by taking morphine, on the 10th inst. But very little of Schaff's history can be learned. He was but twenty-two years of age, and had been in this country but two years and a half. He is known to have been employed as a waiter in the old country. His mode of robbery showed him to be a smart, shrewd fellow.

It is said that when the unabridged edition of Webster's Dictionary first appeared (without a definition of the word unabridged), that great scholar, Caleb Cushing, wrote a criticism on the stupendous work, saying that, for its size, it had as few errors as could be expected. This puzzled the editors, who asked an explanation of Mr. Cushing's information on the subject of those errors. In reply Mr. Cushing marked five thousand mistakes in the volume which had been presented to him, and sent it back.

THE EVENING NEWS PRINTING HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., has published "Reminiscences of West Point in the Olden Time." These have been derived from a variety of sources, and are historical, biographical, and topographical. They are well written, and will prove pf interest, not merely to graduates of the Military Academy, but to all who have visited or read about this historic spot. A valuable feature of this little work is a register of the graduates of West Point, with the addresses of those still living, brought down to September 1, 1886.

D. O. HAYNES & Co., Detroit, Mich., will publish shortly a "Thesaurus of Botanical Synonyms," compiled by Dr. A. B. Lyons and D. O. Haynes. This book will give for each drug (1) The correct botanical name according to the latest and best scientific authority. (2) Etymology and pronunciation of generic names. (3) Natural order of the plant. (4) Its habitat. (5) Correct English name. (6) Synonyms, English, French, German, and Latin. (7) Pharmacopæial names, according to U. S., British, Homeopathic, French, and German Pharmacopæias, explaining the part of plant to which these names apply. (8) Properties and uses. (9) Doses. The work will be as complete as possible, particularly in respect to indigenous plants and drugs of recent introduction.

WARD & DOWNEY, London, announce for early publication Prince Krapotkine's "In French and Russian Prisons;" Mr. Robert Buchanan's "A Look Round Literature;" and "The Personal Recollections of the Duc de Broglie," translated by Mr. Ledos de Beaufort.

S. ROSENBAUM, Berlin, has published under the title of "Fürs deutsche Haus," a selection of extracts from the Old and New Testaments and the principal Greek and Latin authors, in masterly German versions, very carefully edited by the well-known lexicographer, Dr. Daniel Sanders.

BESIDES the "original" Ms. book of "Alice in Wonderland," which has been published this week, and the dramatization of the story, we are also promised another variation on the ever-fresh theme. This is a selection of some twenty-four of Mr. Tenniel's drawings, enlarged and colored ume will be called "The Nursery Alice."

WM. BLACKWOOD & Sons will publish at once; a work, by Mr. L. J. Jennings, M.P., editor of | "The Croker Papers," entitled "Mr. Gladstone: a study." Mr. Jenning's object has been to present the leading facts connected with Mr. Gladstone's public career in as brief a form as possi-1 under the superintendence of the artist. The vol-1 ble, and therefore the work has been compressed within a moderate compass, so that it may be published cheaply. The work for which Mr. Jennings has long been collecting materials, is divided into seven chapters or parts, namely: "Mr. Gladstone's Political Principles," "Development of Radicalism," "Foreign Policy," "Irish Policy " (two parts), "Financial Policy," and "Char-

Book Bazaar,

91 Dearborn St.,

(FORMERLY CHAPIN'S BOOK-STORE.)

As former proprietor of this store, having sold the same to JOHN E. BURTON, the Gogebic Iron, Man, I take great pleasure in announcing to my friends and the public generally, that this gentleman will now do what for seventeen years I have planned to do, and that is to open soon a large store, or Book Bazaar, which will offer to the scholars of the Northwest an opportunity to secure at fair prices the rare books of antiquity which seldom find their way out of London and New York. Mr. Burton has authorized the undersigned to make an European journey to purchase rare books, and as soon as the proper headquarters can be found, Burton's Book BAZAAR will offer many of the Gems of the world's literature. No such opportunity has ever been given the people of the Northwest as this new enterprise will. Mr. Burton inherits a love for all that is historic or valuable in literature, and will use his new store to crystallize his researches and gratif this ambition, and Chicago will reap incidental benefits heretofore unknown. This Bazaar means to become the Scholars' Paradise, and a true home for choice and ancient Works of Art and will merit the confidence and patronage of all scholars and lovers of the fine arts.

The new proprietor authorizes also the purchase of all rare libraries and collections of books, for which the undersigned is to pay cash down without limit.

Old and new books bought and sold at all times.

The Geographical and Geological Distribution of Animals.

By Angelo Heilprin, Professor of Invertebrate Paleontology at the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, etc. Vol. 57 of The International Science Series. One vol., 12mo, 435 pages, $2.00.

"In the preparation of the following pages the author has had two objects in view: that of presenting to his readers such of the more significant facts connected with the past and present distribution of animal life as might lead to a proper conception of the relations of existing faunas; and, secondly, that of furnishing to the student a work of general reference, wherein the more salient features of the geography and geology of animal forms could be sought after and readily found."—From the Preface.

II.

The Rise and Early Constitution of Universities.

WITH A SURVEY OF MEDIÆVAL EDUCATION. By S. S. LAURIE, LL.D., Professor of the Institutes and History of Education in the University of Edinburgh. Vol. 3 of The International Education Series, edited by W. T. HARRIS, LL.D. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"In the history of the rise and organization of universities, the student of education finds the most interesting and suggestive topics in the entire range of his specialty. For, in the history of the development of the higher and highest education, he sees the definite modes by which the contributions of the past to the well-being of the present have been transmitted."—From Editor's Preface.

III.

Creation or Evolution?

A PHILOSOPHICAL INQUIRY. By GEORGE TICKNOR CURTIS. One vol., 12mo, 504 pages, cloth, $2.00.

"I some years ago took up the study of the modern doctrine of animal evolution. Until after the death of Mr. Charles Darwin I had not given very close attention to this subject. The honor paid to his memory, and due to his indefatigable research and extensive knowledge, led me to examine his 'Descent of Man' and his 'Origin of Species,' both of which I studied with care, and I trust with candor. I was next induced to examine the writings of Mr. Herbert Spencer. . . . The result of my studies of these writers is the present book."—From the Preface.

IV.

The Poison Problem;

OR, THE CAUSE AND CURE OF INTEMPERANCE. By Felix L. Oswald, M.D., author of "Physical Education," "Household Remedies," etc. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

V.

Social Etiquette of New York.

REWRITTEN AND ENLARGED. 18mo, cloth, gilt, $1.00.

This book has been entirely rewritten and considerably extended. There are several new chapters, and the subject of each chapter has been brought down to date, so as to record the latest changes in social customs.

D. LOTHROP & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

LITTLE FISHERS AND THEIR NETS. By PANSY. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

True to her style and grace, PANSY introduces a bright, winning girl, and a true, manly boy, with whose presence we are at once captivated, and these two by their ingenuity and careful, well-laid plans, transform an uninviting dwelling into a place so truly home that its inmates are made to understand the worth of the term—are caught in the meshes of the nets these little fishers have so adroitly set.

DAME HERALDRY. By F. S. W. Illustrated, 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The history, genealogy, and romance of Heraldry, woven together and richly set with accurate color-plates of coats-of-arms and other heraldic designs which enhance the charm of the book.

REAL FAIRY FOLKS. By Lucy J. RIDER, A.M. 12mo, $1,50.

The author of this unique volume has succeeded in evolving real fairies out of the misty gases, the liquids and solids that appear in Chemistry, and in arranging a series of object lessons that are scientific, but none the less fascinating. The illustrations are as curious as the text which they prettily illustrate.

COMMON-SENSE SCIENCE. By GRANT ALLEN. 1200. cloth. $1.50.

The fine taste and keen intellectual insight of the author are well shown in the twenty-eight papers that make up this book, which treat of such subjects as "Second Nature," "Attainable Ideals," "The Balance of Nature," "Home Life," etc., and will be found most delightful reading.

NEW ENGLAND IDYLS. By BELLE C. GREENE, author of "A New England Conscience," 16mo, $1.00. A charming story of home life.

SHORT STORIES FROM THE DICTION-ARY. By ARTHUR GILMAN. 12mo, cloth, 60 cents.

The author tells many interesting stories and develops important historical facts. He traces words through classic customs, and ancient events, in many languages, from their primal origin to their present form in our own tongue.

A BOOK FOR BOYS. By J. E. Powers. Leatherette, 90 cents a dozen; single copy, 10 cents; cloth, 25 cents.

This is the business boy's guide and manual, showing "how a boy had better behave in business and what is going to come of it, by a man who was once a boy himself and knows what boys are good for and what is good for them."

THE MIDNIGHT SUN, THE TSAR, AND THE NIHILIST. Adventures and Observations in Norway, Sweden, and Russia. By Rev. J. M. BUCKLEY, LL.D. Very finely illustrated, extra cloth, $3.00.

A Nihilist who has seen the advance sheets says: "It is the fairest and fullest account of Nihilism in the same space in the English language." And a loyalist Russian says: "It must have been written by a person long resident in Russia."

WHAT PEOPLE LIVE BY. From the Russian of Count Let Tolstot. Translated by Mrs. ALINE DE-LANO. 83 pages, 8vo, illustrated cloth, $1.00.

Written in this popular author's most charming style, there is, running through this interesting story, a clear, comprehensive analysis of "what people live by," whose truth will suggest itself even to the indifferent reader.

THE LAST PENACOOK. A Tale of Provincial Times. By ABEL B. BERRY. 16mo, illustrated, $1.00.

OLD SCHOOLDAYS. By AMANDA B. HARRIS, 16mo, cloth, 60 cents.

THE MAKING OF PICTURES. By SARAH W. WHITMAN. 16mo, cloth, 60 cents.

DICKENS' WORKS. Lothrop's Large Print Edition. 30 vols., $37.50.

WINTER (DECEMBER, JANUARY, and FEBRUARY) of Through the Year with the Poets. 3 vols. in a box. Cloth, plain, $2.25; half cloth, extra, $3.00; half morocco, or half calf, $4.50; full calf, $9.00.

CHRISTMAS EVE AND EASTER DAY AND OTHER POEMS. By ROBERT BROWNING. Edited by W. J. Rolfe. 16mo, 75 cents.

POST-LAUREATE IDYLS. By OSCAR FAY ADAMS. 16mo, gilt top, $1,00.

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton writes thus of "Post-Laureate Idyls": "Witty, quaint, charming—the best things I can think of in the line of respectful parody." The Nation says the author of "Post-Laureate Idyls" is a poet of high aims and conscientious execution.

ALL AMONG THE LIGHTHOUSES; or, The Cruise of the Goldenrod. By Mary Bradford Crowninshield. Quarto, beautifully bound in cloth, fully illustrated, $2.50.

"We find here instruction of a novel sort, balanced by an almost equal amount of pleasant story-telling. In all this history of a trip along the Maine coast—the first lighthouse district—upon which the Government Inspector takes a trio of fortunate children, there is not a page of dull reading, and much that is very bright and pleasing, aside from the good descriptions of many lighthouses visited. The book will be very interesting, both to boys and girls, especially those who have a romantic love for the sea and nautical matters; and those who have not should certainly read it to increase their knowledge of these fascinating subjects."—The Nation, N. Y.

DOES THE TRADE WANT IT?

Annual Catalogue, 1886.

N accordance with many requests from the trade, we have decided to issue a Catalogue of American Books and imported editions published in 1886, provided subscriptions show general desire and adequate demand for an Annual Catalogue.

This will include, re-arranged alphabetically, the full entries (with descriptive notes) of our Weekly Record, prefaced by a short-title index by author, title, and subjectthe most complete annual catalogue yet attempted in any country.

Publishers are notified that their advertisements in the Annual Summary Number of the Publishers' Weekly will appear in this catalogue, if issued, without extra charge..

The price will be Three Dollars, half leather (or $2.50 unbound). The cost of compilation and manufacture prevents cheaper price. The edition will be limited, and plates will not be kept.

If you want an Annual Catalogue issued, please send us a post-card at once to say if you will take one or more copies. If less than 250 subscriptions are sent, we do not propose to undertake the work. If reply is adequate and prompt, we expect to have it ready in thirty days.

LIBRARY LIST.

The RECORD NUMBER of the LIBRARY JOURNAL for 1887 (January and February double number) will contain a full list of all American public libraries of 1000 or more volumes, arranged by States, but classified by type according to size (50,000, 10,000, 5000, or less volumes), and with the name of the librarian or reporting officer. These features will not appear in the Government list to be issued later in the year.

A select list of leading English and foreign libraries, possibly also a list of important American private libraries may be added.

The number will contain other important features, including an account of the library work of the Bureau of Education, with portraits of Gen. Eaton and Commissioner Dawson. Probably also a reprint of the American Library Association cataloguing rules, its specifications for library binding, etc.

This list will be invaluable to publishers and dealers in books, stationers, manufacturers, etc. The number will not be sold separately (except at a greatly advanced price), but is included in the subscription price of the Library Journal for 1887, with the Index to Periodicals and Literary News as supplements, five dollars. If issued separately, later, the List will be priced at three dollars. Subscriptions should be forwarded promptly.

AGES BEFORE MOSES (THE).

A series of Lectures on the Book of Genesis. By JOHN MUNRO GIBSON, D.D. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents; by post, 85 cents.

"These lectures are timely, noteworthy, and original. They are all separately interesting, and form as a whole a very complete picture of a period around which many Bible readers are apt to throw a vague mistiness, which obscures the mind, even when it is intent upon seeing and seeking the truth. . . There is much clearing up of what the simple English reader of the Bible may have considered difficulties."—Southern Churchman.

MOSAIC ERA (THE).

A series of Lectures on Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. By John Munro Gibson, D.D., author of "Ages Before Moses," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; by post, $1.10.

"No book that has lately appeared contains such valuable expositions of the Mosaic Record. The author is a scholar and an able lecturer, and the productions of his pen are full of instructive and suggestive thoughts."—Ballimore Presbyterian.

"The author's style is very simple and clear, his thoughts are weighty and often exceedingly fresh, and the book abounds in fresh, practical observations,"—Homiletic Monthly.

The above two volumes in one, $1.50; by post, $1.65.

STORY OF CREATION (THE).

By S. M. CAMPBELL, D.D. With illustrations. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00; by post, $1.10.

"The object of the book, as it evidently lay in the mind of the writer, while writing every page, was to show that so far as science has made discoveries, they all confirm the Mosaic cosmogony, and he accomplishes this object most felicitously. A special excellence of the book is its plain Saxon wording, and avoidance of technical terms, so that the unlearned reader can fully comprehend even its most profound and difficult portions. We commend it as admirable, and just now needed."—Ch. Weekly.

The Greville Memoirs.

(Third and Concluding Part.) A Journal of the Reign of

OUEEN VICTORIA, from 1852 to

BY THE LATE

CHARLES C. F. GREVILLE, Esq., Clerk of the Council. In Two Volumes, 8vo, Cloth, $9.50.

We take pleasure in announcing that, by special arrangement with the English publishers, we shall be prepared to supply copies of the Third Part of THE GREVILLE MEMOIRS on the day of publication of the work in London (by Messrs, Longmans & Co.); we expect on the 25th inst.

The First Part of these Memoirs, which created so profound an interest among all classes of readers on its appearance in 1874, closed with the accession of Queen Victoria. The present publication concludes the Memoirs.

(2) "Probably no man who lived in the first half of this century was more highly qualified than Mr. Greville to leave behind him a vivid and faithful picture of the society around him. He became Clerk of the Council in 1821, and lived for the next forty years of his life in daily and intimate personal communication with all the most brilliant and illustrious society of his day."

NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will have a new book for Easter called "The Lily and the Cross." made in the style of "The Season Songs," and will prove very attractive.

WORTHINGTON COMPANY will publish on the 25th, simultaneously with its publication in London by Messrs. Longmans & Co., the concluding volumes (7 and 8) of "Greville's Memoirs, bringing the journal down to his death.

T. B. PETERSON BROS. announce, in sending out a fresh issue of John Habberton's "Helen's Babies," that over two hundred thousand copies have already been printed and sold, and that it remains one of the most popular books on their list.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish next week another of Dr. William A. Hammond's novels, entitled, "On the Susquehanna," of which readers of "Lal," "Dr. Grattan," "Mr. Oldmixon," etc., will, no doubt, rejoice to hear. They also promise a novel by Mrs. Wildrock, called "A Zealot in Tulle," which turns mainly upon romantic incidents connected with a treasure buried in an old fort in Florida by the Spaniards. Mrs. Wildrock is the wife of an army officer.

GINN & Co. will publish, next week, a volume alents.

Sarah Cary Becker and Señor Federico Mora. This is said to be "as nearly as possible a complete collection of Spanish idioms, or of Spanish phrases which, if literally translated, would fail to convey to foreign ears the sense in which they are understood by Spaniards. No approximately complete collection of these idioms has hitherto been published, either separately or scattered through any more comprehensive work. translations have been made with great care, and numerous errors in the readings found in Spanish-English dictionaries are here corrected."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"THE Yoke of Thorah" is the title of Sidney Luska's new story, which will be published first by the McClure newspaper syndicate.

MR. GLADSTONE was paid $1250 for his article published in the current number of the Nineteenth Century. That means about 12 cents a word. For his famous "Vicar," Goldsmith was paid $300; and Charles and Mary Lamb received about the same for the "Tales from Shakespeare.

CONGRESSMAN S. S. Cox hopes to publish in the spring a book entitled "The Diversions of a Diplomat," a large part of which was written while he was in Turkey. It is a description of his life in Constantinople and among the Turks and Greeks on the Island of Prinkipo, where he passed a summer.

HENRY B. STANTON printed a few years before his death a slight volume of autobiographical notes, and circulated it among his circle of literary friends. The notes were revised, recast, and enlarged, and are now in the hands of Harper & Bros. for publication, under the title of "Random Recollections," in enduring book-form. "This has been referred to as a new edition," says the N. Y. Times, "but it is to all intents and purposes a new book, its predecessor not rising above the level of an ordinary pamphlet. The recollections cover a period of seventy years, and no memoirs yet published contain so great a variety of personal sketches of the foremost public men of the present and the past generations of American history."

MR. WM. BLACK, the novelist, has not had the pleasure accorded to some American great men of reading his own obituary, but very possibly he would like to write it himself, if the Bow Bells sketch of him is to be the pattern of accuracy. A biographer in that magazine, who thought fiction was the proper kind of biography for a fictionist, kindly wrote down Mr. Black as a mean-spirited person, who would not even spend the two-andsixpence a week necessary to keep a dear old aunt, the staff of his early years, out of the workhouse. In a libel suit which Mr. Black felt it necessary to bring to clear the record, it appeared that this ancient relative was entirely manufactured for the occasion, Mr. Black having no aunt, and a verdict for £100—nominal damages only having been asked—dissipated the other kindly Mr. Black has many American allegations. friends, who know him as the opposite of the person his Bow Bells biographer invented and labelled with his name. It is said that the biographer, who claims to be a correspondent of several American papers, has threatened to take his reof "Spanish Idioms, with their English Equivvenge by circulating the story here, where he alents," embracing over 10,000 phrases, by cannot be reached. Verbum sap.

Begins with a brief summary of the religious persecu-tions in the old world which led to the colonization of Massachusetts, and gives a detailed history of that Puri-tan Commonwealth and of the development of the diftan Commonwealth and of the development of the dif-ferent sects, which in their turn were all persecuted by the parties in power. The Antinomians, the Anabaptists, the Quakers, the Witches, etc., etc., and their special doc-trines are clearly described. A full history of the found-ing of Harvard College and its influence on the thought of that day and of our own are given. The authorities consulted are given in foot-notes to vouch for each state-ment. The work shows how amidst hardship and anment. The work shows how amidst hardship and ap-parent failure Massachusetts "slowly achieved her civil and religious liberty, and conceived that constitutional system which is the root of our national life." foot of Seat-Sandal mountain in the Cumberland valley. The story has no depth of plot; the interest for the most part centres in the quaint romance of Charlotte Sandal and Stephen Latrigg, and the incident which made Stephen "Squire of Sandal-side." The characters are supposed to have lived in Wordsworth's time and Miss Barr introduces him in the story.

Besant, Walter. Dorothy Forster: a novel.

N. Y., Harper, 1887. 85 p. Q. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib. no. 561.) pap., 20 c.

Dorothy Forster, who tells her own life story, was the daughter of the Sheriff of Northumberland in the beginning of the eighteenth century. The descriptions of Dorothy's home life with her adored brother and their tutor, who is a clergyman of learning, with a taste for good wines and the theatre, is true to nature and to history. Dorothy loves a Papist lord, but refuses to marry him because she is a Protesant. Her short love story, her devotion to her family and the tutor's devotion to her, make a novel of great merit.

The scene of this novel is laid in a flourishing Western city on Lake Michigan. The "golden justice" is a statue erected on the roof of the City Hall by David Lane, a thriving business man, who was Governor of the State at the time the building was put up. In this "justice" was hidden a paper confessing a crime committed by Lane, which had great influence upon the lives of his only daughter and her faithful lover, Paul Barclay. How this paper came into the hands of Barclay gives occasion for the description of a Western tornado. The details of elections, labor unions, newspaper management, theories of divorce, factory discipline, etc., in the growing West, add great interest to the story. great interest to the story

A strong interest in the modern doctrine of animal evolution, and a careful study of the works of Darwin and Herbert Spencer, resulted in the author writing the present book. "The result," he says, "of my study of the hypothesis of evolution is, that it is an ingenious but delusive mode of accounting for the existence of either the body or the mind of man; and that it employs a kind of reasoning which no person of sound judgment would ap-ply to anything that might affect his welfare, his happiness, his estate, or his conduct in the practical affairs of life."

A pleasantly written sketch of one of the most charming figures in literary history. Dorothy Wordsworth (born 1771), the "sole sister" of the poet, one year his junior, was his life-long friend and companion, the inspirer of much of his best work, and a real factor in the revival of English poetry. Many of her brother's poems are dedicated to or mention her, and she was the friend of Mary and Charles Lamb, De Quincey, and of all the Lake poets. She died five years after her brother, in 1855. The author has written this delightful book, because, except for the sketch in Prof. Shairp's "Tour in Scotland," no separate memorial of her existed. Poems and extracts from her journals are included.

That it is negation his book seems to prove in spite of himself. Like "The philosophy of disenchantment," of which it is the complement, it is pessimistic throughout. JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUB. Co. announce a new periodical, the Audubon Magazine, to be printed in the interest of the Audubon Society for the Protection of Birds.

THE Atlantic Monthly hopes to have in March an article by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes on his recent visit to England, and anticipates that it will be the first of a series of two or three on the same subject.

THE Brooklyn Magazine has deferred its change of name to the American Magazine until April 15, in order that the publishers may have suitable time for properly developing the many plans necessary to the successful launching of a high-class illustrated magazine.

A PRIZE of $25 is offered by Cassell & Co. to readers of Cassell's Family Magazine, for the best practical paper on "The Domestic Service Difficulty in America," with suggestions for its solution. The paper should contain not less than 2000 words, and must not exceed 3000 words in length. Correspondence on the subject may be addressed to the Editor of Cassell's Magazine, Cassell & Co., 739-741 Broadway, N. Y., not later than March 1, 1887.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM JAMES, of Harvard College, will occupy the first place in The Popular Science Monthly for February with an unusually readable paper on "The Laws of Habit." A very clear explanation, on physiological grounds, of the way in which habits come to involve all the functions of the organism, growing with its growth, and hardening into permanency as it matures, makes this article valuable reading for youth and for those who have the care of the young.

A NOTABLE illustrated article in the February number of Scribner's Magazine will be " The likenesses of Cæsar," by Mr. J. C. Ropes. For years Mr. Ropes has been collecting photographs of the head of Julius Cæsar, as it appears in the busts and statues of him. The article is a description of this unique collection, and is finely illustrated with reproductions of the most striking portraits among the number. Mr. T. S. Perry will contribute to the same issue a short paper on "Russian Novels," a subject of unusual interest at the present time.

The Publishers' Aleekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 22, 1887.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications,

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenence and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE USE OF CATALOGUES.

WE are pleased to say that the response to our query, "Does the trade want an Annual Catalogue?" is sufficiently general to warrant our undertaking that enterprise. We have entered upon the work and hope to complete its preparation and manufacture well within the thirty days, that is, in the early part of February. The announcement of the proposed enterprise has brought up a number of suggestions, all of which we have been glad to have and some of which we shall be able to act upon.

Several dealers have announced their willingness to pay the price of the proposed Catalogue if it could be made to include all books issued since the last regular volume of the American Catalogue, which shows, after our full statement of the cost of the original American Catalogue, a curious misapprehension of the cost and limitations of trade catalogues. After the issue of the Annual Catalogue for 1886, we shall be betterable to judge of its cost, but it is certainly impracticable to include more than a single year's book production at the price named. Should members of the trade be willing to pay for an Annual Catalogue for 1885, we might be in position to undertake it, after the completion of this test volume. It is not proposed to make the annual volume a substitute for the American Catalogue proper, the next volume of which should cover the period from July, 1884, to June, 1890, inclusive. The Annual Catalogue will range either with the Pub-LISHERS' WEEKLY or the Trade List Annual, which will enable us to carry out another suggestion, of putting it in shape to bind with the Annual English Catalogue of books. They can scarcely be issued together, for the reason that the English Catalogue is published pretty nearly towards the middle of the year.

It is our purpose, as before stated, to issue nothing from this office for which there is not a real demand, and which is not justified in dollars and cents by the use to which the trade will put it; and this brings us to a few words again on the use of catalogues. An experienced retailer who had gone into business within a year or two, said last week that he had already paid for his own American Catalogue many times over from the sales he knew he should have lost without it. This is the simple test of the use of any catalogue in a book-store. The bookseller who can answer a customer promptly when a book is wanted, not only secures the sale then, but prevents the loss of a sale which would very likely not be made except at the moment of the customer's desire. Even at the present rate of profit on books, it does not take a great quantity of sales to cover the cost of an ordinary catalogue, while in the American Catalogue itself, a large number of books are those on which there is not at present the usual eager competition, so that profits are the larger. A bookstore well equipped with catalogues-and with politeness, ready to answer politely and courteously any inquiries that a customer may make, is to a considerable extent fortified against the competition of the more ignorant bazar trade, and though sales may be lost on "leaders," this tells in the long run.

It is our purpose, in the set of catalogues which will be completed as a system if the Annual Catalogue proves to be a success, to do for the trade what the bookseller does for the customer—to be ready to answer questions such as are likely to be put every day. The permanent catalogues, like the large volumes of the American Catalogue, are of course of permanent value. They give information as to past books which a dealer cannot carry in his head. On the other hand, where one question is asked about a book of five years ago, a dozen questions are asked about books of last year and a hundred about books of the day, which is the key, we presume, to the trade desire for an Annual Catalogue and to the usefulness of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKI.Y itself.

Every demand of the trade which shows its earnestness by a money demand we hope to honor as promptly and as well as it can be done; on the other hand, we do not propose to force upon the trade, catalogues or other enterprises which it does not want.

In making our announcements for the year, we should have included one enterprise, not solely that of this office, but of which we are glad to act as publishing agents. Our readers have already had some account of the proposal of Mr. C. N. Caspar, of Milwaukee, to issue a classified systematic directory of the American book-trade, such as he prepared on a smaller scale of the antiquarian and second-hand dealers. Mr. Caspar is now sending out circulars of inquiries, and though they are elaborate and minute, we trust that at this leisure season the trade will take special pains in answering such interrogatories as may concern the house addressed. We have already begun to receive subscriptions for this directory, Mr. J. E. Sherrill, of Danville, Ind., being the pioneer subscriber, and we refer the trade to the advertisement of this enterprise which appears on another page.

WE are heartily glad to note the proposed "new departure" of the Stationers' Board of Trade, of recognizing in its name the bookselling side of the trade, already so largely represented in its ranks and from which there should be considerable accessions when this evidence of welcome is shown. Meantime we commend to the publishing and bookselling guild the feast of reason as well as of good things for the gastronomic man set forth for the Annual Dinner of the Board of Trade, to be held at the Hotel Brunswick, February 10th. Chauncey M. Depew, Mark Twain, Gen. Horace Porter, Mayor Hewitt, Senator Warner Miller, and others, have promised to be among the speakers, and the occasion will be an excellent opportunity for members of the trade to come together socially, whether booksellers, publishers, or sellers of papers and pens, and whether at present members of the Board, or intending members. It will be a representative assembly, no doubt, and to be included at such a time, with such members of so honorable a guild, is in itself a good thing. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued, and early applications should be sent in to the committee, at 99 Nassau Street, so that suitable arrangements may be made. We are glad to note that Mr. C. A. Clapp, of E. P. Dutton & Co., is taking pains to get together a special representation of the booktrade, whom it is proposed, as far as possible, to seat together.

A CORRESPONDENT at Washington writes us as follows as to the prospects of international copyright: "No international copyright bill can pass Congress unless an 'American manufacture' clause is inserted. No bill onght to pass Congress which contains so illiberal, unjust, and impolitic a clause as the absolute prohibition of importation, a provision which certainly does not now exist, and I firmly believe never has existed, in the copyright laws of any nation upon the globe." This strikes us as a fairly exact statement.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE BOOK-TRADE AUXILIARY TO THE HOSPITAL SAT-URDAY AND SUNDAY ASSOCIATION. 1886-87.

We give below the list of contributions of the Book-trade Auxiliary to the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association as reported by the treasurer. It is gratifying to note that the sum contributed is a trifle larger than last year. It is not, however, the best we could do if we tried. Five hundred dollars ought to be the minimum which the book-trade should furnish for this fund.

MR. CASPAR'S DIRECTORIES.

MR. C. N. CASPAR, Milwaukee, indefatigable in his work for the trade, has issued the promised supplement to his "Directory of Antiquarian and Second-hand Booksellers of the United States," giving additions, changes, and corrections up to January 1, 1887, which he is sending gratuitously to every subscriber to his Directory. The additions and changes noted have involved much labor and expense, and it is hoped that every one who receives these sheets will take the comparatively small trouble to enter the changes in the body of the Directory. Mr. Caspar has, in fact, been so enterprising as to print, on the last page of this supplement, changes since the supplement was put in type. It is gratifying to note that the Directory has received so general support from the trade and friends of bibliography in general, that only a few copies are still on hand, and the work will, in a very short time, be out of print. Intending purchasers should lose no time. Mr. Caspar announces that he hopes to publish at some future time a "Directory of the Antiquarian Booksellers of Europe and America," if circumstances and opportunity should prove favorable.

Mr. Caspar has also sent out his circular of queries for his "Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trade and Kindred Branches, etc.," now in course of preparation, and to be published through this office. This is intended to be an elaborate and comprehensive work, covering the following departments: 1. All firms in a general alphabet with full information in regard to their nature, their specialties, etc.; firm changes of Publishers, Manufacturing Stationers, Jobbers, etc.; the approximate commercial standing and the present Post-Office Address of all firms, etc.;

2. Digest of the Trade Lists of the various Book Publishers; 3. Digest of the Trade Lists of the Manufacturing and Jobbing Stationers, and the Blank-Book and Paper Makers; 4. Geographically, according to States and Towns; 5. According to Specialties of firms represented; 6. Theory and Practice of the Book and Stationery Trade: Hints and Suggestions to Booksellers, News Dealers, and Stationers; Trade Bibliographies, Trade Journals, etc. The subscription price will be $8, net, per copy.

McCLINTOCK AND STRONG'S CYCLO-PÆDIA COMPLETED.

To the younger generation of booksellers and bibliographers the announcement from time to time of another volume of McClintock and Strong's "Cyclopædia of Biblical, Theological, and Ecclesiastical Literature" always seemed a puzzle, because, until they looked up the matter, they all had an impression that that particular work had been published long before their day. And so it had. But then it was only the beginning, and the work was steadily progressing until now the announcement is finally made that the second and last supplementary volume is in preparation and may shortly be expected.

The work was undertaken by the Harpers in 1853, and the publication begun in 1867, and as it now stands completed bears testimony no less to the ability of the editor than to the enterprise of the publishers. In the preparation of the twelve bulky volumes which comprise this Cyclopædia, more that 100,000 books were consulted, and, as completed by the addition of the forthcoming volume, it will contain only a little short of 60,000 titles. It contains 2000 cuts and 76 maps, three of which are large colored ones in pockets. Altogether it is one of the most elaborate works of its kind in the language.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF RUSSIAN NAMES.

Miss Isabel F. Hapgood writes to the Independent concerning the matter of pronouncing and spelling Russian names:

"The way you spell Tourguéniess is the way he used to spell it himsels when he wrote letters in French. It represents the sound well, but it is Frenchified. I always spell it Turgeneff. substitutes one letter in English for one in Russian—and is, therefore, I think, the best. you must always remember that the e is something like ie-gay-in fact, but as delicate as the i which people west of the western boundary line of New England introduce into such words as earth—ear(i)th; bird—bi(i)rd; worth—wor(i)th, and so on; also that the u is like ou. No one—myself included-spells Russian quite consistently in English. For instance-I spell Dostocusky thus. It is pronounced Dastayevskiv, since an o is only o when the accent falls on it; and in other cases it is a. But no one would know of whom I was writing if I were consistent. So I do as in the case of Turgeneff. On the whole, that is the best plan, especially as an actual reproduction of the sound would entail an enormous number of letters in some names where the sibilants occur, as iy, teksteh! The result in such cases reminds me, in the effect on the visionary reader of Lowell's

'She nerved her larynx for the dreadful thing, And cleared the five-barred syllables at a spring.'"

THE TYPOTHETÆ AT DINNER.

SPRECH OF A. D. F. RANDOLPH, REPRESENTING THE PUBLISHERS.

The annual dinner of the master printers was held at the Hotel Brunswick on the 17th inst., Benjamin Franklin's birthday. There were present about 150 persons. W. C. Martin, President of the society, occupied the chair. On his right at the table of honor sat Colonel Alexander Mc-Clure, of The Philadelphia Times, Whitelaw Reid, William Dorsheimer and T. L. DeVinne, and on his left the Rev. Mr. Stoddard, A. D. F. Randolph, Stilson Hutchins, of The Washington Post, General Stewart L. Woodford and W. M. Laffan. Among the 100 others present were M. B. Brown, Daniel Appleton, A. W. Wagnalls, I. K. Funk, Howard Lockwood, W. D. Harper, W. A. Harper, J. F. Harper, Arthur Turnure, J. J. Little, Dr. Bliss, and W. C. Rogers, the Secretary of the organization. Letters and telegrams of regret were read from a number of invited guests. In response to the toast of "Books and Bookmaking," Mr. Randolph said:

I desire, Mr. President, to correct a statement which I made when I dined with you two years ago, and then quoted a remark of Dr. Samuel Johnson that the publishers drank their wine out of the skulls of authors. While this was true in the Doctor's time, it is not true in ours. Now it is the printers who drink wine out of the skulls of the publishers, and some of these skulls are very large, and some of the printers are very dry! An old friend told me the other day of a new press in the De Vinne house that prints sixtyfour octavo pages to the form, and prints both sides at once! We agreed that this would prove a crowning blessing to the publishers—one that would cut down the enormous profits of the print-We almost concluded that we would print nothing but royal octavos, and always on that press! As we went on talking, however, we remembered that never in the history of printing had a publisher got ahead of a printer; and our ultimate conclusion was that when the bills came in for work done on that press it would be charged up as four sixteen mo forms-four times sixteen being sixty-four-and if we demurred, would be reminded that figures never lie.

Never, I think, in the history of the trade in this country did any year bring to us so many elegant specimens of American book-making, as did the one just past. New York, Boston, Philadelphia, all bore witness to the marvellous skill of the American artist and the American manufacturer. England gave us nothing so good—nothing more beautiful. Boston came first with her Tile Club, bringing the Portuguese Sonnets, over her Well-worn Roads. delphia soon followed with her American Figure-Painters, and last came New York—"the noblest Roman of them all"—to do what she always does when She Stoops to Conquer. So in the lesser forms of art. There never was a time when the very form and pressure of the simple volume has shown such well-rounded taste and finish. has been an advance all along the line of good book-making. And as to the magazines—we could but say at one moment, now the Century beats the Harper, and in the next the Harper has gone ahead of the Century, and

"How happy could we be with either Were t'other fair charmer away."

But there comes to me in this connection another phase of this subject, and which recalls a maxim of certain political philosophers, who declare that this is an age when the rich are getting richer, and the poor poorer. Well, we have never had richer books than now, and surely never poorer ones. Think of it! A complete set of Dickens in fifteen volumes, weighing twenty-five pounds, for five dollars, just twenty cents a pound! Why, you cannot buy in this market a pound of sirloin steak at that price! But we are told that cheap books should be provided for the people! And it is the sheerest nonsense! Every book not fairly made, and which does not pay a living profit to the manufacturer and the seller, is an educational factor working in the wrong direction, as a premium on slop-work. What a woful pity it is that the very time which has brought so much in the way of simple embellishment and decoration into the homes of even the humblest of our people, has, under the influence of a fierce nonpaying competition, scattered broadcast over the land tons upon tons of the works of the greatest authors, printed in a style that is belittling to them and disgraceful to us, and taught thousands of these very people to believe that the highest price any bound book should command is-thirty-nine

But there is another feature of this Decorative Age and age of "cheap" books that cannot be ignored. The paper-covered book has brought us to a time when in thousands and thousands of refined homes there is no longer any accumulation of books. They have ceased to be a necessity. In how many of these can be found any signs of a good library or even of its foundation? Enter one of them. India rugs lie upon the polished floors. Sumptuous hangings divide the rooms. Elegant curtains drape the plate-glass windows. On the walls are etchings and beautiful prints, it may be paintings; while in corners or on mantel are bits of rare china and costly bric-a-brac. Luxurious chairs, covered with richest velvet or plush invite you to sit at your ease, and on an antique table of the period of Louis XIV. (purchased, it may be, at a great price) lies, ready to your hand, the masterpiece of the great English novelist, reprinted in the Seaside or Franklin Square "library" — price, twenty cents! And should you suggest a better edition of such a book, the owner of the mansion may answer, "What do I need more when I have all the text in this?" To which you might reply, "Why spend a hundred dollars for an elegant chair, when you might sit comfortably in a 'Shaker' that could be bought for one-tenth that sum?

"And what is to be the end of it all?" you may well ask. Worse and worse, I fear, until a great mass of our intelligent people, possessed of the purchasing power, reach the conviction that good books are just as essential in the household as substantial or ornamental furniture and wholesome beds, and that the number of these should be increased, year by year, just as additions are made to all else that is useful or adorns; and so are brought to believe that a case full of standard volumes, even if the books should not be read, is at least as useful and as decorative as a Japanese idol that is never prayed to! Then, and not until then, will there be a strong reaction against the paper-book-and then, and not until then, will Mr. Thackeray and Sir Walter and my Lord Tennyson and Mr. Dickens and the whole race of British authors cease to enter an elegant front door "all crumpled and torn," like the veriest tramp. but each shall go in as a gentleman in comely dress, and with such grace of manner as shall make him a fit and worthy companion of the few ancient worthies who may perchance, and by accident, be dwelling there in solitude, the representatives of a generation born before the era of "cheap literature!"

Now there is one other topic on which I should like to speak, but I am afraid! I am a free trader! Some of you are free traders until you come to the question of International Copyright, and then you are strict protectionists. Do not become alarmed. I will not argue the question. Let me only say, give us the Hawley bill, give us the Chace bill, give us anything else, if you will only give us an International Copyright law!

OBITUARY.

PROF. E. L. YOUMANS.

SCIENCE and literature have lost a veteran devotee in Prof. Edward Livingstone Youmans, who died Tuesday, Jan. 18, from lung troubles, at his home in the Knickerbocker Flats, No. 247 Fifth Ave., New York. The funeral was private; the interment was at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., where aged parents survive him.

Prof. Youmans was born in Coeymans, N. Y., on June 3, 1821. An early attack of ophthalmia made him blind for some years, and he never regained perfect sight. A faithful sister, Miss Anne Eliza Youmans, herself well known as a writer on botany, was his staff and solace. He wrote with a machine of his own invention. He received a medical degree from the University of Vermont, and in 1866 occupied the professorship of chemistry at Antioch College.

Forty years ago Prof. Youmans was led into Messrs. Appletons' store by his sister, and expressed a desire to make an arrangement for obtaining scientific books with which to pursue his studies. He had a conversation with W. H. Appleton, who became much interested in him, and from that time to his death he has been the scientific adviser of that great publishing-house. His first publication (1851) was a chart illustrating chemical composition by colored diagrams. In 1852 he published, through the Appletons, his well-known "Class-Book of Chemistry," which had a great circulation, and was translated into Spanish in 1866. He rewrote the work in 1875 on the basis of recent chemical knowledge. Among his other books which made him known to students were: "Alcohol and the Constitution of Man," published in 1853; "The Chemical Atlas," with text, 1855; "The Handbook of Household Science" 1867; "The Committee of Household Science " 1857; "The Correlation and Conserva-tion of Forces," 1864; and "The Culture De-manded by Modern Life," 1867. The last two books were compilations with original introductions, and the last-named volume contained an original lecture on "The Scientific Study of Human Nature." His lectures on scientific subjects were extensive and contributed greatly to popularizing the doctrines of the conservation of energies and the correlation of forces.

Dr. Youmans was the intimate friend of Herbert Spencer and of Profs. Huxley and Tyndall. More to him than to any other man is the popularity of their works in this country due. Indeed, Mr. Spencer's books, owing to his faith and vigor, were more widely read here than in England at first. He introduced Mr. Spencer to the American public when the author of "Social Statics" first came here to lecture.

In 1871 he planned the International Scientific Series, arranging for the publication of the works in New York, London, Paris, and Leipsic, the arrangement being subsequently extended to St. Petersburg and Milan. The project was based on the idea of payment to authors from the sales in all countries. Up to the present time 57 volumes of the series have been issued. In 1872 he established the Popular Science Monthly, of which he was the editor, and his brother, William J. Youmans, assistant editor. As a member of the Century Club and like associations he was most popular and very widely respected, and the sixty-five years of his laborious and earnest life have borne rich harvest for his fellow-men.

THOMAS POWELL, a veteran journalist and author, and for more than thirty years a member of Frank Leslie's Editorial Staff, died on the 13th inst. He was born in London in 1809, and, when quite young, made for himself a name in the literary world of England. He came to this country in 1849 with Frank Leslie, taking a position on the staff of the new publishing house, which he retained-though working intermittently since 1880-up to the day of his death. He was the first editor of Frank Leslie's Weekly, which was started in 1855. In 1857 he became the editor-in-chief of Frank Leslie's Family Magazine (changing its name afterward to Frank Leslie's Ladies Magazine), and held that post until 1869. wrote continuously for all the firm's publications, though occupying himself also with a mass of outside work. Mr. Powell published in New York, in 1849, a book on "The Living Authors of Great Britain." In 1850, a companion volume appeared on "The Living Authors of America." "Pictures of the Living Authors of Britain," a volume of reminiscences much like the first, was printed in 1851. He wrote a romance, without a date, called "The Ambassador's Daughter" and a great many short stories. He was the author, too, of the pseudonymous "Pierce Pungent's Chat," which appeared in 1858, and of "Pierce Pungent's Proverbs." His last work was a series of chats in Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine, called "Leaves From My Life." They treated of literary men and things in London during the 'thirties.' of these papers of reminiscences are still unpublished.

SIR THOMAS MAY, of Louisiana, has just died Thomas P. May was a wealthy in London. sugar-planter of Louisiana before the war and an avowed Union man. He was a personal friend of Secretary Chase, and under him held the office of United States Sub-Treasurer at New Orleans. In 1863, he established the New Orleans Times, in the interest of Chase for the Presidency. He lost a great portion of his wealth soon thereafter, and retired permanently from politics, devoting himself to literary pursuits. He published, through the Petersons, a novel, "The Earl of Mayfield," which ran through several editions; also, the "Prince of Breffny" and a few minor works. He held "The Earl of Mayfield" to be autobiographical, and advanced a claim of heirship in a title and some English estates.

PROF. EDWARD OLNEY, for twenty-four years occupying the chair of mathematics in Michigan State University, died on the 16th inst. Prof. Olney was born at Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y., July 24, 1827, and was a lineal descendant of Thomas Olney, a follower of Roger Williams. He was author of the mathematical series published by Sheldon & Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A REVISED and enlarged edition of Doran's "Annals of the Stage" has been undertaken in England.

Brentano Bros., 5 Union Square, N. Y., have issued in neat pamphlet form a reprint of Gladstone's essay on "Locksley Hall Sixty Years After," from the Nineteenth Century.

Another novel by F. Marion Crawford is to appear in the Nouvelle Revue, the proprietors of The Atlantic having declined to permit the simultaneous publication of "Paul Patoff," This story is entitled "Marzio's Crucifix," and it will be published in book-form by the Macmillans.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, Boston, has begun the Proudhoun Library, which is to comprise in about fifty volumes the writings of the great French economist. The first part begins the "System of Economical Contradictions, or the philosophy of misery," translated by Mr. B. R. Tucker. The parts are twenty-five cents or three dollars a year.

The swindler, known to the trade as B, Schaff, who committed suicide in his cell while imprisoned in the St. Louis jail, left a letter giving an account of his life and downward experiences, stating that he was born in Schleswig-Holstein in 1863, and signed Waldemar, Earl of Buchheim, alias B. Schaff, alias H. Schmidt.

We learn that an important addition has just been made to Worcester's Unabridged Dictionary, consisting of a New Pronouncing Biographical Dictionary of nearly 12,000 personages, and a New Pronouncing Gazetteer of the World, noting and locating over 20,000 places. The publishers also claim to have recently added 12,500 words.

AT a meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade held on the 11th inst. the following-named officers were elected: President, H. B. Barnes; first vice-president, Samuel I. Knight; second vice-president, C. A. Clapp; treasurer, Alexander Agar. Mr. James Potts was elected trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. C. F. A. Hinrichs. Mr. Agar gave notice that at the next meeting he should move to amend the title so as to make it "The Booksellers' and Stationers' Board of Trade."

D. LOTHROP & Co. are to be congratulated upon obtaining the services of two men whose standing in the trade is acknowledged to be due solely to their energy and special talents. In February Mr. E. S. Brooks, who has for some time filled an important position on the editorial staff of St. Nicholas, will go to Boston to assume the entire editorial supervision of the publications of the house; and Mr. W. H. Arnold, who has for some years had the book department of Wanamaker's mammoth establishment under his management, will take charge of the business department. The literary taste of Mr. Brooks is well known, and his experience in making selections for publication makes him a reliable adviser. Certainly, with his good judgment and cultured taste to select what shall be published, and Mr. Arnold's successful experience in making what is published sell, we may look to see D. Lothrop & Co. stride ahead even faster than they have been doing thus far. Their great success has pointed to good leadership, and the greatest proof of such leadership is the procuring of these thoroughly efficient co-workers.

LIBRARY LIST.

The RECORD Number of the Library Journal for 1887 (January and February double number) will contain a full list of all American public libraries of 1000 or more volumes, arranged by States, but classified by type according to size (50,000, 10,000, 5000, or less volumes), and with the name of the librarian or reporting officer. These features will not appear in the Government list to be issued later in the year.

A select list of leading English and foreign libraries, possibly also a list of important American private libraries may be added.

The number will contain other important features, including an account of the library work of the Bureau of Education, with portraits of Gen. Eaton and Commissioner Dawson. Probably also a reprint of the American Library Association cataloguing rules, its specifications for library binding, etc.

This list will be invaluable to publishers and dealers in books, stationers, manufacturers, etc. The number will not be sold separately (except at a greatly advanced price), but is included in the subscription price of the Library Journal for 1887, with the Index to Periodicals and Literary News as supplements, five dollars. If issued separately, later, the List will be priced at three dollars. Subscriptions should be forwarded promptly.

As this number will be in constant use in libraries and elsewhere, its advertising space ($25 per page) will be especially valuable. Publishers' advertising is not solicited for regular numbers of the LIBRARY JOURNAL.

ARRANGED:

- I. All firms in a General Alphabet; with full information in regard to their nature, their specialties etc.; firm changes of Publishers, Manufacturing Stationers, Jobbers, etc.; the approximate commercial standing and the present Post Office Address of all firms, etc.;
- II. Digest of the Trade Lists of the various Book Publishers:
- III. Digest of the Trade Lists of the Manufacturing and Jobbing Stationers, and the Blank Book and Paper Makers:
- IV. Geographically, according to States and Towns;
- V. According to Specialties of firms represented;
- VI. Theory and Practice of the Book and Stationery Trade: Hints and Suggestions to Book. sellers, News Dealers and Stationers; Trade Bibliographies, Trade Journals, etc.

Giving the present and former firm names of Publishing Houses, with cross references, and if these firms issue descriptive catalogues or trade price-lists, stating whether the latter are contained in the "Trade-List Annual," 1878 to 1886, and in which years of the "Annual" these lists appear. Also indicating such firms enumerated therein as have gone out of business, and from whom the publications of the more important publishers who are no longer in business, may now be obtained; the present and former firm-names of the Manufacturing and Jobbing Stationers, and whether they issue trade-lists, etc., etc., etc.

Containing also a key to the approximate financial standing of every firm embodied therein, based on the latest commercial reports. With several copious, systematical and analytical indices.

All information contained in this Directory being the result of many years of practical experience and research, chiefly received from or verified by the enumerated firms themselves. Forming a convenient and practical Manual for all Publishers, Booksellers, Newsdealers, Stationers or Librarians.

The last sets of the great AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876 were sold in 1886 at $60, over double the original price. The sets we recently bought back have been sold, but we file orders for others which we may find, at $60, less allowance proportioned to the wear.

The American Catalogue, 1876–1884, of which the edition is also limited, is going out of print. It is now priced at $12.50 paper parts, $15 half morocco; later this price will be raised. It is worth twice its cost each year in any library or book-store.

We have some extra copies of the Subject-volume only of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1876. This contains, classified by subjects, all but the Novels, Poems, etc., and is very useful by itself. Price $15 half morocco.

Annual Catalogue, 1886.

THIS catalogue will be issued as early in February as photowork and printing can be completed. It will comprise (1) full titles and descriptive notes of all books recorded in 1886, re-arranged in one author-alphabet (of about 225 pages) and reproduced by photo-process; (2) short-title index by author, title, and subject, giving date of record (of about 75 pages); (3), supplementary index; (4) annual lists of publishers.

It will be an octavo of over 350 pages, ranging with Publishers' Weekly or English Catalogue. Price, to subscribers, $2.50 in sheets (for interleaving), $3.00, half leather, style of American Catalogue; after publication, $3.00 and $3.50.

The price charged is necessary to cover the large cost of photographic reproduction and setting of index.

The editions will be limited to immediate demand, and the type of index will be immediately distributed and photo-plates broken up. Subscriptions should be sent now.

Subscribers to the TRADE LIST ANNUAL will please note that it is not proposed to continue in it the reprint of the Weekly Record, which is replaced in better form by the Annual Catalogue. They should therefore make sure of the latter.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 29, 1887.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

THE BOOKS OF 1886.

THE year just closed was one of the most active known in the history of the book-trade. More books were published, and more no doubt sold, and certainly more received and recorded at this office, than in any previous year of our experience. Our summary shows that we entered in our "Weekly Record" the title of 4676 books -646 in excess of the whole number recorded in 1885, and 588 more than in any preceding year. This large increase of publications is pretty equally proportioned among the different departments, almost all exhibiting important additions. The most notable contributions by American writers are in the classifications of Fiction, Fine Arts, History, Biography, Description and Travel, Political and Social Science. The strong present interest in the labor problem and the tariff question is reflected in the many thoughtful works embraced in the latter department. American and English fiction were also influenced by the general discussion of social questions. while to the same tendency may be ascribed the remarkable revival of Russian literature, a marked feature of the year. History and Biography are largely composed of war monographs, a subject which seems to take on new proportions each year. Under Fine Arts, the strong showing of illustrated works of permanent merit, demonstrates most undeniably the remarkable progress made in American art and in American book-making.

The development of the crude holiday giftbook of early days, an abortive horror of inferior cuts, poor paper, and showy binding, into the elaborate and beautiful volume of to-day, is something of which we may be justly proud. Our art-books may now be offered in competition with the best works of any country. In fact they far surpassed this year the few examples of foreign illustration imported during the holiday season. The popularity of the photogravure process, brought to a high state of perfection in the United States during the year, and used extensively in the reproduction of artist's work, limited our field seriously in our Christmas Weekly, scarcely permitting us to do full justice to the best and most characteristic efforts of our native artists. We recognize the process, nevertheless, as one of the best mediums yet introduced for reproducing the artist's work in all the beauty of original outline and light and shade, and one that has come to stay.

The growth of the literature of fiction here and in England is decidedly alarming. The figures show that it composed almost a fourth of the whole literature of 1886. The tax it has been upon the resources of this office is, we fear, but slightly appreciated. Throughout the last quarter of the year, when the great bulk of the year's publications poured in upon us, the novels met with the same prompt treatment as less ephemeral works. On the week of issue, without an exception we may say, the current novels, no matter how numerous, received entry and descriptive notice in the "Weekly Record." It is well known we do not attempt to be more than useful-to place at once in the hands of the bookseller a brief but comprehensive account of the purpose and the subject of the book it is his business to handle, and his best interest to know something about; but that our usefulness sometimes competes with the glittering generalities of current criticism is proven by the very general appropriation to which our modest notes are subjected by our brother reviewers of greater and lesser note and inferior industry, and as often without acknowledgment as with. We do not complain; we simply desire to gratefully acknowledge a delicate compliment.

Of the 4676 titles which we recorded 2778 were taken from books received at this office, and 1898 from written or printed data sent us, or industriously compiled from unofficial sources. Of the 2778 books received at least 600 were issues of the better class of the cheap libraries, which, being almost exclusively reprints of standard novels, are not noticed. Therefore while the weekly average of books received was about 53, of those noticed it was 41. The weekly average of the whole number of books recorded was 81. The Government publications are not included in our books of the year, nor the issues of the minor cheap libraries, but we have, as formerly, included new editions, reprints both in paper and cloth and importations. The many new editions and reprints swell the figures in several departments far in excess of their importance. This is notably so in Law, Literary History and Miscellany, which includes collected works, Education, Poetry and Medical Science. Theology and Religion and Juvenile works, which stand high in the list, really include a majority of new and noteworthy books. Following are the books of the year classified under subjects as closely as it was possible for us to approximate. The figures of the books of 1885 are also given for comparison.

FICTION.

FICTION, as in many previous years, takes the leading place in our review of the literature of the year. The excessive number of novels published from both American and English writers, would seem to argue a diminition in the quality of the work. In American fiction, however, the additions have, in the majority of cases, been noteworthy, and strongly characteristic of the new growing school of imaginative literature, distinguished as much for its literary style as its originality. Our principal representative writers in this line, Henry James and William D. Howells, were unusually industrious, each turning out two novels in 1886, all bearing the stamp of the old vigor and genius. Mr. James' first book "The Bostonians," failed in being a popular success, through the powerful realism which is its most valuable quality. Its bitter satire and merciless delineations made for it more enemies than friends. Its power, however, cannot be ignored, and it will no doubt remain one of his most interesting works for the student of human nature, if not for the ordinary novel reader. In "The Princess Casamassima," he comes nearer to pleasing the popular taste. Though the book deals chiefly with social and political questions now uppermost in every one's mind, it has an element of love and home-life as found in the lower walks of London life which appeals directly to the reader's sympathy and humanity. It is Mr. James' first attempt to illustrate the poverty and dissatisfaction of the English working classes, and is a remarkable evidence of his careful elab-Mr. Howells orateness and fine observation. year's work consisted of "Indian Summer," and "The Minister's Charge," both excellent specimens of his clever kindly humor, and his own inimitable style. "Indian Summer," a charming story of a pair of elderly lovers in which the events take place in Florence, gives the author an opportunity of again vitalizing his delightful memories of Italian life. Miss Mur free ("Charles Egbert Craddock") again found in the Tennessee Mountains and their environs with their odd mountaineers and "moonshiners," material for a novel, "In the Clouds." The Southern warmth and feeling which distin guished her former efforts are even more pro nounced in this work. In "John Bodewin's Tes timony," Mary Hallock Foote tells, with an al most masculine vigor, the story of a disputed mining claim in California. In a different veir entirely from any of the novels quoted, yet hav ing for themselves, a large and enthusiastic con stituency, are the works of Frank R. Stockton "The Late Mrs Null," and "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine" - both o which made immense successes, and delighted thousands of readers with their original droller and most excellent fooling. F. Marion Crawford was not as prolific as in other years. His record shows but one novel, "A Tale of a Lonely Par ish," a somewhat sad and morbid narration of the events of a sleepy English village, whose even tenor is interrupted by a tragical heart history Bret Harte is quite up to the old standard is "Snow-Bound at Eagle's," in which he intro duces again his romantic and fascinating villains and realizes, with the eye of a painter, the bol "The Ma mountain scenery of the Sierras. donna of the Tubs" and "Burglars in Paradise are charming examples of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' literary gifts, combining in an unique way the apparently opposite though nearly related qualities of mirth and pathos. The latter story is a continuation of "An Old Maid's Paradise." "The Story of Margaret Kent," published under the pseudonym of "Henry Hays," but generally attributed to the authorship of Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk, made quite a sensation. Dealing as it does in an unconventional way with the divorce question and literary Bohemianism in New York City, it attracted many readers. It just falls short of It is unusually full of wit being a great novel. and keen observation, but misses its opportunity in a weak, illogical treatment. There is a tender interest surrounding "Zeph," as the unfinished work of the lamented "H. H." The characters are plain working people, and the subject patient, uncomplaining love—but all treated in the exquisite way characteristic of everything Mrs. Jackson did. Her death was one of the sad events of the early part of the year, which should not go unnoted. "Justina," an addition to the third No Name Series is a strong novel, yet unclaimed publicly by its writer. "A Victorious Defeat," by Wolcott Balestier, is an exceptionally careful piece of literary work, and a romantic study of Moravianism. "A Moonlight Boy," recalled the odd humor of Charles Dickens and added largely to the fame of E. W. Howe as a novelist. Bunner's "Midge," a dainty, poetical sketch of the old French quarter of New York City, with a most lovable, bewildering heroine, was a surprise to the poet's admirers. "The House at High Bridge," by Edgar Fawcett, also local in color, but realistic rather than poetic, is likewise the work of one of our younger band of writers, equally famed as a poet. Julian Hawthorne sent forth two books-the first, "John Parmelee's Curse," being a depressing study of the opium habit; the second, embracing two short stories, "Trial of Gideon" and "Countess Almara's Murder." Joaquin Miller was heard from in "The Destruction of Gotham," and Arthur Sherburne Hardy in "The Wind of Destiny," which failed to attract the attention of his first novel, "But Yet a Woman." Robert Grant put his name to "A Romantic Young Lady," but did not acknowledge "Face to Face" a strong original story, in which is discussed the problems of labor and capital, generally accepted as coming from his pen. Foran's "The Other Side" views these same problems from the laborer's standpoint. Mrs. Helen Campbell, in "Miss Melinda's Opportunity," treats also, through the medium of fiction, a kindred topic, the trials of the working girl. Mrs. Elizabeth Gilbert Martin's "Whom God Hath Joined," has an evident Roman Catholic tendency in favor of making the marriage tie indissoluble. Charles Dudley Watner's "Their Pilgrimage" is a delightful mixture of the novel and book of travels, and Mrs. Hamlin's "Politician's Daughter" is a story of the day in which politics and politicians are described by the pen of a keen observer, and one evidently "to the manner born." The American additions to the Leisure Hour Series were "After His Kind," by John Coventry, and Annie Robertson Macfarlane's "Children of the Earth." Mrs. J. H. Walworth produced three quite readable books, "The New Man at Rossmere," "Without Blemish," and "Old Fulkerson's Clerk," and in three novels, West Point and the Army were leading subjects, namely, Coulter's "Mr. Desmond, U. S. A.," Cervus' "Cut," and "Marion's Faith," by C. King, being a sequel to "The Colonel's Daughter." William Allen Butler, chiefly known to fame as the author of "Nothing to Wear," unsuccessfully attempted fiction in a volume called "Domesticus." which was not without merit as a social satire. Several strong tendency novels, that we have but brief space to characterize, are comprised in the following group: "Constance of Acadia," a tale of the time of the Reformation in the French and English possessions in America;" " Katy of Catoctin," by George Alfred Townsend, a story of the Civil War and the assassination of Lincoln; Henderson's "The Prelate," strongly colored by the author's sympathy with the Old Catholic movement in Europe; "Towards the Gulf," a romance of Louisiana and the admixture of races; "The Man who was Guilty," by Flora Haines Longhead, illustrating the uncharitableness of society to the reformed criminal; and M. G. McClelland's "Princess," another of the many works of fiction in which the question of divorce is a leading motive. Other novels which, it is not possible to pass unnoticed, but which, in the "flood" of literature of this kind, we can do no more than name, are: Charlotte Dunning's "A Step Aside;" Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "Roland Blake;" George H. Picard's "Old Boniface;" Mrs. G. E. Spencer's "A Plucky One;" Edwin Lassetter Bynner's "Agnes Surriage;" Maurice Thompson's "A Banker of Bankerville;" Putnam P. Bishop's "Psychologist;" R. B. Roosevelt's "Love and Luck;" Wharton's "Hannibal of New York;" Margaret Holmes' "The Chamber over the Gate;" Edmund Pendleton's "A Conventional Bohemian;" James M. Ludlow's "Captain of the Janizaries;" Miss Virginia W. Johnson's "Tulip Place;" Harold Brydges' "Fortnight in Heaven," Clara Louise Burnham's "Next Door;" Mrs. Amelia E. Barr's "Last of the Macallisters," "A Daughter of Fife," and "The Bow of Orange Ribbon;" Mrs. Dahlgren's "The Lost Name;" Barrett Wendell's "Rankell's Remains;" Keenan's "The Aliens;" Wertheimber's "Muramasa Blade;" "The Terrace of Mon Desir;" a novel of Russian life; Sidney Luska's "Mrs. Peixada;" Miss A. K. Green's "The Mill Mystery;" Miss Rose E. Cleveland's "The Long Run;" Maud Howe's "Atalanta in the South;" "A Demigod;" Roe's "He Fell in Love with his Wife;" "Inquirendo Island," a half satire and half novel, published anonymously, and Mrs. J. Gregory Smith's "Atla," a story of the lost island.

Short stories still retain their popularity, and were published by a number of prominent writers during the year. Among collections most worthy of mention are Lillie Chace Wyman's "Poverty Grass and Other Stories;" Marion Wilcox's "Real People;" Stimson's "Sentimental Calendar;" Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney's "Homespun Yarns;" Sarah Orne Jewett's "A White Heron;" Brander Matthews' "A Secret of the Sea;" Stockton's "The Christmas Wreck;" Ventura and Shevitch's "Misfits and Remnants;" Charlotte Dunning Wood's "Cabin and Gondola;" Howard Seely's "A Ranchman's Stories;" Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Perdita and Other Stories;" Dr. Hammond's and Clara Lanza's " Tales of Eccentric Life," and volumes fifth and sixth of "Tales from Many Sources," containing contributions from English as well as American authors.

Two delightful books—Miss Alcott's "Jo's Boys" and Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy"—written for young people, but which found as many readers among the older people, deserve some mention in the history of the year. They properly belong to Juvenile Literature, which is full of other charming, successful books, it is not possible for us to summarize, but to which we tried to do justice in our Christmas number of the WEEKLY.

Everything almost in the way of English Fiction, whether from writers of great or little fame, was reprinted here. The names of great novelists are, however, in the minority in our summary, which displays an apparently endless enumeration of bright, clever stories, singularly devoid of distinctive characteristics. Collins, one of the few of the older school of English novelists still remaining, wrote two books during the year- "The Evil Genius" and "The Guilty River," both in line with his earlier works, and depending, like them, upon a mystery admirably sustained for their chief interest. Mrs. Oliphant's reputation as an indefatigable worker and unrivalled delineator of English country life was increased by three works: "A Country Gentleman," "A House Divided Against Itself," and "The Son of His Father." Charlotte M. Yonge, another of the famous ones, wrote "Chantry House" and "A Modern Telemachus," the latter a story of Spain and France in the 18th century; and Miss Mulock added "King Arthur," a lovely pathetic little story, to the long list of exquisite creations from her pen which have delighted the present generation. A thin volume of papers "About Money and Other Things," also her work, may be mentioned here. One of the most talked-about books was R. L. Stevenson's "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The pulpit joined the press in commending this startling allegory. Mr. Stevenson also produced "Prince Otto" and "Kidnapped" a book more for boys than older readers, but full of a naive and very enjoyable Scotch humor. Thomas Hardy's "Mayor of Casterbridge," carried the reader into an out-of-the-way corner of England, "far from the madding crowd," and revelled in depicting ancient and now obsolete customs and singular incidents. W. E. Norris was most like Thackeray in "My Friend Jim," a little society sketch at once satirical and pathetic; but his most ambitious and lengthy work was "A Bachelor's Blunder." "Her Own Doing" is also a little story from his pen. The last novel from Mary Cecil Hay, wriften it might be said on her deathbed, is "A Wicked Girl." W. Clark Russell's "Voyage to the Cape" is another of his wonderful narrations of shipwreck and life on an ocean steamer. "No Saint," by Adeline Sergeant, and Mrs. Walford's "History of a Week" were the English contributions to the Leisure Hour Series. The author of "John Inglesant," Mr. J. H. Shorthouse, portrayed another ideal specimen of manhood in "Sir Percival "-a work of less power than his first effort, but embued with the same religious fervor and Jean Ingelow's "John Jerome," mysticism. called by herself "a book without beginning," is quite a contrast to the conventional novel. It is suggestive and instructive, besides being a love tale. Novels that have enjoyed considerable popularity, but which it is impossible to characterize are: Mrs. E. Lynn Linton's "Paston Carew, Millionaire and Miser;" James Payn's "The Heir of the Ages;" Ouida's "A House Party;" "A Mental Struggle," and "Lady Valworth's Diamonds," by the Duchess; and the five stories from the fertile pen of G. M. Fenn, namely, "The Chaplain's Craze," "Morgan's Horror," "This Man's Wife," "The Vicar's People," and "Double Cunning." In the same classification may be placed F. J. Fargus' ("Hugh Conway") posthumous publications, "A Cardinal Sin," "Living or Dead" and "Bound by a Spell;" and Miss Braddon's "One Thing Needful;" Westall's "Phantom City" and "Two Pinches of Snuff;" Hawley Smart's "Bad to Beat;" Farjeon's "The Bright Star of Life" and "Aunt Parker;" Mrs. Alexander's sparkling society comedy, "Beaton's Bargain;" Mrs. H. Lovett Cameron's stories of love and adventure in the sporting field, "In a Grass Country," "Pure Gold," and "Vera Nevill;" Katharine S. Macquoid's "Sir James Appleby" and her charming picture of French country life, " John Wentworth;" Georgiana M. Craik's "A Daughter of People;" Rhoda Broughton's "Doctor Cupid;" and Francillon's "Golden Bells." An English lady, Mrs. H. E. S. Stannard, masquerading under the pen name of "John Strange Winter," made quite a reputation as a dashing writer of army life and adventure through several little books-" Cavalry Life," "Pluck," "A Man of Honor," and "Army Society." Justin H. McCarthy burlesqued "Our Sensation Novel" in a wildly improbable narration with that title, and wrote seriously a thrillingly sensational tale of shipwreck under the name of "Doom." Andrew Lang made his first appearance as a novelist in "The Mark of Cain," and was also the author of a volume of short stories" In the Wrong Paradise." Socialism played a large part in the motives of three very strong novels, "Demos," "Francis," by Dal Vero, and W. H. Mallock's "The Old Order Changes." The second book is charmingly fresh and natural and by a new author-the first, "Demos," is also the product of a new writer who prefers to remain unknown, but who wields a most effective pen in behalf of the workingman. F. Anstey Guthrie is deliciously amusing in "A Fallen Idol;" Grant Allen, in "For Mamie's Sake," depicted a heroine who excited the critics' adverse criticism; Walter Besant delighted his many admirers with "Children of Gibeon," a modern English story, "Dorothy Forster," a tale of Northumberland in the 18th century, and "The World Went Very Well Then," an old-fashioned tale of a hundred years ago; L. A. Tadema proved he could write as well as paint in "Love's Martyr;" Edward Jenkins, the author of "Ginx's Baby" and other social satires, successfully ventured into fiction in "The Secret of Her Life;" Panton's "Dear Life" is of the sensational order, but well told and reminiscent of the Indian Mutiny; "Golden Mediocrity," by Mrs. Eugénie Hamerton, is a realistic tale of French country life, full of promise; "Vernon Lee" (Miss Violet Paget) is fantastic and uncanny in "A Phantom Lover," and depressingly pessimistic in "Ottilie."

Following are a number of excellent stories, to which want of space will not permit us to give a word, and yet which cannot be overlooked in the important publications of the year: Baring-Gould's "Court Royal" and "Little Tu'penny;" Buchanan's "That Winter Night;" Edna Lyall's "Donovan" and its sequel "We Two," "In the Golden Days," and "Won by Waiting;" David Christie Murray's "Rainbow Gold," "Aunt Rachel," and "Cynic Fortune;" Mrs. Annie Edwards' "A Girton Girl" and "A Playwright's Daughter;" Gibbon's "Clare of Claresmede;" Mrs. Forrester's "Once Again;" Florence Warden's "Doris' Fortune;" Forrest's "The Touchstone of Peril;" Minto's "The Crack of Doom;" Emily Spender's "Until the Day Breaks;" Macdonald's "What's Mine's Mine;" Emma Marshall's "No. 13, or the Story of the Lost Vestal;" Bosboom-Toussaint's "Major Frank;" Maxwell Grey's "Silence of Dean Maitland;" Mrs. J. Kent Spender's "Trust Me;" Mrs. Cashel Hoey's "A Stern Chase;" Flora L. Shaw's "Colonel Cheswick's Campaign;" "Hurrish, a Study," by Emily Lawless; "The Head Station" by Mrs. Campbell Praed; "In the old Palazzo" by Gertrude Forde; Evan Stanton's "Ruhainah;" "Pomegranate Seed," by the author of "The Two Miss Flemings;" and the "Memories of Arthur Hamilton, B.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, by his friend Christopher Carr."

The translations of novels from the Russian, German, French, and Spanish, are quite noteworthy. The remarkable interest awakened in Russian literature bore fruit in the issue in English of a number of the works of leading Russian. Tolstoi, Gogol, Dostoyevsky, and Tchernychewsky, hitherto scarcely known by name to American readers, found excellent interpretation at the hands of accomplished translators. The study of their works has been full of interest to the literary student. TolstoI has probably met with most general favor as being less complex in style and more in sympathy with English thought. His "War and Peace," in three parts, presents a brilliant panoramic view of the invasion of the Russian Empire by Napoleon; in "Childhood, Boyhood, and Youth," an exceptional insight is obtained of Russian home-life, through the medium of a good deal of autobiographical matter; "Anna Karénina," a novel of court-life of to-day at St. Petersburg, with all its accompanying vices and luxuriousness, shows Tolstof at his best. Gogol's versatility is illustrated in "St. John's Eve," a volume of short stories; "Taras Bulba," describing Russian life in the 16th century, and "Tchitchikoff's Journeys, or Dead Souls," a picture of provincial Russia before the emancipation of the serfs, and a biting satire upon the ways of men who place the getting of riches in advance of the methods. "Crime and Punishment," a powerfully realistic study of a murder, introduced Dostoyevsky to English readers, while Tchernychewsky, another of the modern school of thinkers who clothe their Nihilistic thoughts in the garb of fancy, had his chief novel translated under two titles by different translators. Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole called his work "A Vital Question," and Mr. B. R. Tucker his "What's to be Done." A volume of Turgénieff's short stories, "An Unfortunate Woman." completes a remarkable catalogue of Russian novels. French fiction was represented in many translations. The new edition of Balzac's works. begun in the previous year, was enriched by the publication of "Cousin Pons," "Eugene Grandet," and "Cæsar Birotteau." A fine literary quality is characteristic of the English text of these volumes, as it was of the first issues. Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Misérables," also received a new interpretation and a new and attractive dress. Russia was again the theme of Mme. Greville's pen in "Cleopatra," and French life the subject of her latest novel, "Count Xavier." Gustave Flaubert's "Salammbô," long ago classed among famous novels, was rendered into English. Daudet's charming Lettres de mon Moulin were issued under the title of "Stories of Provence," and Octave Feuillet's La Morte, under the name of "Aliette." Du Boisgobey's "Matapan Affair" and "A Fight for a Fortune," and D'Ennery's "Love's Martyr" are strongly sensational. German the harvest was not so great as in other years. Eckstein's latest books, "Aphrodite" and the "Chaldean Magician," delighted his many admirers. They are again studies of Grecian and Roman life before Christ-subjects he has long delighted in. Wilhelm Walloth's "King's Treasure-house," transported the reader to Egypt in the days of the Pharaohs, and Ernst von Wildenbruch's "Master of Tanagra" proved a charming little study also of ancient days. The four novels which follow illustrate modern German homelife chiefly, and complete the enumeration of important German translations. They are Ossip Schubin's "Gloria Victis," Winterfeld's "Matrimonial Agent of Potsdam," Ursula Zöge von Manteuffel's "Violetta," and Paul Lindau's "Klaus Bewer's Wife." The latter is an addition to the Leisure Hour Series. Spanish literature is delightfully represented in two romantic novels, "Pepita Ximenez," by Juan Valera, and "The Marquis of Peñalta," by Don Valdés.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

To the department of Theology and Religion there were many important contributions. While the figures fall short of the previous year, the notable works were proportionally as large. Among the leading American evidences of profound scholarship and research in religious thought are the Rev. Dr. C. A. Briggs' "Messianic Prophecy," the Rev. Dr. D. A. Randall's "Ham-Mishkan, the Wonderful Tent," and McIlvaine's "The Wisdom of the Apocalypse." The first and second works are studies based upon the Old Testament. Dr. Briggs demonstrates through the Messianic passages of the Old Testament the prediction of the fulfilment of redemption through Christ. Dr. Randall, as well known a traveller as a Biblical scholar, gives an account in the second work of the structure, signification, and spiritual lessons of the Mosaic Tabernacle erected in the wilderness of Sinai. third work is a new interpretation of the Apocalypse, growing out of a life-long study of the symbols of Christian and Oriental religions. Of equal importance are Dr. Andrews' "God's Revelations of Himself to Men," expository and in no way critical, and addressed to believers; Dr. J. W. Mendenhall's "Plato and Paul," a defence of Christianity from a philosophic standpoint; Rev. Dr. G. D. Armstrong's "The Two Books of Nature and Revelation Collated," a popular treatment of the subject by the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Norfolk, Va.; and Janes' "Study of Primitive Christianity," in which is traced the natural development of Christian dogma and ecclesiastical institutions. Sermons from all our popular divines filled various volumes. Mr. Beecher's concluding discourses on "Evolution and Religion" were offered in a second volume; Mr. Talmage's forcible utterances were gathered together under the titles of "Shots at Sundry Targets," "New Tabernacle Sermons," "The Marriage Ring," consisting of sermons on the duties of husbands and wives, and "The Battle for Bread," on the present all-absorbing subject of labor and capital. The fourth series of the Rev. Phillips Brooks' "Twenty Sermons," "Sermons" of Sam Jones, the Southern Evangelist, "Sermons on the International Sunday-School Lessons for 1887 by the Monday Club," Rev. Mortimer Blake's "Soundings," Rev. Joseph Cook's "Orient," the new volume of the Boston Monday Lectures, Rev. Arthur Brooks' "Life and Christ in the World," Rev. Dr. Leonard W. Bacon's "The Simplicity that is in Christ" and "Christ for To-day," international sermons by eminent preachers of the church in England and America, are all valuable and permanent additions to orthodox expository religious literature. "Universalism in America," a most important church history, was completed during the year in a second volume covering the period 1801-1886. The author is the Rev. Dr. R. Eddy. In the same line is the Rev. T. Armitage's "History of the Baptists;" "The People and Preachers in the Methodist Episcopal Church," found a graphic historian in Mr. James A. Wright, and W. Burnet Wright gave an allegorical and instructive description of the "Ancient Cities." James Freeman Clarke, the popular Unitarian minister, made a fresh study of "The Fourth Gospel," and discoursed eloquently on "Every-day Religion." He also published a series of essays on "Vexed Questions in Theology," and in connection with the Rev. Joseph Allen a volume of sermons and essays entitled "Modern Unitarianism." Another Boston liberal, Minot J. Savage, thoughtfully considered our troublesome "Social Problems," Theological questions in New England Congregationalism were discussed by Dr. Austin Phelps in "My Study," and by the editors of the Andover Review in "Progressive Orthodoxy." The lastnamed volume contains the chief evidence of "heterodoxy" upon which is based the famous trial now in progress of the professors of the Andover Theological Seminary, and is naturally invested with a special interest.

In a directly diverging line from these comparatively liberal doctrinal views is Dr. Shedd's "Doctrine of Endless Punishment," a hopeless Calvinistic picture of the sinners' future after death. The popular minister of the Fourth Presbyterian Church of New York, the Rev. W. M. Taylor, added a new volume to his attractive series of Biblical biographies, "Joseph the Prime Minister; "a biography equally worthy of note but as destructive to the traditions of Christianity as the former work is conservative, is Tredwell's "Sketch of the Life of Apollonius of Tyana," a contemporary of Jesus. The Bedell Lectures for 1886 were by Bishop Hugh Miller on the subject of "The World and the Logos;" "The Miraculous Element in the Gospels" was the subject of a course of lectures delivered on the Ely Foundation in Union Theological Seminary by Rev. Alexander Balmain Bruce, and Dr. Morgan Dix gave six lectures in Trinity Chapel on "The Gospel and Philosophy;" Lyman Abbott wrote a deeply interesting work, "In Aid of Faith;" Dr. Joseph A. Seiss embodied in "Right Life" some candid talks on vital themes; Rev. J. R. Miller's "Silent Times" is a help in reading the Bible so as to incorporate its teachings into life; Richard Newton's "Bible Warnings" is strong and zealous; the Rev. Julian K. Smyth's "Footprints of the Saviour," is a series of devotional studies on the life and nature of Our Lord; Solomon Schindler's "Messianic Expectations and Modern Judaism" is a work of marked ability and unusual depth and breadth; and "Mechanics and Faith," by Charles Talbot Porter, argues ingeniously that spiritual truths are as susceptible of positive proof as scientific ones; Dr. Hovey's exhaustive commentary on the New Testament was enriched by the fifth volume on "The Gospel of John." A Biblical study of fresh and original interest is Rev. Alfred Lee's "Eventful Nights in Bible History;" Mrs. Eva Munson Smith's compilation, "Woman in Sacred Song," is a collection of hymns and religious poems written by women. In this classification must be included likewise "D. L. Moody at Home," and "Ten Days with D. L. Moody," containing brief biographical details of the famous evangelist, but largely made up of his sermons and those of his fellow-revivalists. "Light on the Hidden Way," with an introduciion by James Freeman Clarke, is difficult to characterize, being a strong combination of imagination and religious fervor. It deals with the tortures of souls in the unknown world who have died without reaching their highest aspirations. Belonging more strictly to ethics is Rev. Henry Smith's critical essay, "Spinoza and his Environment."

The reprints of religious works from English and Continental authors were not as extensive as usual nor as notable. Out of many desirable works it is difficult to point out more than a very limited number of really important ones. Canon Farrar's "Sermons and Addresses Delivered in America" is invested with a strong home interest, and illustrates in a most interesting manner this noted divine's magnetic style and clear common-sense. "The History of Interpretation," the Bampton Lectures for 1885, also from his pen, and a scholarly and exhaustive exposition of the subject, was issued in 1886. The Rev. Joseph Parker's "The People's Bible," an immense work, exhaustive and thorough to an extraordinary extent, of which the initial volume was given out in 1885, received three additions during the past year, volumes 2, 3, and 4, treating in a popular and eloquent style of the Old Testament books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. Spurgeon's "Storm Signals" was marked by the peculiar methods of the great English exhorter, and "My Sermon Notes" proved useful and suggestive to many theological students. The three religions of China-Confucianism, Buddhism, and Taoismformed the subject of a large volume by the Rev. Hampden C. Du Bose, under the striking title of "The Dragon, Image, and Demon." The author was for fourteen years a missionary at Soochow, and drew all his dark facts from personal observation. Another volume of "Meditations," this time upon the Gospels for the minor festivals of Christ, came from the Rev. Meyrick E. Goulburn. Like the previous meditations, it is profoundly devout. The subject of the Hulsean Lectures for 1885 was "St. Austin and His Place in the History of Christian Thought." They were the work of the Rev. W. Cunningham. The Rev. J. Cunningham delivered the Croall Lectures for 1886, "The Growth of the Church in its Organizations and Institutions." Religious biography and literary history received a comprehensive addition in Duffield's "English Hymns, Their Authors and History." Young men had an incisive series of "talks" addressed to them in Dr. Davidson's "Forewarned-Forearmed," and the little people's religious welfare was looked after in Rev. Wilmot Buxton's "Parable Sermons to Children." Dr. Buxton also wrote a volume of sermons for older people, "The Life of Duty." From the German, translations were made of Gunsaulus' "Transfiguration of Christ," Scriver's Gotthold's "Emblems"—a homely, useful book that has gone through many editions in the original. Hunolt's "Christian State of Life," also from the German, embraces instructive ser mons for the Roman Catholic. We have to me tion here the translation of Dr. Zeller's "Outlines of the History of Greek Philosophy," philosophy and religion being near akin, and there being too few works of a philosophical nature to make a separate department. Tolstol's "What I Believe," from the Russian, is the same book published a previous year as "My Religion." From the French came Roux's interesting "Meditations of a Parish Priest," and the first volume of the third revised edition of Godet's "Commentary on the Gospel of John." The author of "The Evolution of Contemporary Religious Thought," a valuable scholarly work, has a French name, Count Goblet d'Alviella, but whether he is one of our adopted citizens or not we cannot say. Molinos' "Spiritual Guide," introduced to English readers a little Italian work of the 17th century, whose piety and wisdom has comforted several generations.

HISTORY.

HISTORY, although falling largely behind Theology and Fiction in numbers, embraces an unusual list of important works and particularly from American writers. The recent war is the inciting cause not only of many of the more prominent works, but of many of the lesser ones. The deaths during the year of two of our great generals and statesmen, lend a painful interest to the narratives they have bequeathed us of the parts they played in the Civil War. General John A. Logan's "The Great Conspiracy," an introductory volume to a history of the writer's experience in the field, goes into the dark intrigues and secret causes of the war in a way never before attempted. "McClellan's Own Story of the War for the Union," although strongly colored, as was expected, by the general's own embittered personality, ranks nevertheless as one of the most important war histories yet written. A little book that is naturally recalled here is George Ticknor Curtis' "McClellan's Last Service to the Republic," a warm tribute to McClellan's character and services. Other contributions in this same line of work are "The Virginia Campaign of General Pope in 1862," General Francis A. Walker's "History of the Second Army Corps in the Army of the Potomac," Todd's "The 70th Highlanders, N. Y. Vols., in the War of Rebellion, 1861-65," Frank Wilkeson's "Recollections of a Private Soldier in the Army of the Potomac," and Willis J. Abbot's delightful account of the "Blue Jackets of '61." Justin Winsor completed volumes 2 and 3 of his voluminous "Narrative and Critical History of America," and the historian of the West, Hubert Howe Bancroft, added to his wonderful chain of histories of the Pacific States of North America a "History of Alaska" and the fourth volume of his "California." Local histories of more than local interest are Waddell's

"Annals of Augusta Co., Va.," Hittell's "History of California," and Royce's "California" in the American Commonwealth Series, and Frederick L. Billon's "Annals of St. Louis" in its early days under the French and Spanish dominations. The Indian wars of the far West during the past fifty years are told with many thrilling details in Dunn's "Massacres of the Mountains." A supplementary volume may be found in Captain Bourke's "Apache Campaign in the Sierra Madre," which repeats the horrors of Indian warfare in an account of the expedition of 1883 in pursuit of a hostile tribe. Doubleday's "Reminiscences of the Filibuster War in Nicaragua" adds new facts to an almost forgotten episode in American history, and "The Volcano Under the City" graphically describes the draft riots in New York in 1862, as seen by a volunteer special. An interesting Revolutionary monograph is Lossing's "Two Spies"-Nathan Hale and John Andre; Gilmore's "Rear-Guard of the Revolution," revives the memory of two Western pioneers, James Robertson and John Sevier, and is rich in romantic adventure in the settlement of Tennessee. Early Puritan days are celebrated in Samuel Adams Drake's "The Making of New England, 1580-1643." Coming nearer the present generation Col. Snead relates " The Fight for Missouri " from the election of Lincoln to the death of Preston's "Documents Illustrative of American History, 1606-1863," is an exceedingly useful and valuable compilation. "The German Soldier in the Wars of the United States" has had his record satisfactorily investigated by J. G. Rosengarten, in a volume under that title. Rev. C. P. Lyford aimed to throw some light on "The Mormon Problem." Livermore's "Republic of New Haven," Plongeon's "Sacred Mysteries Among the Mayas and the Quiches 11,500 Years Ago," a work of profound research, and Rev. C. E. Little's "Historical Lights," a compilation for literary workers, may be mentioned here. Foreign affairs and characters were made the subjects of works by American writers. Dr. Henry M. Baird, the accomplished author of "The Rise of the Huguenots in France" and "The Huguenot Emigration to America," again took up a favorite theme in "The Huguenots and Henry of Navarre." In two handsome volumes he gives an account of the persistent struggle of the French Huguenots for religious liberty. This is one of the histories of the year of special value and of charming style and of a distinctive literary character. "France Under Mazarin" was studied by James Breck Perkins, the result being embodied in two thick volumes, which also include a review of the administration of Richelieu. Richard Lodge's "History of Modern Europe" extends from the capture of Constantinople by the Turks to the Treaty of Berlin, 1878. Prof. Seeley in a "Short History of Napoleon the First" expressed views by no means favorable to the French Emperor. Comte de Paris' description of the "Battle of Gettysburg" from his "History of the Civil War in America," was published in a separate volume. The Story of the Nations Series, begun in 1885 with histories of Greece and Rome, received nine additions during the past year. The works are all distinctively American, although in many cases the American author had a foreign collaborateur. Their romantic texts and popular style made them deservedly successful. "The Story of the Jews" was written by Prof. James K. Hosmer; "Chaldea," by Z. A. Ragozin; "Germany," by Baring-Gould and Arthur Gilman; "Carthage," by Church and Gilman; "Hungary," by Vámbéry and Heilprin; "The Moors in Spain," by Stanley Lane Poole and Arthur Gilman; "Spain," by E. E. and Susan Hale; "Norway," by H. H. Boyesen; and "The Saracens," by Arthur Gilman.

The few historical works reprinted here were from English and French sources. Gladstone's "The Irish Question," W. Stephenson Gregg's "Irish History for English Readers," and Birkbeck's "Historical Sketch of the Distribution of Land in England" all relate to topics of common interest on this side of the water also. The third and fourth volumes were published of Hodgkin's "Italy and her Invaders," and England under Charles II. was vividly brought before the reader's eyes in W. H. Davenport Adams' "The Merry Monarch." Wheeler's "India Under British Rule" goes back to the foundation of the East India Company. A more than usually notable "History of the French Revolution" was begun by Prof. H. Morse Stephens of Balliol College, Oxford. The reprint of the first volume towards the end of the year was received with much favor. The great amount of new material gathered together by the author promises a fresh and altogether unconventional treatment of the period. Claude Faurel's "Last Days of the Consulate" is also an illumination of the days of the guillotine. Lucian Biart, the distinguished French scientist and the best living authority on "The Aztecs," published a book with this title presenting the history of all investigation upon their history, manners, and customs to the present day.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE ranks as one of the largest classifications this year. The almost universal discussion of the labor question and other social problems and the best methods of tariff reform is testified to by a mass of literature. Not only have our political economists endeavored to throw light on the situation, but our theologians have made the subjects their own. From American writers the following are among leading works: Prof. Ely's "Labor Movement in America;" George E. McNeill's "The Labor Movement, the Problem of To-day;" Dr. A. J. F. Behrend's "Socialism and Christianity," a series of lectures delivered before the students of the Hartford Theological Seminary, in which socialism is pronounced "the enemy of religion and the family;" Washington Gladden's "Applied Christianity," in which the moral aspect is sought of different social questions; Phillips' "Labor, Land, and Law," a search for the missing wealth of the working poor; J. B. Clark's "Philosophy of Wealth," aiming to bring about a truer conception of economic principles; Rev. Dr. T. Edwin Brown's "Studies in Modern Socialism and Labor Problems," illustrating his conviction that true economic principle and right economic action are intimately related to Christian morality; W. V. Marshall's "Unfair Distribution of Earnings," against monopolies; Simon Newcomb's "A Plain Man's Talk on the Labor Question," containing good advice for both sides; Godin's "Social Solutions;" "The Labor Problem," edited by William E. Barns, and offering the views of many prominent men in many diverse walks of life on the conflict between labor and capital; "Class Interests," by the anonymous author of "Conflict in Nature and Life," looks at both sides of the question with exceptional moderation and justice; R. R. Bowker in two little books, "Economics for the People" and "Economic Fact-Book," has aimed to bring more fairness into the discussion, by informing the young and those seeking information of the broad underlying principles of right and equity, which are the basis of the whole matter. Protection and free trade both had their advocates. Two books in favor of the first were Prof. Thompson's "Protection to Home Industry," four lectures delivered to the students of Harvard University, and Hoyt's "Protection vs. Free Trade." Henry George offered new arguments to the laboring man in behalf of the second in "Protection or Free Trade," and a Western woman, Mrs. Marion Todd, raised her voice against the "Protective Tariff Delusion." Political pessimists are recommended to two charming works which were deservedly popular during the year, and which are both statistical and descriptive-Andrew Carnegie's "Triumphant Democracy," a brilliant showing of American progress, and A. K. McClure's papers on "The South." In this work the talented editor of the Philadelphia Times is enthusiastic upon the South's great undeveloped resources, predicting a most hopeful future for it, when Northern capital has come to its aid. Rev. Josiah Strong's "Our Country," a somewhat related work, is the view of a Christian missionary. The handsome Alexander Hamilton's "Works" of was completed, and the second volume of Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress" published. Another public man, S. S. Cox, gave the world the benefit of his experience in Congress in "Three Decades of Federal Legislation, 1855 to 1885." Bolles' "Financial History of the U.S. from 1861 to 1885," is an indispensable work of reference, and Bowker's booklet "Primer for Political Education," full of facts every embryo voter should know. Lucy M. Salmon's "History of the Appointing Power of the President" is clear and succinct, and Hugh J. Hastings' "Ancient American Politics," tells in attractive journalist style of parties and candidates down to the close of 1841. Eugene Schuyler's "American Diplomacy and the Futherance of Commerce" and Hudson's "The Railways and the Republic" are works of no ordinary character. They both aim to cultivate public opinion upon important topics. Bowker's "Copyright, Its Law and Its Literature," is a résumé of the history and present status of this branch of law, with a valuable bibliography by T. Solberg. Under this heading we must class several other interesting volumes of a somewhat lighter and popular nature, yet devoted chiefly to the questions of the day, as Mr. and Mrs. Thwing's "The Family," dealing with divorce and the marriage laws; Catherine Owens' "Ten Dollars Enough," a practical illustration of cheap living; and Sarah K. Bolton's "Social Studies in England," regarding the higher education of women, etc.; Adam Badeau's "Aristocracy in England" is wise and witty and altogether descriptive. Ham's "Manual Training" indicates one of the best methods of helping the poor, and points to obvious defects in our school systems.

From English sources and through a couple of German translations a few important reprints were made in this line. "Oceana, or, England and Her Colonies," from the pen of one of England's most gifted historical writers, James Anthony Froude-although embracing an account of his tour around the world in his study of England's colonial possessions—has a distinct political purpose, the forming of "a perfect commonwealth," after the methods of Sir James "Popular Government" was at-Harrington. tacked by Sir H. S. Maine, through four thoughful essays. The English governmental methods were set forth in Skottowe's "Short History of Parliament," Grego's "History of Parliamentary Elections," and Rudolph Gneist's "History of the English Constitution," an exhaustive work in two volumes from the German. Jean's "England's Supremacy " is a compilation of statistics relating to labor, cost of living, taxation, etc. Emigration, -ink, socialism, and other timely themes are included under Arnold White's "Problems of a Great City;" the principles of banking in operation are admirably illustrated in "The Country Banker," by George Rae. Ashton's "Dawn of the Nineteenth Century in England" is both political and social. "How to be Happy though Married," is full of good advice attractively administered about the duties of husbands and wives. The weaknesses and vices of Berlin life are sketched in "The Buchholz Family," by Julius Stinde.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

The department of Description and Travel. embraces records of adventure on all sides of the globe. From two noted Americans we received works on Mexico-Mr. David A. Wells entitled his "A Study of Mexico;" Solomon Bulkley Griffin's is known as "Mexico of To-Day. A lady, Miss Helen J. Sanborn, also gives her experience in these latitudes, in "A Winter in Central America and Mexico." James W Wells travelled "Three Thousand Miles through Brazil." Clemens' "La Plata Countries of South America" is a record of a journey in 1880. 'Southern California" found an appreciative observer in Theodore S. Van Dyke. "H. H.'s" "Glimpses of Three Coasts" refers to California and Oregon, Scotland and England, and Norway and Sweden. Wingate's "Through the Yellowstone Park on Horseback" is a tribute to the therapeutical qualities of this enchanting region. Prof. Scudder is said to be the author of "The Winnipeg Country." Mrs. Arlo Bates ("Eleanor Putnam") described "Old Salem" in a series of sympathetic papers. Hallock's "Our New Alaska" and Elliot's "Our Arctic Province, Alaska and the Seal Islands," are rich in statistics and not easy to be got at facts. Persia of to-day is seen through the eyes of a prominent government official and a missionary of the Presbyterian Board. Mr. S. G. W. Benjamin, appointed by President Arthur in 1882 to the legation in Persia, touches upon nearly every point in the strange domestic and public life of this wonderful Eastern land in "Persia and the Persians." James Bassett's " Persia, the Land of the Imans," antedates the former book, covering a longer period of time. It is likewise rich in authentic facts and graphic narrations. Other monographs of Asiatic travel are offered in Maclay's "Budget of Letters from Japan" (1873 to 1878); Mrs. C. A. Mason's Etchings in Two Lands;" Pearson's "Flights Inside and Outside Paradise by a Penitent Peri;" Miss Mary L. Cort's "Siam, or, the Heart of Farther India," and Edwin Joshua Dukes' "Along River and Road in Fuh-Kien, China." Mr. and Mrs. Pennell's "Two Pilgrims' Progress" and Champlin's "Chronicle of the Coach" are both full of life and color—the one describing a novel expedition from Florence to Rome on a bicycle, the other a ride on top of a coach and four through England. Leander Richardson's humorous showing of English cockney life in "The Dark City" found many readers. Dr. C. C. Abbott's "Upland and Meadow," Cleveland's "Voyages of a Merchant Navigator," W. Wyatt Gill's " Jottings from the Pacific," Edwards Roberts' "Santa Barbara and Around There," Buckley's "Land of the Czar and the Nihilist," Ebbutt's "Kansas Emigrant Life," Merrylees' "Carlsbad and its Environs," and Horstmann's "Consular Reminiscences," are all well worthy of special mention. Brooks' "Olden Time Series," a valuable compilation of facts regarding the queer doings and odd views of our New England ancestors, was completed in six volumes.

From foreign writers we obtained Howard Willoughby's "Australian Pictures;" C. H. Hanson's "Land of Greece;" Walter Montague Kerr's "The Far Interior," a narrative of travel and adventure from the Cape of Good Hope, across Zambesi to the Lake Regions of Central Africa; McCarty's "Two Thousand Miles Through the Heart of Mexico;" Edwin Arnold's "India Revisited;" Lady Jackson's "Court of France in the 16th Century," of which the first part only was published, covering the reigns of Francis I. and Henry II.; Villar's "England, Scotland, and Ireland;" and Adams' "Good Queen Anne," a history of men and manners, life and letters in England's Augustan Age. Queen Victoria's grandsons, Prince Albert Victor, and George, Prince of Wales, entered the field of authorship with an account of "The Cruise of H. M. S. Bacchante 1879-1882." Jefferies' "The Open Air" is a prose poem in praise of the birds and flowers, the trees and fields.

BIOGRAPHY.

The American additions to BIOGRAPHY, ME-MOIRS, and CORRESPONDENCE are rich in a varied interest. The "Life and Letters of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow," edited by the Rev. S. Longfellow, undoubtedly deserve the place of honor in this class of literature. It was the book of the season, and a most beautiful illustration of the pure life and character of the poet so generally loved and admired. The second volume of Grant's "Personal Memoirs," conceived in the last days of his heroic struggle with death, was given to the world. Goodrich's "Life of General Winfield S. Hancock" reminds us of another of our heroes who passed away during the year. Schuyler Colfax's good name was in a measure cleared in Hollister's "Life," and our late Minister to Russia Cassius Marcellus Clay, published the first part of his memoirs. Another political figure known in Washington life for the past sixty years, Ben Perley Poore, began to put his reminiscences upon paper. The result is a perfect flood of anecdote and gossip of noted men and women. literature of Lincoln increases yearly. Readers seem never to get sated with stories about him or accredited to him. Allen Thorndike Rice gathered under one cover "The Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln by Distinguished Men of his Time," which appeared in the North American, making a delightful volume. Admiral Hobart Pasha's "Sketches from My Life" contains some dashing stories of blockade-running in the Confederate service. To religions biography O. B. Frothingham contributed a "Life of William H. Channing," the celebrated Unitarian, and Philip Schaff sketches of three of the old fathers of the Church, "Saint Augustin, Melanchthon, Neander." Lovely Dolly Madison's memory was revived in her "Memoirs and Letters." A supplementary volume to the same period is "Memoirs of Mrs. Edward Livingstone." Helen Moore wrote a life of "Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley," the "Madame Mohl, Her Salon and poet's wife. Her Friends," one of the freshest and most clever series of literary papers that has ever adorned the Atlantic Monthly, came out in book-form. Kathleen O'Meara is the author. "An American Woman's Life and Work" is a tribute to the memory of Mary Clemmer, a brilliant literary woman, by her husband, Edmund Hudson. Among other important biographical publications, we cannot pass over Mr. Croffut's story of "The Vanderbilts," Knox's "Life of Robert Fulton," Lossing's "Mary and Martha, the Mother and Wife of George Washington," Mrs. Martha J. Coston's "A Signal Success," "A Memoir of Prof. J. Lewis Diman," by Caroline Hazard, Lanman's "Haphazard Personalities," Stoddard's lives of "George Washington" and "Ulysses S. Grant," nor Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer's valuable art biography, "Henry H. Richardson and His Works." Brander Matthews and Laurence Hutton's "Actors and Actresses of Great Britain and the United States" formed a most attractive series. The five volumes published at intervals throughout the year included details of every actor of note of the past or present. The last month of the year witnessed the inception of a great enterprise in Appletons' "Cyclopædia of American Biography," under the able editorship of James Grant Wilson and John Fiske.

In English or foreign biography there was no special work of extraordinary merit or of phenomenal success. Many books, however, were sent forth. Sir Francis Hastings Doyle, one of the men who always knows every one worth knowing, embraced memories of half a century of England's prominent men in office in "Reminiscences and Opinions." The famous artist of the London Graphic, Randolph Caldecott, who died within the year, received loving and appreciative remembrance from his friend Henry Blackburn.

Two historical studies of "Bolingbroke and Voltaire," by John Charton Collins, have decided literary merit. A most pathetic sketch of the "Last Days of Marie Antoinette," by Lord Ronald Gower, recommended itself to the many sympathizers of the ill-fated queen. The English Men of Letters Series was enriched by J. A. Symonds' "Sir Philip Sidney," and the Philosophical Classics for English Readers by Robertson's "Hobbs." The Famous Women Series included a life of "Rachel," the renowned French actress, by Mrs. Nina H. Kennard;" "Madame Roland," of French Revolutionary fame, by Mathilde Blind, and "Susanna Wesley," the mother of the founder of Methodism, by Eliza Clark. To the English Worthies Series were added Edmund Gosse's "Raleigh," Saintsbury's "Marlborough," Hannay's "Admiral Blake," and Traill's "Shaftesbury." Henry Stevens' "Recollections of Mr. James Lenox, of New York, and the Formation of his Library," written just before his death, is for all interested in libraries and collectors of books. Low's "Prince Bismarck" was an addition to historical biography. Prof. Dowden's "Life of Shelley" is probably the final work on this subject. Leslie Stephen's "Life of Henry Fawcett" had for its subject a prominent figure of recent years in English politics. Lord Beaconsfield's "Correspondence with his Sister, 1832-1852," may be mentioned here, Firth's "Memoirs of William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle," the "Autobiography of Edward, Lord Herbert of Cherbury," by Sydney L. Lee, Todd's "Life and Letters of Joel Barlow," Rev. Sir George Cox's second series of "Lives of Greek Statesmen," Walter's "Memorials of Washington," Ebers' "Lorenz Alma Tadema," Victor Hugo's "William Shakespeare," which is also somewhat critical as well as biographical, and Frieze's "Giovanni Dupré." Several volumes were added to Leslie Stephen's "Dictionary of-National Biography," and Ruskin continued letting light upon his past life to eager readers, chapter by chapter, in "Praeterita."

ART BOOKS.

The progress made during 1886 in ART and ILLUSTRATED books is broadly exemplified in the many beautiful holiday publications, which are, in many cases, exquisite specimens of bookmaking as well as high artistic effort. The subject of etching and the illustration of etching by American artists were the incentive to four magnificent folios, viz., Koehler's "American Art" and "Twenty American Etchings," Hitchcock's "Etching in America," and Ripley Hitchcock's "Notable Etchings by American Artists." In a line with these and bearing an American imprint, but referring to foreign art, are Allen's "Recent German Art" and Koehler's

"Foreign Etchings." In the many finely illustrated works it would be invidious to point out one as more artistic than another—each one deserves so much praise. The leading books, however, we think, are comprised in the following group: "A Book of the Tile Club," rich in the work of many noted artists; F. Hopkinson Smith's "Well-Worn Roads," a series of dreamy, poetical landscapes; "She Stoops to Conquer," illustrated by Edwin A. Abbey in inimitable style; lpsen's decorative and emblematical frames to Mrs. Browning's "Sonnets from the Portuguese;" Mrs. M. G. Van Rensselaer's representative "Book of American Figure-Painters;" Kenyon Cox's designs for Rossetti's "Blessed Damozel;" W. Hamilton Gibson's "Happy Hunting Grounds;" Irene E. " Nature's Hallelujah;" Jerome's Low's "Plastic Sketches;" Miss Skelding's "Familiar Birds," illustrated so gracefully by Fidelia Bridges; "Home Fairies and Heart Flowers," by Frank French and Mrs. Sangster; H. H.'s "Procession of the Flowers in Colorado," with Alice A. Stewart's water-color studies; Thackeray's "Mahogany Tree," illustrated by T. Merrill; and the illustrated edition of Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel." Though less ambitious in size and design, the holiday editions of Tennyson's "Dora," illustrated by W. L. Taylor, T. Buchanan Read's "Closing Scene," Owen Meredith's "The Earl's Return," again the work of W. L. Taylor, Scott's "Christmas in the Olden Time," with designs by Fenn, Garrett, and others, Hood's "Fair Ines," "Three Kings," illustrated by Rosina Emmett, "Idyls and Pastorals," "Youth in Twelve Centuries." Dickens' "Christmas Carol," and Rexford's "Grandmother's Garden," illustrated by Mary Cecilia Spaulding, and the two little volumes of selections from Life, "The Good Things of Life" and "Life's Verses," are so well executed and so far in advance of the larger part of the artistic work of past years, as to be full of a special interest. The art student was well supplied with instructive works. Mrs. Clara Erskine Clements was the author of three manuals, "Handbook of Christian Symbols," "An Outline History of Architecture," and "Stories of Art and Artists. Crowninshield's "Mural Painting" is a kindred work to the preceding. Champlin and Perkins' "Cyclopædia of Painters and Painting," an American enterprise of great magnitude, was represented by two beautifully made and illustrated volumes. Including also in this classification musical art, we call attention to Upton's "Standard Oratorios," Mrs. Lillie's "Story of Music and Musicians," and Ritter's "Manual of Musical History." To England we are indebted for "More Graphic Pictures" from the clever pencil of the lamented Caldecott, and for a fine edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield," with designs in color by the French artist Poirson, and Leader Scott's comprehensive work on "Sculpture." To France, for a new art-work from Uzanne, the creator of "The Glove" and "Fan," called "The Frenchwoman of the Century." To the Fine Art Library, an English publication, were added the following translations: Eugene Müntz's "Short History of Tapestry;" Maxime Collignon's "Manual of Greek Archæology;" Ernest Chesneau's "Education of the Artist," and Vicomte H. Delaborde's "Engraving." Alfred Stephens' "Impressions on Painting," from the French, are suggestive and instructive.

POETRY.

The absence of notable works in POETRY is as remarkable as the many publications of this class. Collections of graceful, refined poems are so plentiful that it is difficult to recall them all. However the chief books of the year are included in our summary. Nora Perry wrote some "New Songs and Ballads" characterized by a charming fancy; Mrs. Whitney a little volume called "Holy Tides," religious poems for Advent, Christmas, and other church festivals; in the same groove of thought are the little poems of faith and comfort, "For Love's Sake," by Margaret J. Preston; "H. H.'s" "Sonnets and Lyrics" are the last poetical efforts of her gifted pen; a new Irish garland of legends and scenes of Ireland may be found in Mrs. Sarah M. B. Piatt's "In Primrose Time." John Greenleaf Whittier, one of the few of the older school of poets left us, proved that the old fire had not all burned out in "Saint Gregory's Guest." Mrs. Celia Thaxter's "Cruise of the Mystery," Fawcett's "Romance and Revery," and John Boyle O'Reilly's "In Bohemia" belong to what was called the younger school of poets, but which is fast being superseded by a new generation. Of this latter class the principal representatives are Minnie Gilmore's "Pipes from Prairie Land," Arlo Bates' "Berries of the Brier," Anna Katherine Green's "Risifi's Daughter," Clinton Scollard's "With Reed and Lyre," Josephine Pollard's "Vagrant Verses," Cranch's "Ariel and Caliban," Margaret Deland's "The Old Garden," Peck's "Cap and Bells," James Berry Bensel's "In the King's Garden," and Elizabeth Akers' "The Silver Bridge." Among some excellent compilations are "Representatives Poems of Living Poets," edited by Jeannette Gilder; Frank Moore's "Songs and Ballads of the Southern People, 1861-1865;" Slason Thompson's "Humbler Poets," an interesting collection of newspaper and periodical verses from 1870 to 1885; Browne's "Bugle Echoes," a compilation of poems of the civil war, and the attractive series of "Through the Year with the Poets," edited by Oscar Fay Adams, and including twelve volumes having the names of the months, and containing appropriate selections. To these may be added Baxley's "Temple of Alanthus," H. Bernard Carpenter's "Liber Amoris," "The Complete Poetical Works of Benjamin F. Taylor," and the "Poems" of Florus B. Plimpton, late dramatic editor of the Cincinnati Daily Commercial.

From across the ocean we have received Tennyson's "Locksley Hall Sixty Years After," A. Mary F. Robinson's "An Italian Garden," Edmund Gosse's "Poems," a volume of English odes, and "Firdausi in Exile;" and "The Latin Poems of Leo XIII." A new version was also made of "The Poems of Goethe" by William Gibbon.

MISCELLANY.

In LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY there are many interesting studies from American and English writers. Dante inspired two volumes-"A Shadow of Dante," by Maria Francesca Rossetti, and "A Study of Dante," by Miss Susan E. Blow. Browning's complexities have brought to the aid of poetical students from English sources an "Introduction to the Study of Browning," by Arthur Symons, and from our own writers, Prof. Hiram Corson's "Introduction to the Study of Robert Browning's Poetry," Mary E. Burt's "Browning's Women," and a volume of outline studies of Robert Browning's poetry, from the Chicago Browning Society. Charles F. Richardson's "American Literature," one of the books of literary note, had for the subject of the first volume, the only one so far issued, "The Development of American Thought," Opening at the year 1607 it takes in all classes of literature down to 1885 but poetry and fiction, to which the second volume will be dedicated. Edith M. Thomas' "The Round Year" and Burroughs' "Signs and Seasons" paint Nature in all her many changing moods in a series of refined, delightful essays. Sherer's "History of German Literature," from the German, and Prof. G. Lansing Raymond's "Poetry as a Representative Art" are good works of reference and study. The strong interest of the present in Russian literature is again illustrated in Dupuy's "Great Masters of Russian Literature in the 19th Century," sketches of Gogol, Turgénieff, and Tolstol, and in Miss Isabel Florence Hapgood's "Epic Songs of Russia." Brandes' "Eminent Authors of the Nineteenth Century," embraces not only Russian but French, German, and English writers. Mason's "Humorous Masterpieces," Morris' "Half-Hours with the Best American Authors" Prof. Hedge's "Hours with German Classics" are of permanent value. studies and essays that have obtained many readers are: George Willis Cooke's " Poets and Problems;" James Russell Lowell's "Democracy;" Mrs. E. W. Latimer's "Familiar Talks or Some of Shakespeare's Comedies;" Julian Ha thorne's "Confessions and Criticisms;" James Vila Blake's "Essays;" Hattie Tyng Griswold's "Home Life of Great Authors;" G. P. Lathrop's "Study of Hawthorne;" Dana's "Optimism of Ralph Waldo Emerson;" Abba Goold Woolson's "George Eliot and her Heroines;" Sanborn's "Life and Genius of Goethe;" Justin S. Morrill's "Self-Consciousness of Noted Persons;" Ballou's "Genius in Sunshine and Shadow;" and Whipple's "Recollections of Eminent Men." Andrew Lang's "Books and Bookmen" and "Letters to a Dead Author," clever and suggestive and pre-eminently English, were among the best literary efforts of our British cousins. We hold them also responsible for Wheatley's "How to Form a Library," Vernon Lee's "Baldwin," J. Rogers Rees' "Pleasures of a Bookworm," H. Macaulay Posnett's "Comparative Literature," Saintsbury's "Specimens of English Prose Style, from Malory to Macaulay," Beers' "Outline Sketch of English Literature." Mariana Monteiro's "Legends and Popular Tales of the Basque People" may be mentioned here, and also "Manners Makyth Man," by the author of "How to be Happy Though Married." Several clever little satirical works from English writers made their mark in attractive reprints-namely, "The Life of a Prig, by One;" Perry's "Evolution of the Snob;" and "The Venerable Bede Expurgated, Expounded, and Exposed."

SPORTS.

The additions to Sports and Amusements were very small. The few prominent books are found in G. Putnam Smith's "Law of Field-Sports," a compilation for American sportsmen; Wells' "American Salmon Fisherman;" Rudolf H. Rheinhardt's "Whist Scores and Card-Table Talk," an amusing little novelty for card-players; and the new volumes on "Shooting" and "Racing and Steeple-Chasing," in the Badminton Library.

SCIENCE.

The additions to SCIENCE were Schmidt's "Mammalia in Their Relation to Primeval Times;" Park Benjamin's "Age of Electricity;" Trouessart's "Microbes, Ferments, and Moulds;" Conn's "Evolution of To-day;" Cope's "Origin of the Fittest;" Croll's "Discussions on Climate and Cosmology;" Von Urbanitzky's "Electricity;" Milne's "Earthquakes and Other Earth Movements;" Ribot's "German Psychology;" Dr. McCosh's "Psychology—the Cognative Powers;" Prof. G. Dewey's "Psychology;" and Rosenkranz's "Philosophy of Education," the first issue of a new series—the International Educational Series. M. M. M.

BOOK-PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND.

In an introduction to the above table the editor takes occasion to say:

"On the last occasion we had pleasure in remarking that the almost universal depression of trade did not seem to have affected the production of books. This year, as the reader will observe, the total number shows a decrease of some four hundred books. As the preparation of a volume in many cases is spread over a considerable space of time, it may well be that the stagnation of business has made itself felt, but we are pleased to notice signs of a revival, not so much in the production of books as in the selling of books. At the same time the increasing number of magazines and newspapers which is presented for a reader's attention must unquestionably exert an influence, and the newspapers often give such summaries of new works, and extracts from them, that a lazy man seems almost absolved from going to the books themselves."

WORK OF THE COPYRIGHT OFFICE.

THE following tables, compiled from the annual reports of the Library of Congress, show the work of the Copyright Office for the past seven years, and are an interesting indication of the growth of publishing in this country. By courtesy of Mr. Spofford, we are enabled to give totals of entries and deposits for 1886 and particulars of deposits, by which copyright is completed. The details of the entry figures, which are less important, are not yet ready, as the Annual Report will not be presented to Congress for a fortnight yet. The manual rent completed by deposit reaches this year the unusual total of 7136, which points to exceeding carelessness on the part of publishers in permitting copyright to lapse by failure to complete the requirements or to an extraordinary proportion of schemes which have come to naught.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE BOOK-TRADE IN THE SOUTH.

New York, Jan. 18, 1887.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I was glad to see in your last issue the article by Maurice Thompson, Esq., in regard to the literary feeling and the book-stores of the South.

Having had intimate business relations for many years with that section, and having travelled over a large portion of it, I beg to add my testimony to help correct the erroneous impression referred to.

The older members of the trade will recollect that before the war the Southern States, and particularly Georgia and the Carolinas, were the "Eldorado" of the book-trade. Any good book or good edition of standard works could be sold there.

Twenty years ago, when the war closed, the people were left utterly ruined, having nothing left but their land, and that was virtually confiscated, and the people held in the bondage of poverty for several years after by the taxes laid upon them by the irresponsible, ignorant, and unprincipled rulers placed over them under the reconstruction acts.

Thus without anything, the first thing to do under the natural law of self-preservation was to secure food and clothing, leaving the luxury of books to come later.

What do we find to-day? In all of the larger cities numerous book-stores that will compare favorably with those in cities of the same size in the North, and in almost all of the smaller towns and villages, a dealer in books alone or books combined with others things, drugs or fancy goods. And all of these would be much larger and more prosperous were it not for the same evil that affects the bookseller in other sections of the country-the growing tendency of the school-book publishers to deal direct with the State or county boards, or the private school, thus depriving the local dealer of his legitimate business of selling the school-books and the miscellaneous trade that would thereby be drawn; to him—and the flooding of the country with, cheap and nasty editions of books through the dry-goods stores, who keep and sell them on commission.

I think if we look fairly at the matter we shall see that, considering the circumstances, the bookstores of the South will compare favorably with those of the North, and if they advance as rapidly in the next ten years as they have in the past they will outstrip us at the North.

I could enlarge on the future prospects, which I think are very great, but enough for the present, Yours truly, CHARLES K. DABNEY.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. announces a new library edition of the Waverley Novels, in twenty-five volumes, to be published in connection with Charles & Adam Black, of Edinburgh. The prize is to be $1.75 per volume.

THE AMERICAN PUB. SOC. OF HEBREW will remove from Morgan Park, Ill., to New Haven, Conn., where they may be addressed after Feb. 1. It is probable that the books of this society will hereafter be published through Charles Scribner's Sons.

According to the Evening Post, the personal estate of the late Mrs. Jackson (H. H.) is appraised at $12,642.51. It consists of Government and railroad bonds, and interest in the copyright of certain of her books. From the latter source there is still due the sum of $2119.75—which indicates the popularity of Mrs. Jackson's writings, published by Roberts Bros.

THE edition of "The Cossacks," by Tolstol, translated by Eugene Schuyler, announced by W. S. Gottsberger, will be printed from the plates made by Charles Scribner's Sons for the edition published by them in 1878. At that time Messrs. Scribner hoped to introduce all of Tolstol's writings to the public, but finding poor sales for "The Cossacks," they abandoned the project.

THE memoirs of Count Beust, which are about to be issued in Vienna, cover a period of nearly 75 years. Much of them relates to his sojourns in England. Count Beust, it will be remembered, was Austrian Minister resident in London in 1846, Plenipotentiary of the German Bund to the London conference of 1864, and Austrian Ambassador to England in 1871. He also paid a flying visit to London just previous to the Italian war in 1859.

F. WARNE & Co., N. Y., will shortly publish a new and thoroughly revised edition of "Nuttall's Standard Dictionary." We understand the work is edited by the Rev. James Wood, of Edinburgh, who has been engaged upon it for nearly three years, and that it will be an etymological as well as a pronouncing dictionary, containing numerous illustrations. They also announce a choice edition of "The Angler's Souvenir," by Paul Fisher, edited by G. Christopher Davies, and illustrated by Beckwith and Topham. The edition for America will be limited to fifty copies, two hundred and fifty copies being printed altogether.

A "REVIEW of the New York Musical Season, 1886–1887," by Mr. Henry E. Krehbiel, says the N. Y. Tribune, will be brought out in May by Novello, Ewer & Co. (London), should the number of subscriptions justify the venture. It is intended that the volume shall be uniform in style with the valuable and popular "Review" published by Mr. Krehbiel last year. The latter was so cordially received, both in America and Europe, that the success of a second volume is more than indicated. All the noteworthy musical occurrences of this season will be discussed and an introductory chapter will review the season as a whole, and consider its scope.

LEE & SHEPARD have in press "Hints on Writing and Speech-Making," by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, a handy manual for young writers and would-be orators; "Moral Philosophy," by Rev. A. R. Peabody, D.D., of Harvard University, a collection of University lectures; "Danton in the French Revolution," by Lawrence Gronland, which treats of the revolution from a socialistic standpoint, and is intended as a complement to his former book, "Co-operative Commonwealths." They are preparing for Easter three little souvenirs, "Arise, My Soul, Arise," by Sarah Flower Adams; "See the Land, Her Easter Keeping," by Charles Kingsley; and "Gladness of Easter."

ROBERTS BROS. will publish in February "Franklin in France," by Rev. E. E. Hale. With three exceptions the letters given in this volume have never been published, and they comprise the material sold to the United States Government by Henry Stevens, of London, who found them in a tailor's attic in London. They cover a period in Franklin's life unknown to the public, for which Jared Sparks, in his work on Franklin, searched for in vain. They also announce a new Balzac volume—"The Country Doctor;" "Cathedral Days," by Mrs. Anna Bowman Dodd, an illustrated work of travel through the cathedral cities of England; and "New Connecticut," an autobiographical poem, by A. Bronson Alcott, edited by F. B. Sanborn.

MR. GEORGE P. BRETT is likely to be a busy man the current year, and his many American friends will heartily appreciate the compliment paid to him by the London house of Macmillan & Co., in his selection as a pioneer in Australia. Mr. Brett is now making a brief business trip through the West, on his way to San Francisco, whence he sails, February 12, on the Mariposa, for a tour through all the principal cities of Australia, East and South, New Zealand, and Tasmania, on business for the home house. He will return by the Pacific coast in July, and on his way back will visit Western dealers on his usual mid-year trip. It is probable that he will go to London in the fall, to report in person to the home house, and it is said that upon his report the establishment of a branch house in Australia will turn. In the remarkably successful building up of the American branch house, Mr. Brett, Sr., has had great help from his son, and it is most pleasant to find the American training of the latter producing such results.

"Will you permit one of your long-time subscribers to commend 'Sir Percival,' a story written by the author of 'John Inglesant,' which seems to me one of the very best of the day, and likely to be peculiarly interesting and valuable to the readers of THE CHURCHMAN." — Russell Sturgis, fr., in The Churchman.

Sir Percival.

A STORY OF THE

BV

J. HENRY SHORTHOUSE,

Author of "John Inglesant," "The Little Schoolmaster Mark," etc. 12mo, $1.00.

"The story of Sir Percival and Constance is very touching and beautiful, and it is set with alluring pictures of quiet life in an aristocratic country-house among gentle people."—New York Tribune.

"An atmosphere of spiritual, ideal Christianity pervades the story, the influence of which the most careless reader can scarcely escape. It is, in the strictest sense, a religious story, but the religion is genuine and unobtrusive, and not put forth after the manner of Mr. Mallock."—Sun.

"The style is exquisite; the descriptions of English scenery are fascinating; everything in the book is mellowed with the poetic conception. It is a little masterpiece."—Star.

"In this story, the lover of literary art will find the most exquisitely written story imaginable. The fineness and beauty of its imagery, the polished elegance of diction, the atmosphere of scholarship and refinement pervading it, make the tale unique and exceptional."—Boston Traveller.

"The novel-reading world cannot but be better, both in head and heart, for such pure and elevating tales as 'Sir Percival.'" — Christian Union.

William Shakespeare. Translated from the French of Victor Hugo, by MELVILLE B. ANDERSON, M.A. 8vo, gilt top, 424 pages, $2.00.

"This is much more than a study of Shakespeare. All history, all theology, and all philosophy are grasped and handled with titanic force, the bard of Avon furnishing the text, or, as we should say, the pretext, for magnificent speculation. Why has this great work of Hugo's never before been Anglicized?"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Aztees. Their History, Manners, and Customs.

By Lucien Biart. Translated from the French by J. L. Garner. Illustrated, 8vo, 340 pages, $2.00.

"This is a brilliant description of Mexico as it was at the time of the Spanish conquest. It is a book well worth reading and keeping."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Specimens of English Prose Style. From Malory to Macaulay. Selected and Annotated, with an Introductory Essay, by George Saintsbury. Crown 8vo, xivi and 367 pages, $2.00.

ovo, xivi and 307 pages, $2.00.

"In this volume of 'Specimens of English Prose Style' Mr. Saintsbury is seen at his best. The selection is comprehensive and well made; the annotations are always intelligent, and are sometimes as good as such things can be; the introduction, an essay on the nature and development of English Prose style, is in the author's happiest vein."—London Athenaum.

The Standard Oratorlos: Their Stories, their Music, and their Composers. A Handbook. By GRORGE P. UPTON. Uniform with "The Standard Operas." 12mo, 335 pages, yellow edges, $1.50; gilt edges, $2.00.

"Mr. Upton has produced an admirable handwork, which answers every purpose that such a volume is designed to answer, and which is certain to be popular now and for years to come."—Eve. Mail and Express, N. Y.

Women in Music. By George P. Upton. 16mo, 221 pages, $1.00.

"A wholly attractive book, carefully studied and well written, and fills a place occupied by no other work,"—
Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

Whist Scores and Card-Table Talk. With a Bibliography of Whist. By Rudolf H. Rheinhardt. Illustrated, 12mo, 310 pages, gilt top, $1.50.

"The main idea of Mr. Rheinhardt was to prepare a book in which scores could be preserved, and to include with the prepared blanks an interesting variety of historical and other data pertaining to cards. . . . It is not a repetition of anything that is included in card literature; it fills a place that none of the several other volumes has pre-empted."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Home-Life of Great Authors. By HATTIE TYNG GRISWOLD. 12mo, 385 pages, $1.50.

"No such excellent collection of brief biographies of literary favorites has ever before appeared in this country. Mrs. Griswold's taste and discretion are as much to be admired as her industry in the composition of these delightful sketches."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Four Centuries of Silence; or, From Malachi to Christ. By Rev. R. A. REDFORD, M.A., LL.B. Crown 8vo, 258 pages, $1.50.

"It fills a gap in the history of religious thought—especially for those who have not the means of exploring the wide field of recent criticism of which this volume is the condensed thought."—British Quarterly Review.

The Sleeping World, and Other Poems.
By Lillien Blanche Fearing. 16mo, $1.00.

"The versification is unstrained, easy, and graceful. The diction is pure and simple. The art is of the kind which conceals art. There is real feeling and true aspiration in all these verses."—Chicago Evening Journal.

PUPLISH THIS WEEK:

A Half Century in Salem.

BY MARIANNE C. D. SILSBEE. In one volume, tastefully printed and bound. 16mo, $1.00.

The readers of this genial and charming book will find the Salem of fifty years ago living anew in its pages; its schools, its churches, its shops, its "fair women and brave men," and that gay society in which they figured, are all brightly and graphically sketched by one who lived among them.

The book is a most careful piece of printing. The cover is ornamented with a vignette of the porch of one of the old characteristic mansions of Salem.

Channing's Note-Book.

Passages from the Unpublished Manuscripts of William Ellery Channing. Selected by his Granddaughter, Grace Ellery Channing. 1 vol. 16mo, $1.00.

These selections from Dr. Channing's Note-Book cannot fail of a very hearty welcome. They have never been published before, and they cover a great variety of subjects, treated with that elevated seriousness and lofty purity of mind by which Dr. Channing was distinguished. The controversy which once raged about Channing has so far died away that all noble men and women eagerly and reverently acknowledge his rare nobility, wisdom, and sincerity.

Roba di Roma,

By WILLIAM W. STORY. New and revised edition. 2 vols. 16mo, $2.50.

This is one of the best and most interesting of works written about Rome. Mr. Story's long residence there enables him to write from full observation of all the distinctive features of Roman art, architecture, society, and character. The National Review, of London, said of it: "Those to whom Rome is a name only can read Mr. Story's work with the pleasing conviction that when they have read it they will know more about the Papal city than nine Anglo-Romans out of ten. They will understand, too, something of the mysterious attraction which Rome possesses for the Northern stranger."

This edition has been carefully revised and corrected to correspond with the changes in Rome since the work was originally written.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "BEN HUR."

A Fair God.

A TALE OF THE CONQUEST OF MEXICO. By LEW WALLACE. 600 pages, $1.50.

We do not hesitate to say that the "Fair God" is one of the most powerful historical novels we have ever read. The scene where in the sunrise Montezuma reads his fate, the dance-scene, and the entry of the Spaniards to the capital, are drawn in a style of which we think few living writers capable; and the battles are Homeric in their grandeur.—London Athenaum.

In all the accessories to a complete historical romance, the author has perfected himself down to minutest details. Every feature of Aztec civilization necessary to render his task complete has been carefully studied and grandly set forth.—New York Times.

Take the poems of Ossian, the "Tales of the Thousand and One Nights," the novels of Kingsley and Bulwer, the historical romances of Scott, with the songs of Byron and Moore, blend them all in one, and the reader may form some idea of this really great novel.—Chicago I nter-Ocean.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just published the third and concluding part of "The Greville Memoirs," which has recently appeared in London. This part consists of one volume only, and covers the reign of Queen Victoria from 1852 to 1860. They also have just ready a work by General C. C. Andrews, formerly Consul-General to Brazil, entitled "Brazil: its condition and prospects," which affords an exhaustive picture of that country, and can scarcely fail to prove both instructive and entertaining to general readers; also a new novel by Christian Reid, entitled "Miss Churchill: a study."

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will shortly issue "Principles of Art," by J. C. Van Dyke, at one time editor of The Studio. The work is divided into two parts; the first treating of "Art in History," its causes, nature, development, and different stages of progression; the second treating of (modern) "Art in Theory." its aims, motives, and manner of expression. The book may be described as a philosophy of art, but the treatment is popular in nature, and avoids scientific terminology. It will interest artists by its peculiar views, and the intelligent general reader by its condensed history, apt ideas of art, and graphic style.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S Sons will publish at once Mr. John T. Wheelwright's novel, "A Child of the Century," which is described as a typical story of American political and social life, the scene of which is laid principally in Washington; a translation of Kuno Fischer's "History of Modern Philosophy," by a pupil of Prof. Fischer—Prof. J. P. Gordy; and "The Jesuit's Ring," by A. A. Hayes, the story of which turns upon a precious legendary ring which connects the prologue of the romance with the story proper, the latter being concerned with society and love-making at contemporary Bar Harbor. They have also nearly ready the third volume of their "Cyclopædia of Painters and Painting," leaving only one volume more to come. Five hundred copies only of the edition are printed. All but fifty copies of the first volumes have been disposed of already, and the price has been advanced from $100 to $150 a set.

Cassell & Co. have just ready "a thoroughly good, grammatically graduated French reacer," from the pen of Prof. Guillaume S. Conrad, who has for several years been collecting pieces from standard authors, ancient and modern-especially adapted to the different parts of grammar. They have also just ready the "Life and Works of the late Earl of Shaftesbury," who was unquestionably one of the most remarkable men of his time. Mr. Edwin Hodder, to whom Lord Shaftesbury delegated the delicate task of writing his life, contributes a preface in which he tells of the circumstances under which the book was written. "If the story, such as it is, must be told," said his lordship, toward the close of his life, to Mr. Hodder, "I should like it to be told accurately. That cannot be done unless I furnish the means So he gave all his diaries, private and public correspondence, and every scrap of writing he possessed over to Mr. Hodder, who has used his wealth of material with great cleverness and discretion.

ROBERTS BROS. make the following announcements of books in preparation: 'Some Chinese Ghosts," by Lafcadio Hearn; "Cathedral Days," "A Tour through Southern England," by Anna Bowman Dodd, illustrated by E. Eldon Deane; "The Bachelor's Home," by Honoré de Halzac; "The Alkahest," also by the same author; "Between Whiles," by Helen Jackson (H. H.) a volume of short stories; "The Kernal and the Husk," Letters of Spiritual Christianity, by the author of "Philochristus," "A Short History of Philadelphia," by Susan Coolidge; "Beauchamp's Career," "The Egoist" and "The Shaving of a Shagpat," all by George Meredith, bound in uniform style; "Sonnets in Shadow," by Arlo Bates, author of "Berries of the Brier;" "Dante," a Sketch of his Life and Works, by May Alden Ward, a delighful study of the poet's life and works; "A Week Away From Time," a volume of stories by a number of Bostonians, who passed the delightful "week away from time," at "Fair Harbor," a singularly pretty and attractive bit of the very tip end of the heel of Cape Cod.

Agatha and the shadow: a novel. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1887. c. '86. 3-321 p. D. cl.,

A story of the Puritans and the old colony days. The hero is Bernard Anselm, son of the great India merchant of Amsterdam. He comes to America, and marries Agatha, the Puritan daughter of Elder Brewster. An innocent entanglement in his early days with a Jewish maiden Rachel, is the shadow which darkens the lives of both Agatha and her husband. In a spirit of revenge Rachel follows Anselm to the colonies, and leaves no method untried to destroy him. The background to the story of early New England history and descriptions of noted places, is one of its chief charms.

Allen, Grant. Common sense science. Bost., D. Lothrop & Co., [1887.] c. '86. 2-318 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Grant Allen is one of the brightest and most interesting of writers on natural history topics, and also upon what may be called everyday science. In this volume there are twenty-eight chapters upon as many different subjects, none of them exhaustively treated it is true, but all of them suggestive, and calculated to arrest attention, and induce further investigation. Among the most notable papers are: The balance of nature: Instinct and reasoning: The origin of bowing; The earth's interior; Knowledge and opinion; Second nature: Self-con-Knowledge and opin sciousness; Sleep, etc.

an autobiography. Phil., 1. B. Peterson & Bros., [1887.] 17-366 p. D. cl., $1.50.

This is a true story of twelve years passed by a Northern woman in Woodville, Miss. The lady writes in a pleasant, chatty style, and with an evident frankness that carries conviction. She went South in 1854 with her husband a machinist and her children, and had from the beginning to battle with the Southern prejudice against "Yankees." Her narrative is very graphic in its varied experience of keeping store, raising fruits and vegetables, and being suspected of being an Abolitionist. Bentley, Rob. Physiological botany: an abridgment of the "Student's guide to structural, unorpnoiogical, and physiological botany;" pre-pared as a sequel to "Descriptive botany," by Eliza A. Youmans. N. Y., Appleton, 1886. 13+292 p. D. (Appleton's science textbooks.) cl., $1.40.

Designed to give such an elementary account of struc-tural and physiological botany, or of the inner and minute mechanism and activities of plants as is now recognized to be needful in general education. The author, Dr. Robert Bentley, is an eminent English botanist, who has had more than thirty years experience as a teacher and a writer of text-books. These works are mostly devoted to medical botany, but the present is a general treatise prepared for a less advanced class of students. In abridging it Miss Youmans has made very little change in the author's text, which is a model of clear, concise, and accurate statement. The alterations have comissed and accurate statement. The alterations have consi in omissions of certain parts, which are already given in full in the "Descriptive botany," where they properly belong in the present course of botanical study.

D. cl., $1.75.

As one of the brightest of English comedians, and one of the earliest of American managers, and a most important figure on the stage of the United States in the beginning of the century, John Bernard is best remembered. He figured also as an author, his "Retrospections of the Stage," being among the most interesting of the literature of the mimic art. The present volume written from his MS. shows he was as shrewd a social observer as a brilliant comedian. He came to this country in 1797, well equipped in every way to benefit by what he saw. He had been the intimate, in England, of Fox and Sheridan and other Whigs of the Beefsteak Club—his naturally keen mind expanding under this exceptional association. In this country he met Washington, Jefferson, Charles Carroll, John Adams, and other distinguished men on terms of friendship. His impressions of individual and of social observance he jotted down freely and impartially. "The aim of this work is given in its title. First, it is an 'introduction' only, and does not go into the details or the literature of the subject. The aim is to point out the highways of psychology rather than its myriad byways. Secondly, it is an 'introduction to psychological theory,' and aims less at a knowledge of facts than at an understanding of principles."—Introduction. It describes and classifies mental process, traces their origin and cause, studies these laws as shown in general, and formulates a theory evolved from this description. The style is singularly lucid and fair, strictly adhering to facts.

S. cl., 75 c. Mr. Rolfe, in his preface, commends the volume "to all 'Christian folk' as good reading for Christmas Eve or Easter Day, or any other time in the year." The poems are printed from the most recent text, and each has a brief introduction and explanatory notes. These are in the most direct and simple style. They aim only to explain difficult allusions and constructions. Miss Hersey has recently assisted Mr. W. J. Rolfe in editing a volume of selections from Browning for his "English classics." The notes are in the general well-known style of the notes in that series. They are, however, somewhat less full, as this book is not especially designed for school use.

The question of identity, which at the moment is the epidemic among novel-writers, has been skillfully handled in this story. Two cousins are born on the same day. One mother dies, the other is so ill for a long time that both babies are taken care of together, and the nurse, excited over the family troubles, forgets which is which. The surviving mother brings them up together, and loves them equally. The plot and denouement are exciting. The character of the mother and her influence upon the opposite characters of the boys show some fine work. opposite characters of the boys show some fine work.

Few English clergymen are better known in this country than Frederic D. Maurice, whose untimely death, country than Frederic D. Maurice, whose untimely death, some years ago, deprived not only England, but the Christian world, of one of its ablest religious teachers. He was bred a Unitarian, but subsequently became a member of the Church of England, and, in 1888, was ordained a clergyman. He devoted a great deal of his time to the social and religious needs of the common people. The present volume, made up of excerpts and extracts from his sermons, writings, and correspondence, has unusual and permanent value. It is a treasure-house not of jewels, but of things useful for every-day life; ideas which go straight home, and make the reader think. There is no useless display of rhetoric, or attempt at brilliancy, but it is the true, honest talk of a true, honest man, with a purpose in it.

Being desirous of seeing something of low life in Europe, Mr. Meriwether donned the blouse and hobnailed shoes of a workman, and spent a year in a tramp trip from Gibraltar to the Bosphorus. From the moment he embarks on the Independent, the Italian steamer for which he secured a steerage ticket, until his return to New York, the spirit of the narrative is sustained, each page bringing to the reader new incidents, amusing and valuable experiences, and droll descriptions of the people he met, who were as frequently from high life as low life. The writer lived entirely with the workingmen of the country he tramped through. His experience, consequently, is valuable from a political stand-point, as it embraces many facts regarding wages and living, which could only be obtained by personal observation. An appendix contains a comparative tariff table and a comparative wage table. Some hints to pedestrians complete the attractive volume.

The A painful story of an illicit love which has its "spring," "summer," "autumn," and dreary "winter." The heroine is a young New England girl, with an unknown Italian mother; her passionate, undisciplined nature leads her to cast off the sincere love of a young man, worthy and suitable in every way, and to accept that of Philip Winslow, a married man. Winslow is a man of wealth and position, married to a woman far his superior, mentally and merally. His wife's virtues become irksome to him, and she quickly discovers that she has not married him for love. They are mutually unhappy, and he seeking Monza Middleton, at last persuades her to go away with him to Italy. This is the central motive, but others cluster around it, and some good character sketches, especially of the twin-brothers Arthur and Stuart Bryce, are introduced. By the author of "Troubadours and trouvères," etc.

Twin sisters, so much alike that John Beckley, the husband of one, is never quite sure whether it is Leah or Rachel he had married, are the heart of a singular mystery, which is left unsolved even at the close of the wastery, which is left unsolved even at the close of con-book. The scene is first laid in London: afterward it changes to a New England village, where the larger part of the story takes place. It is the ordinary one of love and marriage, the dark shadows being found in the tragical story of the twins, and in the unscrupulousness of a sanctimonious old deacon, who takes "liberties" with the bank account of a friend,

The hero, Hugh Malcolm, is introduced to the reader on board ship on his way back from Australia to Scot-land, where his uncle has recently died. Hugh's uncle had been the "laird of Dunree," and naturally he expects to be his heir. He finds himself disinherited, however, all of Dunree being left to public charities, with the excep-tion of a small tract of land in which his ancestors are buried—this forms his "strange inheritance." Hugh has to earn his living, and becomes the agent of Dunree, through the influence of one of his father's old friends. Living thus on the very spot, link after link in the chain of the thrilling story of the causes of his being disin-herited comes into his hands. The tale is well told, and is full of surprises and exciting details. Twin-girls of great beauty are here the heroines of two episodes of love.

Sycamore Hill, easily recognized as a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia, is where the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Reese is situated. Mr. Reese has married wealth, and is treated by his wife with both indifference and contempt. His only solace and resource is the Sycamore Shakesperean Society, which meets weekly at his house. The debates of this society are exceedingly clever and amusing and offer a timely satire upon the doings of house. The debates of this society are exceedingly clever and amusing, and offer a timely satire upon the doings of kindred associations. Mrs. Reese not only rules her husband and the house, but her only daughter Miriam, who has been brought up to marry position, and who, with many attractive traits, has a singularly morbid and suspicious nature. Every wooser who approaches her she believes drawn to her by her fortune. Her love story and those of several of her friends, both male and female, with the social doings of Sycamore Hill, in which is mixed a good deal of talk and gossip, are the main motives of the book.

These advantages, and her good looks, and some natural talent, make her quite a success on the store. some natural talent, make her quite a success on the stage to which she finally drifts. A great deal of space is given to life behind the curtain. Its little bickerings and jealousies, the successes attained only through hard work, the strange characters of the green-room recruited from all classes, are admirably depicted. A special freshness is a characteristic of the book. The author has both wit and humor. Elizabeth's fortune is concerned with other things, however, beside the stage.

The introduction by John Boyle O'Reilly dwells upon the need of a good history of Ireland for American readers, among whom so large a Celtic element exists. He hopes in time to find Irish nistory taught in American schools with the history of other nationalities. That it is ignored in English schools is not singular, but it would seem necessary that the young of other countries should seem necessary that the young of other countries should know something of the history, beauty and wealth, ethnology, philology, geography, and romantic legends of one of the most discussed and most abused countries on the face of the globe. Mr. Towle's style is popular and attractive. He brings the story down to to-day, including the latest movements under Gladstone and Parnell for Home Rule.

Saint Michael is the name of a lonely little Alpine parish, presided over by a saintly Catholic priest, who has taken charge of the education of Michael Steinrilck, the grandson of the proud head of the house of Steinruck. His mother had married against the old Count's wishes, and he had sworn never to forgive her or her child. The priest's brother adopts the boy and lets him enter the army. As captain he meets his grandfather, who is his general. The events transpire at the time of the German war for unity. Michael's adopted brother is a genial artist, who does much to cheer up those with whom he comes in contact. The old general is finally won over by his young kinsman. Mrs. Wister's translation is smooth and spirited.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

S. H. ZAHM, Lancaster, Pa., has issued a catalogue of scarce books, including early Pennsylvania imprints, etc. (8 p. S.)

Mr. EDWARD ROTH, 1135 Pine Street, Philadelphia, is nearing the end of the biographical portion of his "Complete Index to Littell's Living Age (first 100 volumes). His tenth number ends with Vespucci.

FRANCIS P. HARPER, 4 Barclay St., N. Y., has issued a new catalogue, No. 16, of books relating to the Rebellion and Slavery (16 p. S.). Also a list (No. 15) of books in various departments of literature. (8 p. O.)

P. GAYNON, 53 Rue de Pont St. Roche, Quebec, Canada, has issued a "Catalogue d'une collection importante en ouvrages sur l'histoire du Canada ou de la Nouvelle France) . . . et un evingtaine de volumes imprimés par le célèbre Alde Manuce," etc. (16 p. O.)

W. B. Saunders, 33 S. 10th Street, Philadelphia. has issued a fine catalogue of illustrated, fine art. Gould's and miscellaneous books, including "Mammals of Australia; "Gerome's Works ($200 edition); Cotman's Etchings; Houbraken's Heads; Temple of the Muses (a curious Mytho-Houbraken's logical work); Gallerria Pittore etc. (77 p. O.(

MR. ROBERT W. Lowe's bibliography of theatrical literature, says the N. Y. Tribune, is to be published in London next season. It aims at giving a complete catalogue, with historical notes of books and pamphlets on dramatic matters published in Great Britian. Plays are excluded, unless when accompanied by prefaces of historical importance. Shakspeariana, too, having already been exhaustively catalogued, do not find a place, unless they bear directly upon the stage presentation of Shakspeare's plays.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—George Osius & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership. George Wahr, the junior member of the firm, has bought the business, and will hereafter carry it on under his own name.

Boston, Mass.—The partnership existing under the firm name of Cleaves, Macdonald & Co., expired by limitation on the 1st inst., Mr. Emory Cleaves retiring. A new firm was formed under the name of Laughton, Macdonald & Co. Mr. Laughton is well known in the Boston trade, many years, and lately with Cupples, Upham & Co., is a hard worker, and is thoroughly posted in the retail business.

MAYVILLE, N. Y.—Herman Sixbey, bookseller, has purchased the stock and "good will" of W. S. Gleason, of that place.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry E. Bandell has been admitted to the firm of Greil & Wildermann, imorters of books, the firm-style now being Greil, Wildermann & Co.

NEW YORK CITY.—Wm. Evarts Benjamin and Wm. Haywood Bell have entered into partnership under the firm name of Benjamin & Bell, to do a general publishing business. Their field, though not definitely settled upon, will probably be in the direction of fine books, belles lettres, This business is independent of, and not connected with, the separate business of William Evarts Benjamin in rare books, prints, and autographs; which will as usual be solely conducted by himself.

NEW YORK CITY .- S. A. Potter, D. F. Knight, J. F. Ainsworth, and Edwin Loomis, under the firm name of Potter, Knight, Ainsworth & Co., succeed to the business heretofore carried on under the firm name of Potter, Ainsworth & Co., A. S. Barnes retiring.

NEW YORK CITY .-- O. F. Chamberlain, 843 Broadway, has gone out of business.

PHILADELPHIA.—The partnership heretofore existing between John E. Potter and Edwin J. Buckley, trading as J. E. Potter & Co., booksellers and publishers, was dissolved by mutual consent, Jan. 22, Mr. Buckley retiring. The business will be continued as heretofore by John E. Potter, who will act as liquidating partner.

Philadelphia, Pa. Edward Meeks (E. Claxton, agent) has moved to more commodious quarters, at No. 1012 Walnut Street.

PITTSFIELD, ILL.—Bush & Crane, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Henry Bush.

TEMPLE, Tex.—Branch & Hall, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership, Mr. Hall retiring. M. W. Branch will continue the business, and settle the accounts of the late firm.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

CAN any one inform us of the address of Henry Kingston, who, in 1882, published a book on the etiology, pathology, and treatment of

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBUARY 12, 1887.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

THE LIMITS OF CATALOGUING: A CRIT-ICISM AND A REPLY.

On looking through the Annual Summary Number, I note another manifestation of your passion for doubling and twisting up matters by making two indexes, etc. I cannot understand why a man who values time as highly as you do should not be able to see that to make a reference book with more than one alphabet from A to Z, doubles, triples, or quadruples the labor of all who use it. This is the reason for the popular favor with which dictionary catalogues, dictionary guide-books, etc., etc., are received. I hope another year we may have one or two less alphabets in the Annual Catalogue.

2d. p. 185, 4676 books recorded. p. 199, 8352 books copyright deposits. Where are the 3676? Cannot the office of the Publishers' Wreely get more of them? I believe that some arrangement can be made by which you can get a copy of every title page received by Spofford. Of course you could not get prices, but this would not matter. You should send a printed letter to every publisher (not otherwise asked) for price for record, and incidentally mention the fact that it would be a good plan to advertise the book in question. Enough advertising, I think, might be obtained to pay a profit on the expense of making your records very much more complete than at present, as shown by the figures above quoted.

Yours,

E. A. MAC.

We print the above personal letter as fair text for some notes of reply to friendly critics of the work of this office.

the year to obtain from publishers full and prompt information as to each book which they published, with the specific statement that there would be no charge whatever for its publication in our record lists. In this endeavor to make a comprehensive catalogue of American book production we have been more successful from year to year, as our organization has been bettered, and the work of this office has become more widely known and accepted as authoritative. In the Publishers' Weekly for Aug. 9, 1873, will be found an extraordinary looking page, in which Mr. Leypoldt showed graphically a week's record as the publishers themselves furnished it. The page contained only three titles. That stage of trade bibliography has gone by and most of the publishers now respond with fair promptness and fullness to our inquiries, and few books of real trade or literary importance are now omitted from our weekly record.

- 2. At the end of the year we make an additional effort, by means of the Annual Summary Number and otherwise, to fill the gaps left by the inattention of publishers, and this brought us word the current year of a hundred books (largely, however, re-issues) which we should have recorded in 1886. It was not practicable to include these in the regular alphabets of the Annual Catalogue and its index, for as the results on the original American Catalogue showed, we could have spent a full year, or years, before running to earth all the omissions, and the result would have been a catalogue issued after most of its usefulness had departed, at an expense far beyond all possible returns, and after all incomplete. The practical bibliographer has to accept practical limitations. The catalogue of a great library usually requires years of labor on the part of a trained staff, who have the books at hand for reference, and even then mistakes and even omissions have been known to occur. The trade bibliographer who waited to make his catalogue ideal would never have practical results to show. The practical steps suggested in the above letter have been taken time and time again, and with almost no result. In this dilemma it has always seemed best to print a supplementary alphabet, rather than to leave the trade without the information which we could put at their service in this imperfect manner.
- 3. The discrepancy between the number of books recorded by this office and the number of copyright deposits in the library of Congress, is much greater than appears in our correspondent's quotation, since we record a great number of reprint books which do not reach the copyright office at all. We have several times endeavored to make arrangements with the Library of Congress to give the titles there entered, and negotiations on the subject are still on the tapis, but the difficulties are very serious. The cost of transcribing, editing and printing the additional titles would be so considerable as very possibly to exhaust the margin of profit on the Publishers' Weekly itself. Of the titles so obtained a large part would be mere trash, which is practically never sold in a bookstore, and is preserved only in the few large libraries which undertake to preserve everything. The copyright entries would of themselves be useless because they include a great number of projects which never see the light and the title of which would only confuse bibliographers and booksellers; and publishers are so very careless in promptly depositing their copyright books that an endeavor to check off entries by deposits would be in many cases abortive. These, however, are small difficulties in comparison to many others which the practical cataloguer for the book trade has to face, and we still hope to develop some plan by which the copyright records may be practically put at the service of our readers.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE: ANNUAL DINNER.

THE reception-room of the Hotel Brunswick began to fill at about half-past six, Thursday evening, Feb. 10, with a good-looking and evidently prosperous set of people, whose business in life is to provide their fellow-mortals with the physical basis of thinking. They had come to lay in individual supplies of the physical basis of life, to eat and make merry at the twelfth annual dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade. President H. B. Barnes was there to receive them, and with him an effective Reception Committee, consisting of Messrs. H. E. Pratt, Chairman; Wm. B. Boorum, Theo. E. Smith, Henry C. Bainbridge, D. Pritchard, E. J. Horsman, John A. Walker, Edward Todd, W. D. L. Barnes, and John V. Koch.

As seven approached, there was a move in the direction of the handsome and brilliantly lighted dining-hall, where a capital dinner was waiting thanks to a Dinner Committee composed of Messrs. Chas. A. Clapp, Alex. Agar, Emil Berolzheimer, C. F. A. Hinrichs, and Frank Squier. The tables were decorated with flowers and with elaborate mounted pieces of confectionery, representing paper, quills, ink-stands, and other staples of the trade in unusual materials and certainly novel styles.

The following was the menu, which was handsomely printed on a novel and tasteful card. presented with the compliments of Chas. T. Bainbridge's Sons, on the overlap of which appeared a bit of "Auld Lang Syne.

At the dais table, President Barnes was supported by Messrs. S. L. Clemens, C. M. Tainter, Rev. Lyman Abbott, Gen. S. L. Woodford, C. C. Beaman, J. Seaver Page, Byron Weston, Geo. L. Pease, C. H. Leeds, W. J. Martin, and Mr. Janeway, Mr. C. M. Depew appearing later in the evening.

Mr. C. A. Clapp presided at table 3, where he had gathered most of the book men present, including Chas. Scribner, C. T. Dillingham, Oscar M. Dunham, J. L. Blamire, J. S. Oakley, W. D. L. Barnes, Theo. C. Smith, H. H. Bridgman, C. H. Ames, C. E. Merrill, L. Valentine, Mr. Plimpton, D. Pritchard, Robert Beall, of Washington, R. R. Bowker, John H. Dingman, A. L. Hollingsworth, Mr. McQuillan, and others.

Mr. W. B. Sheffield presided at table 4, with Mr. Urquhart, N. Taylor, Jr., G. D. McIlvaine, J. W. Kelly, Howard Lockwood, N. W. Walsh, A. M. Kellogg, G. L. Wright, Mr. Collins, Mr. Sesnon, Mr. Hamilton, Jas. D. Shipman, C. S. McLoughlin, Mr. Miller, D. C. Dean, J. S. Ogilvie, J. C. Charlous, D. B. Rising, B. D. Rising, and others. At table 1, Mr. E. F. C. Young presided, and with him were S. Krauss, O. B. Hastings, Ed. Todd, G. B. D. Reeve, H. B. Dennison, F. B. Gilbert, H. K. Dyer, E. Faber, Richard Butler, A. J. C. Foye, H. Berolzheimer, E. E. Huber, J. Hardman, G. F. Perkins, D. A. Tower, J. F. Talbot, C. S. Dennison, J. A. Walker, and r. 1aidot, C. S. Dennison, J. A. Walker, and Homer Lee; while table 2, with Mr. Frank Squier at the head, seated Geo. F. Hicks, Andrew Geyer, C. L. Chapin, J. S. Packard, D. G. Garabrant, A. G. Elliott, L. Dejonge, Jr., C. Zintgraf, P. M. Krause, C. M. Chapin, W. H. Parsons, Geo. Vernon, F. W. Wilson, H. E. Pratt, W. B. Dillon, H. L. Carter, Louis Stech, J. F. Ackerman, F. H. Parks, and David Scott.

Gen. A. C. Barnes headed table 5, flanked by J. V. Brower, W. B. Boorum, J. Q. Preble, Mr. Liebenroth, I. Von Auw, E. I. Knight, A. W. Esleeck, S. S. Molleson, Alex. Agar, R. W. Bainbridge, H. C. Bainbridge, Jas. W. Tappan, H. W. Southworth, G. W. Knight, G. W. Lindsay, E. I. Horsman, W. C. Hamblin, E. J. Merriam, and C. S. Kiggins; while the sixth table, presided over by Mr. C. F. A. Hinrichs, held W. O. Campbell, P. W. Lapham, Miles Vernon, Mr. Johansen, L. Pattberg, Jr., Wm. Bruns, F. W. Hinrichs, Mr. Felter, I. N. Strauss, A. Klingenburg, J. V. Koch, S. E. Vernon, S. R. Morgan, II. Stephany, Sam Gabriel, S. Ulmann, O. Strauss, Chas. Dotter, and S. D. Snyder.

In all, about 130 were present, and the excellent arrangements prevented any difficulty in seating this number, which fully filled the hall.

After a blessing had been asked by Rev. Dr. Abbott, the diners fell merrily at work at their gastronomic duty, and when coffee was served President Barnes rapped for order and made a very fitting introduction to the post-prandial business of the evening. He said it was scarcely necessary to introduce to the members the guests of the evening who were to address them, but he desired the latter to understand what and who the Stationers' Board of Trade were. He explained the organization humorously as "a great com-bine," a definition which brought out laughter and sotto voce protest, and referred to its three departments: the Hureau of Information as to mercantile credits, which had furnished 13.0 reports to members during the past year Bureau of Collection of overdue accounts, had dealt last year with over 1300 claims amounting to $100,000 and collected 49 per cent.; and the Bureau of Failures and Assignments, which takes charge of all claims against insolvent estates, which last year had 465 cases in its hands, from which it recovered $34,000. In all $300,000 had passed through the hands of the Bureau. The committee now proposed to add a fourth department, a Bureau of Law, employing a capable lawyer's entire services for the use of members, and he thought the Board would assent. This would require a raise of annual dues from $50 to $75 and of the initiation fee from $50 to $100, and he invited those present not yet members to come in on the ground-floor while there was yet time.

Mr. C. C. Beaman, of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, was then introduced as the first speaker, and announced his subject as "red tape." said that he had been trying to find out what the Stationers' Board of Trade really was, and now he learned that it was a great combination to get rid of lawyers, against which he entered protest. He asked if lawyers did not divide all of 50 per cent. with their clients instead of 49, and pointed out that by the confession of the President the Board had been most successful at failures. drew an amusing picture of Franklin as a Philadelphia stationer, quoting interestingly from the autobiography. He then gave various illustrations that the pen is mightier than the sword. concluding with an eloquent tribute to Grant at Appomattox, when his pen proved greater than Lee's sword, and to the Grant book as likely to be a classic when the Chinese Empire of California would read translations of Xenophon from the Greek, Cæsar from the Latin, and Grant from the otherwise forgotten English. Mr. Beaman then announced that he had at last reached the subject on which he really meant to talk, "red tape"and sat down, amidst applause.

A letter of regret from Mr. A. D. F. Randolph, who was expected to be present, was then read, in which he urged the stationers to give the less wealthy publishers who might be present one good, square meal, and Mr. Chas. N. Taintor, Commissioner of Emigration, was called upon to respond for the publishers. He referred first to his relations to emigration, and spoke humorously of the large supply of population, Aldermanic and otherwise, passing from the United States into Canada. Continuing, he made some very earnest remarks on the present condition of the school-book trade. He said that in at least half the Legislatures of the 38 States the question was suggested as to whether the rights and privileges of publishers to publish their books and furnish them through the open and free markets of trade should not be taken away. "Not only is the school-book trade threatened with a danger of this description. nearly half the Legislatures that are in session to-day, bills are introduced to establish State printing-offices, to be supported by the taxes of the people, and to deprive you and me of our privileges to sell our wares in the markets of a free country. I wish to raise a warning cry. Let this organization, banded together for mutual protection, stand up and resist the tendency of the age to deprive us of our occupation. Establish a Department that shall aid the press of the poor. Contribute liberally to this so that we shall not be accused of indifference."

speaker, said that the connection between authors and stationers was that one class made good clean paper and the other spoiled it. "Steam may come and steam may go, but stationers go on forever, said he further, as he passed, from the fact that the mail of a single inland Massachusetts town was now equal to the entire mail of the whole country when the Constitution was adopted, to a prophetic query as to the enormous demand for stationery that would come a hundred years hence when balloons may be taking the place of railways and our legislators may be busy on a bill regulating interstate commerce in the air.

Mr. Clemens, who was received with storms of applause, doubtless because of his triple connection with the trade as author, publisher, and inventor of "Mark Twain's Scrap-Book," next discoursed and discursed about as follows: "I find this an evening of surprises. I came here through an understanding with the Chairman that I, having reformed, was not to break over pledges made and drift into an after-dinner speech, unless I saw immoralities or crimes being committed, and lo! I have waited in constant expectation that something would be said or done that would compel me to speak. But concerning what has been said and done here I am bound to say that thus far they have been mere misdemeanors. I have been introduced to you as an example of the author and the publisher. I am one of the latest publishers, and I am one of the oldest authors, and certainly one of the best. When I came here I expected to remain in some humble capacity outside of the door, and never dreamed of being made conspicuous by taking a seat high up among the distinguished guests; but, then, I am used to being made conspicuous.

"As I say, I have found nothing really to attack. I expected Mr. Beaman to commit himself-lawyers are always committing themselves -but Mr. Beaman was-was-the fact is his speech can actually be complimented. As to his attacking Ben, that is to say Ben Franklin, an old dead man, that can be explained. Franklin was Philadelphia is a sober city to-day. What must good as Sunday to be in Philadelphia now. Franklin was frugal, and as he says himself, with becoming modesty, he had no vices, because, though he little suspected it, he made a vice of frugality. You saw, as Mr. Beaman told you, how he did, but when he mentions why he did it he gives himself away, and finally, he wishes that at the last he may be shoved into a barrel of Madeira, but if he had lived here instead of in Philadelphia he would have wanted to get the barrel of Madeira into him.

Referring to the Chairman's statement that the Board was about to establish a legal department, Mark said: "You want a chaplain more than you do a lawyer," and respecting his career as a publisher: "Oh, I can tell you a great deal about publishing, but I don't think I will. I am rather too fresh yet. I am at the honest stage now, but after awhile, when I graduate and grow rich, I will tell you all about it."

He then spoke rather seriously as to books and education:

"It is so common that an education is within the grasp of every one, and if he does not want to pay for it, why here is the State ready to pay for it for him. But sometimes I want to inquire what an education is. I remember myself, and after which Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, the next all of you old fellows probably remember the same of yourselves, that when I went to school I was told that an adjective is an adverb and it must be governed by the third person singular, and all that sort of thing, and when I got out of school I straightway forgot all about it. In my combined character of publisher and author I receive a great many manuscripts from people who say they want a candid opinion whether that is good literature or not. That is all a lie; what they want is a compliment. But as to this matter of education, the first that strikes you is how much teaching has really been done and how much is worthless cramming. You have all seen a little book called 'English as She is Spoke. Now, in my capacity of publisher, I recently received a manuscript from a teacher which embodied a number of answers given by her pupils to questions propounded. We couldn't publish it, but we got a publisher for it, and within a month or so I shall have an article in the Century about it, of which I received the proof to-day. answers show that the children had nothing but the sound to go by; the sense was perfectly empty. Here are some of their answers to words they were asked to define: Auriferous-pertaining to an orifice; ammonia-the food of the gods; equestrian—one who asks questions; parasite—a kind of umbrella; ipecac-a man who likes a good dinner. And here is this definition of an ancient word honored by a great party: Republican -a sinner mentioned in the Bible. here is an innocent deliverance of a zoölogical kind: There are a good many donkeys in the theological gardens. Here also is a definition which really isn't very bad in its way: Demagogue—a vessel containing beer and other liquids. Here, too, is a sample of a boy's composition on girls, which I must say, I rather like :

"" Girls are very stuckup and dignfied in their manner and behaveyour. They think more of dress than anything and like to play with dowls and rags. They city if they see a cow in a far distance and are afraid of guns. They stay at home all the time and go to church every Sunday. They are al-ways sick. They are al-ways funy and makeing fun of boys hands and they say how dirty. They cant play marbles. I pity them, poor things. They make fun of boys and then turn round and love them. I don't beleave they ever kiled a cat or anything. They look out every nite and say, "Oh. a'nt the moon lovely!" Thir is one thing I have not told and that is they al-ways now their lessons bettern boys."

The following letter was then read from Mayor Hewitt:

To Henry D. Barnes, Chairman, 111 William Street, New York.

New York, Jan. 26. MY DEAR SIR: I had many reasons for desiring to attend the dinner of the stationers and booksellers, and I have held on to hope until now I see my expectation is in vain. While I have suffered yery much in body, I am much more disturbed by my inability to do many things which I intended to do. I do not feel able to even dictate a few words on the influence of trades organizations in developing or retarding the prosperity of this They can do a great deal of good, but they may also be made engines of mischief. Just now this city is suffering and seems likely to suffer from a new form of despotism by which not only employees but employers are deprived of free agency, and are made subject to the control of a secret body, where situated and of whom composed nobody seems to know. l don't believe that the people of this country, especially its intelligent workmen, whose right to organization for mutual advantage no one denies, will continue long to submit themselves to the intolerable oppression of strikes, boycotts, and inability to earn their daily bread at the will of a secret body whose mandates are given without explanations and from whose orders there seems to be no appeal.

While I would maintain the right of men to organize in their own way for their own protection, I would insist upon the right of the men who do not choose to connect themselves with associations, but prefer to act as free lances, if you choose, to exercise their undoubted right of individual choice. Least of all is it to be conceded that one set of men shall deprive other sets of men of the right to labor. Such a doctrine simply reduces free labor to a condition of serfage more intolerable even than that which prevailed in the Middle Ages.

There will be no security until the intelligence of the community is aroused and the decision is arrived at on the part of employers that they will not permit any portion of their men to be coerced or restrained in their right to join or to refuse to join trade associations. I would not discourage such associations, but, on the contrary I shall hope to see the time when masters and workmen will belong to such organizations, intended to promote the welfare of the trade in which they are engaged.

There may be at times differences of opinion, or even strikes, yet it is intolerable that under any circumstances the business of the whole community shall be arrested because some man may imagine that he has a grievance which requires the sacrifice of thousands of people in order that he may get rights that ought to be secured to him by law and confirmed in the courts if they be denied. In other words, in this country the only overruling power is the law, which expresses the will of the people, and any attempt to establish any other tribunal than the courts, and especially irresponsible and secret tribunals, can only bring on a paralysis of industry and the ruin of the very class whose interests are at stake. Apologizing for this imperfect statement of the views which I had hoped to expound more at length, I am, very truly yours, ABRAM S. HEWITT.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, who had just come from delivering his inaugural address as President of the Union League Club, was then called upon, and after some bright talk, addressed himself seriously and effectively to one of the great questions of the day.

"I am glad to hear that letter of Mayor Hewitt. I think it is the most important contribution that has been made on the extraordinary condition in which we find ourselves to-day. scheme of government in which nobody is represented, or has interests at stake, has been suddenly projected upon this community. The scheme is that somebody whom nobody knows shall, when anybody anywhere in the country has, or claims to have, a grievance, proclaims the paralysis of society; that because there is a disagreement among the cotton-workers or the woolworkers in a single factory somewhere in a remote town, transportation service shall stop, manufactories close, and whole communities be left without the means of fire, clothing, food, or any communication with business, schools, or fami-And in the Congress which decrees things that could not be done by the Czar of Russia nobody who is affected has a representation or has This is an imperium in imperio which a voice. never existed in a civilized or savage community " Among our people appeared a man yesterday with yellow kid gloves and a stove-pipe hat and a watch-chain that weighed a pound and a half. He offered the leading men in that department, which has over 100 employees, their salaries for a year in advance if they would have those men out and paralyze the business of 100 merchants in the town. If they had struck it would have been said by the leaders of this movement that it was another evidence of the oppression of capital over labor. I believe in labor organizations. I believe in the absolute right to strike, and in the right of a man to work wherever he chooses, but without the interference of any association.

"There is no trouble among the real workingmen of this country that could not be adjusted. There is no condition that requires a social revolution—that requires the grievances of 100 men to suspend the living of 60,000,000 people. If it were, we are prepared to go back to that condition of savagery where anarchy prevails, where the cut-throat becomes the ruling element in the community, where people, abandoning homes which are no longer safe, take to the woods and streams and die of starvation, until some strong man, without heart, but with a large brain, arises, and, concentrating around him the violent forces of the community, becomes an autocrat, a despot, and a terror."

Mr. Depew concluded with some happy humorous remarks, after which, on motion, a vote of thanks and approval for Mayor Hewitt's letter was moved and unanimously passed.

Gen. Woodford, counsel for the Board, was then called upon, and made one of his clever afterdinner speeches, after which, close upon midnight, the assembly dispersed, thoroughly pleased with the evening's feast for the inner and the outer man. It was throughout a most pleasant occasion, and everybody wanted to come next time.

THE SALE OF SUBSCRIPTION BOOKS IN BOOK-STORES.

MESSRS. HUBBARD BROTHERS, of Philadelphia, courteously furnish our readers with the following report of their recent suit against John Wanamaker:

In the Circuit Court of the United States, this morning in the case of Ben Perley Poore and Hubbard Bros. against John Wanamaker, in which Hubbard Bros. charged Wanamaker with selling "Perley's Reminiscences" in the trade contrary to the rights of the author, the Judge in disposing of the motion for a preliminary injunction delivered an oral opinion regarding the facts and law in this case substantially as follows: First, that the plaintiffs, (Hubbard Bros.) bill of complaint and their affidavits set forth a case which entitles them clearly to an injunction to restrain the defendant (Wanamaker) from selling the said book in the trade. Second, that the defendant (Wanamaker) having stated under oath that he had no knowledge of the fact that this book was sold by subscription only, that he had purchased but ten sets of the book, was apparently an inno-cent purchaser thereof. In the face of this sworn statement, the Court, accepting this affidavit as true, would not, in this preliminary stage, grant the injunction asked, but in order to protect the rights of the parties, the Court directed an order to be entered to the effect that the plaintiff's (Hubbard Bros.) motion was denied but the defendant (Wanamaker) was ordered to keep a correct account and, to file in the Court once in every ten days, a sworn statement of the number of copies sold till he should dispose of those he had in his possession at the time the bill was filed, and that now having notice, any further purchase or sale would clearly entitle the plaintiffs (Hubbard Bros.) to an injunction, and plaintiffs (Hubbard Bros.) have the liberty of renewing the motion for an injunction at any time that circumstances in the case should make it desirable.

The effect of this order is to permit Wanamaker to sell those actually on hand, which according to his sworn statement were purchased innocently, but to notify him that any further dealing in this book cannot be regarded as done in innocence of the penalty of the law. It is said to further establish the principle that booksellers lay themselves liable to prosecution, and to an accounting in damages when they buy and sell a book, knowing that it is sold, as this book is purely by subscription.

The publishers, Hubbard Bros., state that a notice was mailed by them to Wanamaker's establishment prior to the issue of the book, that in every copy of the book they printed a notice on the back of the title page, and that reviews in all the public papers stated that the book was sold by subscription only, and that Wanamaker's people generally were aware of this fact, evidence of which is found in their having purchased the book from parties in Syracuse, N. Y., instead of applying to the publishers who were within a few squares of their store. That they had full knowledge that the book was published by subscription only, seems very evident.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ZARARR WILMSHURST, conspicuous as a writer on insurance matters, died on January 27, in Brooklyn. The real name of Mr. Wilmshurst was William Bennett; but in early manhood he obtained a legal change of name and adopted the designation under which he lived and died. He was born in England in 1824, and in his youth was one of the literary associates and friends who clustered, in her latter days, about the celebrated Countess Blessington. On coming to America he devoted his talents more particularly to miscellaneous literature, and published one or two collections of his poems. In 1874 a collection of his poetical writings, called "The Winter the Heart, and other Poems," was published by Dodd & Mead. In the latter part of his life he contributed to periodical literature, chiefly short stories and religious poetry. Many of his hymns are favorites.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Phonographic Magazine is the title of a new and enterprising-looking monthly devoted to phonography and spelling reform. The magazine will be under the editorship of Mr. Jerome B. Howard, who for five years past has been daily associated with Mr. Benn Pitman in the compilation of phonographic works and the revision of Mr. Pitman's series of text-books. The magazine will, therefore, be the one thing needful to students of the Benn Pitman system of phonography—a periodical complement to the regular books of instruction.

The Pharmaceutical Era is the title of a new monthly exponent of pharmaceutical science and practice, published by D. O. Haynes & Co., Box 583, Detroit, Mich. The particular purpose of the Era, according to its prospectus, will be to serve as a guide, 1st to the more advanced student by furnishing him in its "Index Pharmaceuticus" with a key to current pharmaceutical literature, and 2d to the beginner by furnishing matter especially of an educational character in chemistry, botany, microscopy, and pharmacognosy. The first number, dated January, is a small quarto of 32 pages, full of interesting features, some of them with illustrations. An eight-page supplement contains a corrected list of the English commercial names of botanical drugs with their pharmacopæial and botanical synonyms.

LUCY C. LILLIE will contribute the complete novel, which has become a leading feature of Lippincott's Magazine to the March number of that periodical. The title is "Kenyon's Wife." Robert J. Burdette will give a humorous sketch of his own career, under the title "Confessions of a Reformed Humorist." W. H. Milburn, "the blind chaplain," will follow with some "Autobiographical Notes of a Congressional Chaplain," and Henry C. Lea will attack "The Policy of Insurance," in an article which will be sure to attract general attention. A still more important contribution will be "Gen. John A. Logan, by one who knew him," written under the personal supervision of Mrs. Logan, and with the advice and assistance of Generals Sherman, Frémont, Clark, and others of Logan's comrades-in-arms.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PAUL HEYSE has written a novel which he entitles "Der Roman der Stiftsdame."

THE title of Zola's new book will be called "The Earth" (La Terre.)

ADMIRAL MEHMED PASHA, who, like some other Ottoman naval officers, was educated in England, has published in Turkish an illustrated work on naval tactics, the first of its kind in that language.

Mr. Dawson, formerly librarian of the Senate at Washington, and an intimate friend of the late John A. Logan, is writing a life of the General. He receives assistance from Mrs. Logan. The book will be published in Chicago.

It is said in New Orleans that the author of "Towards the Gulf," recently issued by Harper & Bros., is Mrs. Alice Morris Buckner, widow of Capt. Richard L. Buckner, a recently deceased cotton merchant of that city. She has another volume nearly ready for the press.

Dr. Steinschneider has completed his bibliographical supplement to Benjacob's "Treasure of Hebrew books" (in Hebrew, Wilna, 1880), which is arranged alphabetically according to titles. Dr. Steinschneider will also supply an alphabetical list of authors. These two volumes may be considered as the omega of Hebrew bibliography.

It is reported that the author of "The Story of Margaret Kent" is none other than Mrs. Kirk, the accomplished wife of the former editor of Lippincott's Magazine, who, under the name of E. W. Olney, published, with the Lippincotts, the two fine stories, "Love in Idleness" and "Through Winding Ways."

H. R. H. PRINCESS CHRISTIAN is said to be engaged on a translation of the interesting "Memoirs of the Margravine of Bayreuth." The translation will be accompanied by an introduction of some length from the pen of her Royal Highness, which will throw considerable light on the influence which the Margravine possessed on the mind and actions of her illustrious brother Frederick the Great. The volume will be published by Mr. Elliot Stock.

A LITERARY man said to a World reporter: "I have surely discovered the author of 'The Breadwinners.' It is John Hay, as has been asserted. You remember the peculiar name of Offit in the book. Well, a man of that name appears in the early chapters of the life of Lincoln which Hay and Nicolay are publishing in the Century. I mentioned the coincidence to one of the assistant editors of the magazine, and he admitted, on being pressed hard, that John Hay wrote the muchtalked-about novel."

EDWARD PAYSON JACKSON, the author of that much-talked-of novel "A Demigod," says the N. Y. Times, has been for the last ten years instructor in science and the classics in the Boston Latin School. He was born in Erzeroum, Turkey, where his parents were American missionaries. He was a member of the Class of '63, of Amherst College, and was known among the fellow-students by the sobriquet of "the Count," He was the poet of his college class, but his only considerable literary achievement before the writing of "A Demigod" was the preparation of a mathematical geography.

In reporting favorably the bill to pension Walt Whitman at the rate of $25 per month, the House Committee on Invalid Pensions says the poet dedicated himself during the war to the unceasing care, as a volunteer nurse, of our sick and wounded soldiers, and that his almost devotional ministrations were well known to the citizens of Washington and to the nation. The report includes many extracts from newspaper articles and interviews with well-known persons as evidence of the poet's faithful service during the war and of his dependent condition.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"THE HISTORY OF EASTON," Massachusetts, has just been published by the author, Wm. L. Chaffin, in a large octavo volume fully illustrated.

PETER PAUL & BRO., Buffalo, announce for early publication, a new book by the Rev. L. A. Lambert. author of "Notes on Ingersoll," entitled "Tactics of Infidels."

LEE & SHEPARD announce in press "Synonyms Discriminated," by Richard Whateley, Archbishop of Dublin, a new edition to be issued in their popular Handbook Series.

CHARLES A. BATES, Indianapolis, has now ready "Little Speeches for Little People," a new collection of fresh, bright recitations for children, said to be exceptionally good.

THE town of Dedham, Mass., has just issued "The Record of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, and Intentions of Marriage in the Town of Dedham, from 1635—1845, edited by Don Gleason Hill, Town Clerk."

HARPER & BROS, are about to bring out a second edition of Hudson's "Railways and the Republic," containing some new matter specially relating to recent judicial decisions and to the provisions of the Interstate Commerce bill.

WILLARD SMALL has published in a handsome 16mo, "Education, Intellectual, Moral and Physical," by Herbert Spencer, a handy and valuable manual for teachers and educators. He has also in press "The School Master," by Roger Ascham.

CASSELL & Co. have just issued a story of the Ninth Ward, N. Y. City, entitled "The Common Chord," by H. K. Elliott. The book opens with a stirring description of the battle of Fredericksburg, and is said to give much good character painting and bright dialogue.

Some people who have tried to do business with the Merchants' Library Association of Chicago, are beginning to think what Betsy Prig thought of Sarah Gamp's friend, Mrs. Harris—that "there ain't no sich person." Publishers and others would do well to bear this in mind.

The second volume of Prof. Pfleiderer's "Philosophy of Religion," now in the press, will include not only many corrections and additions by the author, but also some new matter on the English philosophers of the present day. Messrs, Scribner & Welford will have the book in this country.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY (Publication Agency) announces as an extra volume of the university studies a volume entitled "Baltimore and the 19th of April, 1861; a study of the war," by Judge George Wm. Brown, who was mayor of Baltimore at the time. The book may be expected next month.

THE Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association are having designs made for a handsome lithograph certificate of membership. Members wishing this new certificate can receive a copy on its completion by sending 25 cents to Andrew Geyer, secretary of the association, 63 Duane Street, New York City.

THE quaint printing-press which attracted so much attention at the sign of "Ye Leadenhalle Presse" in the Old London Street at South Kensington has been secured by the Old London Street Company of New York, who have reproduced this bit of ancient London as a special exhibition to be opened this month.

J. H. EARLE has just published "Sought-Out Songs for Christian Workers," compiled by Rev. A. B. Earle, D.D., bound in boards; also "The Rest that Remains or the Repose of Faith," by A. B. Underwood, author of "God's Will Known and Done," a work which received marked attention by its thoughtful and reverential diction.

THE INTERSTATE PUBLISHING Co., Chicago, has published a new game devised by Rose Porter, entitled "Literary Salad." It is played with a great number of small slips, each bearing a "familiar quotation," and considerable instruction and entertainment can be obtained in testing the knowledge of the various players as to the authorship of the quotations.

T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS have just ready "Twelve Years of My Life," an autobiography, by Mrs. B. Beaumont, of Woodville, Mississippi. One large 12mo, morocco cloth, $1.50. The pictures given of the Southern people are said to be wonderfully truthful and characteristic, but entirely unprejudiced, while the descriptions of local manners and customs are breezy, goodnatured, and exact.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish, this month or next, a new volume of the Badminton Library on "Cycling," by Viscount Bury, assisted by G. L. Hillier, with numerous illustrations; also,

"Through the Fields with Linnæus," a biography of the great botanist, by Mrs. Caddy, in two volumes, illustrated with frontispieces and vignettes. They will also begin immediately the publication of monthly catalogues of rare and valuable books and new importations.

THE "Life of Captain Mayne Reid," by Charles Ollivant, of Manchester, is now completed, with the exception of an index, which is in progress. Mr. Ollivant, who is the son of the late Mr. G. B. Ollivant, a Manchester merchant, has visited Capt. Reid's birthplace in Ireland, to obtain particulars of his early years. He was for a considerable period private secretary to the novelist. The book, which is written under the sanction of Mrs. Reid, will be published at an early date.

E. A. MAC, of 693 Broadway, N. Y., sends us a printed slip list of newspapers wanted to complete his scrap-book collection of important printed matter about Jay Gould, and says he has made a collection of nearly three thousand pages on this subject. He will be glad to send his list of wants to the address of any one having any old papers to sell or exchange. Libraries desiring to complete files of N. Y. Times or Tribune may find this an opportunity, as he has large remainders bought from Yale College.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co. will issue for Miss Marcella Agnes Fitzgerald a volume of her "Poems." Those who have read some of Miss Fitzgerald's poetry will be glad of a chance to get a complete collection in a beautiful volume. They will also publish "The Throne of the Fisherman Built by the Carpenter's Son," by Thomas W. Allies This work begins with a short review of the "witness of history during eighteen centuries to the See of St. Peter: its divine institution, its acceptance by the Church, and the manifold support given to it during so many centuries by Providence, as shown in the acts both of foes and of friends."

SEVERAL years ago, Dr. Lossing, the well-known historian, received a letter from the late Hon. Horatio Seymour, urging him to supply a conspicuous literary want, by writing a popular history of the State of New York, and illustrating it after the manner of his celebrated "Pictorial Field-Book of the Revolution." No work of the kind was then in existence, nor has there been since. The latest published history of New York, excepting "Randall's School History," issued in 1868, is Yates and Moulton's, published in 1829, nearly sixty years ago, and that was only a colonial history. Mr. Lossing has just completed the manuscript of this important work, and will publish it through Funk & Wagnalls.

HENRY ALTEMUS, Philadelphia Bible Warehouse, 507 to 513 Cherry Street, Philadelphia, announces a larger variety than ever of new bindings, with rare effects in leather for their Family Bibles and Photograph Albums. house is discarding the old conventional styles of panels and gold, and is adhering closely to the purely London and Oxford styles of binding, which are much better adapted to the sales of first-class book stores. Their fall catalogue has been largely increased, and presents a handsome appearance. It contains descriptions of contents and bindings, with over 50 large illustrations. Prices and styles are so arranged as to be adapted to the taste and means of all. It will interest all dealers who desire to be thoroughly posted.

LEE AND SHEPARD, Boston, have nearly ready for publication, Prof. A. P. Peabody's "Moral Philosopy," being the lectures delivered to his students in Harvard College, and adapted for text-book purposes. There are twelve essays in the series. I.—Human Freedom; II.—The Ground of Right; III.-Utilitarianism and Expediency; IV.—Conscience; V.—Virtue and Virtues; VI.—Principles, Rules and Habits; VII.-Ethics of the Hebrew Scriptures; VIII.-Christian Ethics; IX.—Moral Beauty; Hedonism; XI .- The Ethics of the Stoic School: XII .- The Influence of Christian Ethics on Roman Law. The erudition and experience of Dr. Peabody have given him the ability to treat these great themes with rare clearness of expression, so that his meaning should be plain to every intelligent reader. This volume of Dr. Peabody's lectures will be 12mo, and contain 332 pages.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD will shortly publish a very interesting biographical work, "Verdi: an Anecdote History of his Life and Works," by Arthur Pougin. This is the first biography of this master yet attempted, and while necessarily unfinished, is full of fascinating detail of his life. The author is, of course, a warm admirer of Verdi, but no one could fail to be interested in his account of the difficulties met and finally overcome in securing a musical career, and in the history of the composition and productions of his several masterpieces. The volume will contain an excellent portrait, and will be of special value to lovers of Verdi's music. They will also issue shortly a new and cheap edition of the fascinat-ing "Memoirs of Marie Antoinette," by Madame Campan. The edition for this country is, however, to be superior to the English edition in that it will have a number of steel portraits, while the London edition has but one. It is, besides, to be printed from new and beautiful clear type, and forms a marvel of interest and cheapness.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have in press the fourth edition of J. H. Pepper's "Cyclopædic Science Simplified," embracing light, heat, elec-tricity, magnetism, pneumatics, acoustics, and chemistry; "Half-Hours with American History," in two volumes, selected and arranged by Charles Morris; "Manual of North American Birds," for the naturalist and sportsman, containing concise descriptions of every species of bird known in North America, illustrated by 425 outline cuts, and "Botany for Academies and Colleges," consisting of plant development and structure from sea-weed to clematis, arranged by Annie Chambers Ketchum, and illustrated with 250 cuts. "Ornamental Interiors: ancient and modern," by J. Moyr Smith, will have thirty-two full-page plates and numerous smaller illustra-tions designed by H. W. Batley, Owen W. Davis, Lewis F. Day, J. T. Jackson, F. Margetson, B. J. Talbert, etc.; and "The Nursing and Care of the Nervous and Insane," by Chas. H. Mills, Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in Philadelphia, treats its difficult subject exhaustively. The forthcoming new novels will be "Moloch: a story of sacrifice," by Mrs. Campbell Praed; "Aunt Hepsy's Foundling," by Mrs, Leith Adams; and "Harcourt, or, a soul illumined," by Mrs. Annie Somers Gilchrist.

ROBERTS BROS. will publish on the 15th, The work will be illustrated with "Franklin in France," by E. E. Hale and E. E. the seals the size of the originals.

Hale, Jr., from original documents, most of which are now published for the first time. When Benjamin Franklin died, in 1790, he left to his grandson, Wm. Temple Franklin, the largest collection of his papers. This collection, which had been supposed to be lost, having been searched for in vain by Jared Sparks to complete his edition of Franklin's works, was found a few years since on the top shelf of an old tailor's shop in St. James, purchased by Mr. Henry Stevens, and sold to the United States' Government. From this collection and other original documents, this life of "Franklin in France" was written. The volume is enriched with four rare portraits, selected principally on account of their rarityone is a steel portrait from a painting by Van Loo; two are portraits on wood, by Chapman and De Carmontelle; a medallion, by J. B. Nina, together with numerous vignette portraits of noted contemporaries. "The Country Doctor," by Honoré de Balzac, is the sixth volume of the celebrated French novelist's works, issued uniform in their edition by the publishers. "Diana of the Crossways" is the seventh volume in the uniform series of George Meredith's novels. "Margaret of Angoulême, Queen of Navarre," by A. Mary " Margaret F. Robinson, adds another interesting volumethe fourteenth-to the "Famous Woman Series." "New Connecticut," an autobiographical poem, by H. Bronson Alcott, edited by F. B. Sanborn. "Through the Gates of Gold," a fragment of thought, is by a well-known author, and is pub-lished anonymously. The book deals with the problems of the future life in an unusual manner, and it is believed will make as much of a sensation as "The Gates Ajar." "The Pigeon Pie," a tale of Roundhead times, by Charlotte M. Yonge, is a new edition of this popular story, which has been out of print for a long while.

PROFESSOR HENRY DRUMMOND'S "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" is in its fiftieth thousand in England.

CHAPMAN & HALL have in press a new work by Mr. Gallenga, in two volumes, entitled "Italy: Present and Future."

GENERAL TROCHU, Governor of Paris during the Franco-Prussian war, is going to publish his reminiscences of that exciting time. The General lives at present in the greatest retirement at Tours, only visiting two friends, one of whom is an ex-Chamberlain of the late Emperor Napoleon and the other a Carlist chief.

THE statement that Mr. Gladstone received $1250 for his Nineteenth Century article on Lord Tennyson's new "Locksley Hall" is declared to be without foundation. It is added that when the Laureate contributes poems to magazines he receives larger sums than writers of prose, and that Mr. Gladstone "has never been paid for at the rate of Lord Tennyson's verse,"

ELLIOT STOCK announces a new work on the "Great Seals of England," commenced by the late Mr. A. B. Wyon, and completed by Mr. Allan Wyon. It will be issued in imperial quarto size, by subscription, and will give a history and description of all the great seals from the days of Edward the Confessor to our own times. The work will be illustrated with fac-similes the seals the size of the originals.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

DOROTHY WORDSWORTH.

A Biographical Sketch of the Sister of the Poet.

By EDMUND LEE.

12mo, Cloth, Gilt Tops, $1.25.

A writer in Blackwood's has described the relation of the sister to the brother in the very expressive terms: "It was not that she visibly or consciously aided or stimulated him, but that she was kim—a second pair of eyes to see, a second and more delicate intuition to discern, a second heart to enter into all that came before their mutual observation. This union was so close that it becomes difficult to discern which is the brother and which is the sister. She was part not only of his life, but of his imagination."

"This charming book is exceedingly graceful in style, abounds in interest from the first page to the last; in fact, it is one of the most delightful biographies written for many a day."—Utics (N. Y.) Press.

THE SOUIRE OF SANDAL SIDE.

By AMELIA E. BARR,

Author of "Jan Vedder's Wife," "A Daughter of Fife," "The Bow of Orange Ribbon." 12mo, Cloth, $1.00.

"Mrs. Barr has given us a pastoral story, charming and many colored, with delightful pictures of the home life of the Cumberland dalesman, of their strange superstitions which have come down to them from the days of the Vikings, of their pastoral occupations, their pride and their integrity. It is refreshing to fall upon such a book as this. It has an idyllic charm that soothes and subdues, and amid the roar and stir of our restless life we catch, while reading it, glimpses of the sights and echoes of the sounds of a vanished Arcadia."—Philadelphia Record.

WILL PUBLISH FEBRUARY 15TH:

A VALUABLE HISTORICAL WORK.

Franklin in France.

From original documents, most of which are now published for the first time. By EDWARD E. HALE and EDWARD E. HALE, Jr. With a steel portrait from a painting by Van Loo, two portraits on wood by Chapman and de Carmontelle, and medallion portrait by J. B. Nini, together with numerous vignette portraits of noted contemporaries. One volume, 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

When Benjamin Franklin died, in 1700, he left to his grandson, Wm. Temple Franklin, the largest collection of his papers. This collection, which had been supposed to be irrevocably lost, was found a few years since on the top shelf of an old tailor's shop in St. James, became the property of Mr. Henry Stevens, and finally of the United States. From this collection and from other original documents this life of "Franklin in France" has been written.

The Country Doctor.

By Honoré de Balzac. Uniform with "Père Goriot," "The Duchesse de Langeais," "César Birotteau," "Eugénie Grandet," and "Cousin Pons." 12mo, half morocco, French style, $1.50.

Diana of the Crossways.

A Novel. By George Meredith, author of "Richard Feverel," "Evan Harrington," "Harry Richmond," "Sandra Belloni," "Rhoda Fleming," "Vittoria," in our new and handsome uniform 12mo edition, bound in English cloth, uncut, $2.00.

Margaret of Angoulême.

Queen of Navarre. By A. MARY F. ROBINSON, author of "Emily Brontë." Being the fourteenth volume in the "Famous Women Series." 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

New Connecticut.

An Autobiographical Poem. By A. Bronson Alcott. Edited by F. B. Sanhorn. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

After his eightieth year Mr. Alcott conceived the idea of writing an autobiographical poem, and had partly executed it when he was stricken with apoplexy. Three parts of this poem were completed, and are here published. The fourth part is incomplete, and has been edited from material prepared by Mr. Alcott.

Through the Gates of Gold.

A Fragment of Thought. 16mo, limp cloth, 50 cents.

The book deals with problems of the future life in an unusual manner, and it is believed that it will make as much of a sensation as did "The Gates Ajar." Its simultaneous publication in London has been arranged for.

The subjects of the different volumes are planned to cover connecting and, as far as possible, consecutive epochs or periods, so that the set when completed will present in a comprehensive narrative the chief events in the great STORY OF THE NATIONS; but it is, of course, not always practicable to issue the several volumes in their chronological order. The "Stories" are printed in good readable type, and in handsome 12mo form. They are adequately illustrated, and furnished with maps and indexes. They are sold separately, at a price of $1.50 each.

Every bookseller should keep represented on his counter a set of this popular series.

Mrs. Wister's New Translation.

19mo, extra cloth, $1.95.

The novels of E. Werner are always readable and in the highest degree entertaining. Mrs. Wister's refined and pure taste never leads her amiss in making her selections, and the novel before us is more interesting than any of its predecessors. She is one of the best translators from the German in this country, and the felicitous manner in which the work has been done in the present volume adds to the charm of a truly agreeable novel.

Library List.

The RECORD Number of the Library Journal for 1887 (January and February double number) will contain a full list of all American public libraries of 1000 or more volumes, arranged by States, but classified by type according to size (50,000, 10,000, 5000, or less volumes), and with the name of the librarian or reporting officer. These features will not appear in the Government list to be issued later in the year.

A select list of leading English and foreign libraries, possibly also a list of important American private libraries may be added.

The number will contain other important features, including an account of the library work of the Bureau of Education, with portraits of Gen. Eaton and Commissioner Dawson. Probably also a reprint of the American Library Association cataloguing rules, its specifications for library binding, etc.

This list will be invaluable to publishers and dealers in books, stationers, manufacturers, etc. The number will not be sold separately (except at a greatly advanced price), but is included in the subscription price of the Library Journal for 1887, with the Index to Periodicals and Literary News as supplements, five dollars. If issued separately, later, the List will be priced at three dollars. Subscriptions should be forwarded promptly.

Miss Churchill:

A STUDY. By Christian Reid, author of "A Daughter of Bohemia," "Morton House," "Bonny Kate," etc., etc., 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The author calls "Miss Churchill" a study, for the reason that it consists so largely of a study of character; but there is no little variety of scene in the story, the action taking place partly in the South and partly in Europe, while the experiences and vicissitudes of the heroine are of great interest. The contrasts of place and character make it a very vivid picture.

II.

What is the Church?

OR, PLAIN INSTRUCTION ABOUT THE CHURCH, ESPECIALLY IN ENGLAND; HER DOCTRINE, HER DISCIPLINE, HER OFFICE. By R. I. WOODHOUSE, M.A. With Notes and a Supplementary Chapter on the Protestant Church in the United States, by J. A. Spencer, S.T.D. 18mo, paper, 40 cents.

In this convenient manual a great deal of information is crowded into a small space, and conveyed in a singularly clear and entertaini ν manner by the catechetical method.

A Treatise on Surveying.

COMPRISING THE THEORY AND THE PRACTICE. By W. M. GILLESPIE, LL.D. Revised and enlarged by CADY STALEY, President of Case School of Applied Science. With numerous Illustrations, Diagrams, and various Tables. One vol., 8vo, half leather, $3.50.

The two works by Dr. Gillespie, hitherto published separately, "Levelling and Higher Surveying," and "Practical Treatise on Surveying," have been thoroughly revised and enlarged, and are now united in this volume.

PUBLISH TO-DAY

A NEW BOOK BY ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

THE MERRY MEN,

AND OTHER TALES AND FABLES.

1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 35 cents.

This new volume of stories by the author of "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Kidnapped," will be read with eagerness by Mr. Stevenson's wide constituency of readers on this side of the Atlantic. He has taught the English-reading world to expect in everything which comes from his hand the flavor of a strong and fascinating personality, and the charm and distinction of a literary style of a very unusual quality.

Theodor Mommsen's New Work on The History of Rome.

THE PROVINCES OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE. Translated, with the Author's Sanction and Additions, by WILLIAM P. DICKSON, D.D., LL.D., Professor of Divinity in the University of Glasgow. With Ten Maps by Professor Kiepert. 2 vols., 8vo, $6.00.

Since the completion of Professor Mommsen's History of the Roman Republic, thirty years ago, the author's researches have made him the master of fresh and valuable facts concerning the subject races of the Empire, and all matters pertaining to the government of the provinces, their internal administration, and their mutual relations. Previous historians have looked at the history of the Empire too exclusively from the point of view of the imperial city and the central authority, forgetting that, while the Empire was Roman in name, it was a world in fact, and that the provinces were as essential a part of it as the city itself. It is for these reasons that Professor Mommsen now presents in popular form the results of his special and unique information, leaving for future treatment the intervening period between the close of his former volumes and this account of the Provinces of the Empire.

HISTORY OF MODERN PHILOSOPHY.

Descartes and His School.

By Kuno Fischer. Translated from the Third and Revised German Edition by J. P. Gordy, Ph.D., Professor of Pedagogics in Ohio University. Edited by Noah Porter, D.D., LL.D. I vol., 8vo, $3.50.

Kuno Fischer's account of the life and writings of Descartes, and his exposition of Descartes' doctrine and its development by other philosophers, is universally conceded to be the fullest and ablest work on the subject. He has the rare art of combining the French lucidity of exposition with German thoroughness and profundity, and his work is therefore always readable and spirited, as well as exhaustive.

Realistic Philosophy.

DEFENDED IN A PHILOSOPHIC SERIES. By James McCosh, D.D., LL.D., President of Princeton College. 2 vols., 12mo. Vol. 1, Expository; Vol. 2, Historical and Critical. Each, $1.50.

In these two volumes Dr. McCosh has collected his discussions of the principal philosophic questions of the day, formerly issued in his Philosophic Series, which, the Independent says, "is not unlikely to prove in the end the most useful, popular service which Dr. McCosh has rendered to the cause of right thinking and to sound philosophy of life."

Cyclopedia of Painters and Paintings.

Edited by John Denison Champlin, Jr. Critical Editor, Charles C. Perkins. 4 vols., 4to, with more than 2000 illustrations. Edition limited to 500 copies. $37.50 per volume.

The third volume of this superb work is now ready and contains, besides several hundred portraits of artists, outline drawings of famous pictures, autographs, etc., twelve full-page reproductions by photogravure, etching, etc., of paintings by Kensett, Herkomer, Baudry, Watts, Makart, Fortuny, Burne-Jones, Munkacsy, Landseer, Cabanel, Bonheur, Boughton. With the publication of this volume, the price of the few sets remaining unsold has been raised from $25,00 to $37.50 per volume.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SIR J. WILLIAM DAWSON will prepare a volume for the International Scientific Series on the subject of the development of plants in geological time.

MR. EDWIN HODDER, the biographer of Lord Shaftesbury, has undertaken a life of Mr. Samuel Morley at the instance of the family. Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton will be the publishers.

MRS. ELIZABETH B. CUSTER informs us that her new book is not half done, and that it may not be ready before late in the year. All rumors, therefore, as to her publishing arrangements are premature.

EDNA LYALL, whose real name is reported to be Ada Ellen Bayly, resides at Eastbourne, England. She has now in press a new novel, the title of which is "The Knight Errant," the scene being laid partly in Italy and partly in England. The story is of the present day.

The author's object is to answer such questions as an intelligent American would be likely to ask in regard to Brazil. His means of acquaintance with that empire are BTAIL. HIS means of acquamentative with that empire are principally derived from a residence of three years at Rio de Janeiro, while in the service of the United States Government as Consul-General to Brazil, during which period he made a few journeys into the interior. His duties he made a few journeys into the interior. His duties brought him into frequent personal intercourse with the leading business houses and with many of the best-informed people of the country.

Phil., Rob. M. Lindsay, 1887. c. 351 p. Q. cl., $5, (limited to 350 copies.)

The purpose of this volume is to exhibit the character of Washington as understood and portrayed by some of the best writers and thinkers, as well by contemporaries, whose personal knowledge and convictions lend additional value, as by those of a later day, whose careful study and critical analysis render their testimony of equal weight and importance. The book is a companion volume to the author's well-known "Engraved portraits of Washington" and "Medallic portraits of Washington," making the third of a series in which the results of years of critical research in the vast mass of permanent records of critical research in the vast mass of permanent records bearing on the personality of Washington have been admirably arranged for consultation.

Benton, J. Rosalie. How to cook well. Bost., D. Lothrop & Co., [1887.] c. '86. 2-425 p.

D. hf. cl., $1.50.

This thoroughly practical cook-book will be warmly welcomed by all housekeepers, who will find it a valuable aid and guide in the kitchen. The writer has aimed not only to give a large collection of valuable receipts, but also to teach cooking, and likewise, by arranging departments for Breakfast, Luncheon, Dinner, and Tea, to present suggestions to those housekeepers who find themselves taxed to make variety in the different meals. The style of cooking is for the most part adapted to people of moderate means and especial attention has been paid to moderate means, and especial attention has been paid to showing how to use remnants from a former meal in a tempting manner. These suggestions for what is left are put, in each case, with the directions for the first cooking, so that they follow in natural sequence, and are much more likely to be made use of than if put under the general head of "Made-over dishes." The measurements given are exact, and great care has been used in making the directions very full and plain, as well as accurate. Full index.

The "common chord" is "the rich, solid, satisfactory chord of C major," in which the author has pitched this story of the lives of some inhabitants of the Ninth Ward of New York City, which he pronounces the American ward of that cosmopolitan town. He introduces about half-a-dozen characters, but each one is a little masterpiece of word-painting. A description of the battle of Fredericksburg introduces the hero, who afterward drifts to New York and becomes the good influence in the lives of the characters with whom he is thrown.

Twelve The scene is laid in England, on the river Tees. Twelve years afterwards the young men return from school and college and again meet on the old ground. Here the story all takes place. It is entirely a home tale of love and domestic happiness and perplexities. The moral that seems to run through it is that it is useless expecting more of human nature than it has to give. There must always be degrees of goodness and badness, and the most that can be done for the bad is to make them less bad, or as good as their limitations will permit as their limitations will permit.

Lord Shaftesbury died in 1885, after a long life of usefulness. He was born in 1801. His life is the history of English reform during the present century. Every great movement brought up in Parliament, such as the Colliery will National advantages. bill, National education, the opposition to the opium trade, the establishment of the ragged schools, the protection of poor needle-women, etc., either originated with him or were put through by his earnest and ardent advocacy. He was the sworn foe of oppression in whatever form it He was the sworn too of oppression in whatever form it might be exercised, and never ceased his fight against it till death ended his career. Mr. Hodder had placed at his disposal the Earl's note-books, diaries, correspondence, etc., that he might give the world the fullest revelation of this noble character. His work has been done well. The result being a delightful volume of both historical and biographical value. Full index.

The one was rich, the other poor, and both possessed a similar number of children of almost the same ages and sexes. With everything to amuse them, the young Ermingtons were always dull and bored, whilst the young Southeys got no end of fun out of simple pleasures and the cheerful performance of their of simple pleasures and the cheerful performance of their duties. A friendship is finally struck up between the two families which benefits both. Much time is spent in the woods studying the ways of animals and insects, and woodcraft generally, the reader obtaining in a pleasant style considerable information in natural history.

THE POSTAGE ON BOOKS.

THE committee of the American Library Association, appointed at the Milwaukee Conference, to procure a reduction of postage on books sent by mail from libraries to second-class rates, has prepared a bill, printed elsewhere, which has been introduced into the House by Mr. Stahlnecker, of New York. It goes much further than the measure originally proposed, and extends the rate of one cent per pound to all books sent by mail, providing not more than one copy of any one book is sent to one person. The committee had a consultation with the Postmaster-General and with the leaders of the Postal Committees of both Houses on the subject of the bill, and were assured that its principle should have full consideration, though we understand that no pledges were given as to the attitude the Department might take in regard to the matter. The bill rather reverses the idea of the cheap rate for newspapers, which involved the payment of postage in bulk, instead of by stamping individual copies.

Judging from the lack of response to our previous queries as to the trade feeling on this subject, the trade takes no special interest in this matter, one way or the other. The plan has, in fact, advantages and disadvantages both, to almost every member of our trade. It would enable country dealers to order single copies at very low postal cost from publishers, with certainty of safety and speed in transmittal; on the other hand, it would also promote the sending of books by publishers direct to customers by mail, of which so many local dealers complain as detrimental to local self-support. As it is now, the cheap libraries, with books mostly of fiction or lower-class literature, go at the low rate, while \ better books, better made, must pay eight times as much. From the fiscal side, there is the objection that the bulk-rate is anything but selfsupporting as it is. Of course, the express companies will fight hard against the proposed bill; and if the trade want such a measure, they must be ready to take a hand in the struggle in its

THE phrase "moral copyright" is rather an apt one to describe the right, emphasized in an article in another column, of an author against misrepresentation in books which bear his name. Certainly no publisher or adapter has a right to give as an author's what is not his and what he would not accept as representing him. It sometimes happens that in making representations or adaptations changes are made from what the author actually wrote when he first prepared the book, to which, however, he could and would make no objection. We refer not to these, but to the changes to which he might, and probably would, enter exceptions. In this case the benefit of the doubt ought to rest with the author, and no publisher should permit himself to do otherwise than he would be done by.

BOOKS BY MAIL AT SECOND-CLASS POSTAGE.

THE following is the text of a bill presented at the suggestion of the A. L. A. committee by Mr. Stahlnecker in the House of Representatives, January 24, 1887:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That on and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, all books may be transmitted through the mails at the uniform rate of one cent per pound, as provided for mail-matter of the second class by section one of the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, making appro-priations for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, and for other purposes: Provided, That no more than one copy of the same work may be mailed at the same time to the same individual.

"SEC. 2. That all acts and parts of acts in conflict with these provisions are hereby repealed.'

"MORAL" COPYRIGHT IN GERMANY.

Prof. C. A. Buchheim writes to the London Athenaum concerning copyright in Germany as follows:

"With reference to Mr. Trueman Wood's complaint in the last number of your journal, it may be of interest to your literary readers to know that the subject of what I would call 'moral copyright' was discussed at the Schriftstellertag recently held at Eisenach, and that the following resolutions were adopted:

"I. The publisher is not allowed to make any alterations whatever in a work he has bought,

the right of making alterations, he shall have for- York City. As the third publication of the feited the right of retaining the author's name, in | society, Mr. Laurence Hutton is preparing a colcase the alterations carried out injure the character of the book.

" As a rule, English authors, fortunately, know very well how to guard their interests; but as there are publishers-here as well as in other countries-who believe that with the acquisition of the pecuniary copyright they have also acquired the right of doing with the author's intellectual property as they please, it occurred to me that it might be expedient to call special attention to the above resolutions."

McMaster's history of the people OF THE U.S.

THE publishers of McMaster's "History of the People of the United States" receive numerous inquiries as to the probable time of the publication of the third volume of that work. In a recent letter to Messrs. Appleton & Co., Mr. McMaster writes as follows:

"As to when volume three will be finished, I can only say, I hope within the year. This volume ought to be the best of the three, and to make it so I must go slowly. The papers to be examined at Washington are immense in number, so that I cannot tell how long it will take to go over them. No pains, however, shall be spared by me to have the manuscript in your hands at the very earliest moment.

THE DUNLAP SOCIETY PUBLICATIONS.

In February, 1885, we announced the forma-, tion of a society named in honor of William Dunlap (1766-1839), one of the first American dramatists, one of the earliest of American managers, and the foremost historian of the American theatre. The object of the members of this society was to bring together all those interested in the history of the American theatre; to issue such books and pamphlets as might throw light on this history; and to collect and to preserve portraits of distinguished American actors, dramatists, and other theatrical celebrities which might otherwise be lost, and to issue engravings of these from time to time to its members.

After nearly two years' delay the society is at last ready to publish its first three books-two of which may be expected at once, and the third shortly. The first publication will be the comedy of the "Contrast." written by Royall Tyler, afterward Chief Justice of Vermont, and acted at the John Street Theatre in 1787, just a century ago. It was the first play by a native author which was acted by a professional company, and it contained the first "Yankee part." It has been edited, with an introduction, by Thos. J. McKee. The second publication will be "The Father, or American Shandyism," the first comedy of William Dunlap, which was the second play by a native author acted by a professional company. The introduction to this is also the work of Mr. McKee, who supplies an outline sketch of Dunlap's career, and an elaborate and muchneeded list of Dunlap's plays, with the dates of their writing, performance, and publication. Both of these books have been beautifully printed at the De Vinne Press. They can be had only members. The annual subscription is five

"2. In case a publisher has reserved to himself McKee, Treasurer, No. 338 Broome Street, New lection of the poetic addresses written for the opening of various American theatres during the past century and a quarter. Among the later issues will be Dunlap's "André," edited by Mr. Brander Matthews, with an introduction considering the many other plays on the subject of Arnold's treason. It is in contemplation to issue during the year a volume of 'Transactions,' containing a theatrical bibliography, Mr. Lawrence Barrett's recollections of Charlotte Cushman, etc. It is to be hoped that the society meet with substantial encouragement.

OBITUARY NOTES.

AUGUSTUS C. TAYLOR.

Mr. Augusus C. Taylor, late of the firm of Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., died at his residence in this city on Saturday morning, 12th inst., in the fifty-sixth year of his age. He had been in ill-health for several years, and for some time past was unable to give active attention to business. Mr. Taylor was well known to the trade, and highly esteemed for his business accomplishments and agreeable personal qualities. His manners were exceptionally engaging, especially to those who were brought into contact with him in a business way: perhaps there never was a man under such circumstances who was better liked, or who shared to any fuller extent the confidence of others. His connection with the book-trade dated from his early youth, when he became a clerk in the then large house of Andrus & Mc-Chain. Ithaca, N. Y., to which place he moved from his birthplace in Great Bend, Pa. published Cobb's Readers, among the first graduated series of school reading-books issued in this country, and did a large and thriving business. It was here that Mr. Taylor "learnt the business," and he always referred to these early days with pride and pleasure. Early after he came of age Mr. Taylor went West, and went into the book business on his own account at Bloomington, Ill. He did not remain there long, however, but came back to New York to take a responsible clerical position with Ivison, Phinney & Co. In this position he made himself so valuable to the business that he was admitted into the firm, it being then Ivison, Phinney, Blakeman & Co., January 1, 1864. Mr. Phinney retired in 1870 when the firm became Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., remaining so until a few weeks ago, when Mr. Taylor retired. He leaves a widow and two sons amply provided for.

MRS. HENRY WOOD, who was best known by her novel, "East Lynne," died on the 10th inst., at her home in London. She was about sixty-seven years of age. Her father was Thomas Price, a leading glove manufacturer of Worcester. She began her literary career as a contributor to the magazines. "Danebury House," her first complete novel, was published in 1860. It was followed the next year by "East Lynne," which achieved a remarkable success. Among her other works are "Roland Yorke" (1869), "Dene Hollow" (1871), "Johnny Ludlow" (1880). She was editor of the Argosy.

MRS. HARRIET B. MCKEEVER, the well-known dollars, which may be sent to Mr. Thomas J. author of Sunday-school books and religious poems and articles, died on the 8th inst., at her home in Chester, Penn., aged 80 years. Mrs. McKeever formerly taught school in Philadelphia, and was a prominent member of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church when Bishop Stevens was rector. She conducted the infant school of that parish, and wrote quite a number of books, some of which are in almost every Sunday-school library. She was a frequent contributor to the newspapers of Philadelphia.

ISABELLA VALANCY CRAWFORD, the well known authoress, died in Toronto on the 14th inst. She was one of the best known of Canadian writers, and furnished many stories for American publications. Not long ago she published a book of poems, which was highly spoken of by the Canadian and English press.

PHILIP BOURKE MARSTON, the poet, novelist, and essayist, died in London on the 14th inst., aged 37 years. Through an accident received while playing his eyes were injured when he was but 3 years old and his vision was impaired. As he approached manhood he became totally blind. Young Marston became quite intimate at an early age with Dante Gabriel Rossetti, who was one of the most ardent appreciators of the young poet's genius. Mr. Marston's first book, "Song Tide," appeared in 1871. The book was a success, and Marston soon afterward visited Italy with his sister as his companion and guide. In 1874 he published "All in All," his second book. His third book, "Wind Voices," was issued in 1883. In the meantime he was a contributor to The Century and to the English magazines.

Mr. ALFRED D. CLARKE, who has been identified with The Bowen-Merrill Co. for thirty years, died on the 28th ult. in the 49th year of his age. The firm honors his memory by issuing a memorial to the trade, announcing the demise of an old, faithful, and trusted servant.

BUSINESS NOTES.

EASTON, PA.—D. Y. Heisler has purchased the stock of books and stationery of N. C. Heisler, 227 Cattell St., where he will continue the same.

NEW YORK CITY.—Nathan, Nathan V., and John A. J. Tibbals (N. Tibbals & Sons), the well-known publishers and booksellers at 124 Nassau-Street, made an assignment on the 11th inst. to Orville B. Ackerly, giving four preferences for $802. Nathan Tibbals, the senior partner, has been in the business about forty years, and the sons were admitted as partners about sixteen years ago. They made a specialty of religious books, of which they published quite a number, and also supplied Sunday-schools and preachers. They had four branch or summer stores at Asbury Park, Round Lake, Chautauqua, and Thousand Islands. They were burned out in the Potter building in January, 1882, suffering a heavy loss. This cramped them to such an extent that they had to compromise with their creditors at about 40 cents on the dollar.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—J. H. Butler, S. S. White, and A. G. Butler, under the firm name of Butler, White & Butler, will continue the business here-tofore conducted by J. H. Butler. They will have offices at 925 Chestnut Street, and at 30 Franklin Street, Boston.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Belford, Clarke & Co. are to publish G. F. Dawson's "Life of John A. Logan," referred to in our last issue.

THE PACIFIC PRESS PUBLISHING HOUSE has just issued the "Life and Adventures of Col. L. A. Norton," an old forty-niner, whose career has been full of thrilling adventures.

THE BALTIMORE PUBLISHING Co., Baltimore, Md., have published by subscription Admiral Raphael Semmes' (C. S. Navy) "Service Afloat; or, the remarkable career of the Confederate cruisers Sumter and Alabama."

THE announcement that Jay Gould is writing a book is denied. The book in question is a history of Mr. Gould's roads. His nephew, Mr. Northrup, is the author, and C. R. Clifford is the editor of the book. Every page will have an illustration in three colors.

THE sales of Charles Scribner's Sons' popular translations of Plato's "Socrates," "A Day in Athens with Socrates," and "Talks with Socrates about Life," have reached more than 12,000 copies, and the volumes are now to be brought out by an English publisher.

"STUDENTS' SONGS," that noteworthily successful collection of jolly songs, with music, as sung at all American colleges, formerly published by Moses King, of Cambridge, more than fifty thousand copies of which have been sold already, is to be published hereafter by the old printing-house of Rand Avery Company, of Boston.

D. LOTHROF & Co., will soon issue "In Many Tones," a volume of poems, by Prof. C. G. G. Roberts, of Kings College, Canada, who was formerly the editor of The Week, of Toronto; "Seven Easter Lilies," a story by Ella M. Barker; "The Last Pennacook," by A. B. Berry; "Possibilities," by Thomas L. Baily; and "Bed-Time Poetry," by Wendell Phillips Garrison.

CASSELL & Co., London, will issue shortly "Men and Women of the Century: a dictionary of recent and contemporary biography," edited by Mr. L. C. Sanders. Among the contributors are Mr. W. S. Blunt, Dr. Robert Brown, Madame Blaze de Bury, and Mdlle. Y. Blaze de Bury, Mr. Hall Caine, Mr. Sutherland Edwards, Mr. Buxton Forman, Dr. Furnivall, Dr. Garnett, Mr. Egmont Hake, Mr. T. E. Kebbel, Col. Cooper King, Mr. S. J. Low, of King's College, London; Mr. Cotter Morison, Prof. Murison, Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Mr. S. Lane-Poole, Mr. J. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Barnett Smith, and Prof. Seth.

THE book committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church report a prosperous year in the publishing department under the management of the church. "The Western house at Cincinnati has sold during the fiscal year nearly $900,000 worth of books and periodicals. The New York branch we understand is contemplating erecting a large building somewhere above 23d St., in which it intends to concentrate their large printing establishment, now in Mulberry St., and the publishing and other offices, now at 805 Broadway.

DR. CORNELIUS A. LOGAN has now under consideration the many propositions of publishers for the book left in manuscript by General John A. Logan, entitled "The Volunteer Soldier of America." It is a history of the organization of the army in this country from its foundation, comparing the two branches of service-the regulars and the volunteers. "It is not likely," says the N. Y. Tribune, "that any advance opinions of the work can be formed, as the contract binds the publisher not to issue any part of the book in advance. Mrs. Logan favored a Chicago publishing firm, because of the situation of the city, and the book will be published in that city without delay."

JAMES PIETON, 30 W. 9th St., N. Y., is preparing a perpetual calendar, which he is confident will be found attractive and salable. The design is to consist of a globe representing the world, on which will be printed the number of the days of the month. In artistic panels will be inserted the days of the week, the months and the years from 1887 to 1900, by which time, no doubt, the calendar will be replaced by a still more complete and attractive one. The background will represent, on the lower portion, a dark, overcast sky, lighted up by vivid flashes of lightning, while the upper portion will represent a fair firmament spanned by a radiant rainbow. Colors and gold will be freely used to bring out the effects intended. The publisher will be ready shortly to submit samples.

CONGRESS has perhaps never been called upon to consider a subject more important from a literary and historical point of view than the cataloguing of the numerous documents in European archives which refer to the early history of the United States. The matter was brought before the Library Committee by Secretary Bayard, acting in behalf of many prominent memorialists representing every department of letters. committee has reported favorably, and the House is to be asked for an appropriation of $100,000 wherewith to carry out the scheme. The documents above referred to are said to be especially rich in historical matter pertaining to the period between the Treaty of Paris in 1763, by which England first acquired title to the northwest Territories of America, and the treaty of peace be-tween Great Britain and the United States in 1783. Some idea can be formed of the immense number of such documents when we remember that Mr. Benj. F. Stevens, of London, has already prepared a descriptive catalogue of over 95,000 separate papers, and this list is but a very incomplete beginning. Meanwhile, until some such exhaustive catalogue as the Government is now asked to undertake be made, this great storehouse of information is practically locked to the historical student, the very abundance of material hindering its usefulness.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 24, 1887. "Initials and Pseudonyms," by William Cushing, has the following entry on page 184: "Marryat, Florence—Mrs. Florence (Marryat) Ross-Church." On page 538: "Ross-Church, Mrs. Florence (Marryat)—Florence Marryat, daughter of Capt. F. Marryat," etc. The Pub-LISHERS' WEEKLY, Jan. 22, 1887, on page 85 has this entry: "Lean, Mrs. Francis, (formerly Florence Marryat.) The fair-haired Alda: a novel." Which is right? Are there two Florence C. ESTABROOK. Marryats?

[There is only one Florence Marryat, but she has been twice married. Quite recently, we should judge, to Mr. Francis Lean, as her later novels only come to us with this name on the title-page. The entry under Mrs. Ross-Church was quite correct at the time.—Ep. P. W.]

NEW NOVEL BY CHRISTIAN REID.

A Study.

By CHRISTIAN REID.

Author of "A Daughter of Bohemia," "Morton House," "Bonny Kate," etc., etc.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The author calls "Miss Churchill" a study, for the reason that it consists so largely of a study of character; but there is no little variety of scene in the story, the action taking place partly in the South and partly in Europe, while the experiences and vicissitudes of the heroine are of great interest. The contrasts of place and character make it a very vivid picture.

WILL PUBLISH IN MARCH

NEW VOLUME OF THE "BOOK-LOVERS' LIBRARY."

Modern Methods of Illustrating Books. By H. T.

WOOD, Secretary to the Society of Arts, London. 12mo, bound in cloth, uncut edges, net, $1.25-A limited number of copies, printed on hand-made paper, bound in Roxburgh half morocco, uncut edges, gilt top, $2.50.

London Literary World says: "This volume is very welcome. The author has evidently thoroughly mastered the subject, for he has produced a book which is a model of clearness and conciseness, minus technicalities." NEW BOOK FOR YOUNG MEN.

The City Youth. By J. THAIN DAVIDSON. Uniform with same author's "Talk with Young Men," "Forewarned—Forearmed." Illuminated cloth, 12mo, $1.25.

"'The City Vouth' is in every way worthy of its predecessors. All through the book runs much wise counsel and earnest, bright feeling; the subjects are well chosen and effectively and impressively handled. The tone is elevated throughout, and abounds with a genial warmth that is well calculated to rivet the reader's attention, while the true, manky ring and practical common-sense wisdom displayed on every page cannot fail to bring home the truths so elequently advocated by the author."—LITERARY WORLD.

and Poems Guyon. Oİ Mme.

Edited and arranged by Rev. A. SAUNDER DYER, of Clare College, Cambridge. 12mo, neatly bound in cloth, gilt side, colored edges, $1.00. (A limited number of copies, printed on handmade paper, bound in white parchment, $2.00.)

"It has been thought that at the present time, when people are beginning to realize the harmony of the Blessed Sacraments with a present trust and personal assurance of salvation, and when all true Christians are longing for peace and holiness, that these poems, which speak of the Love of God and of the rest which alone can be found in Him, may be valued and read. As the reader will gather from the present volume, these poems are the expressions of her inner religious life and tell of a heart warmed by the Love of God."

Representative English Prose and Prose

Writers. By W. HUNT, Professor of Rhetoric and English Language in the College of New Jersey. 12mo, $1.50.

Opening with a careful discussion of the leading historical periods of English prose, it proceeds to the examina-tion of its various literary forms, and, as a third and final division of the subject, presents a critical study of ten-or twelve representative English authors as exponents of English prose style. In subject matter as in method it is thoughtful and logical, while the English in which it is expressed is clear, vigorous, and tasteful.

NEW SERIES OF DEVOTIONAL BOOKS, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED FROM LARGE TYPE.

A UNIQUE WORK OF SPECIAL INTEREST. ONLY 78 COPIES FURNISHED FOR THE U. S.

History of the Old English Letter Foundries.

With Notes-Bibliographical and Historical-on the Rise and Progress of English Typography. By TALBOT BARNES REED. In a handsome crown quarto volume. Printed in old style type, on antique paper, with quaint head and tail pieces, and with numerous illlustrations and facsimiles of type, $10.00. (Furnished to subscribers BEFORE publication at $8.40.)

The subject is one which throws a considerable and curious light on the history of English Typography. The book will be found to embody a full Bibliography of works, not only relating to, but illustrative of, the Typography. Art, and to contain numerous anecdotes of Founders, Printers, and Authors, together with interesting particulars concerning some of the most famous productions of the English press.

The volume is fully illustrated with specimens of a large number of historical types cast from their original matrices, together with portraits and Jacsimiles produced by a photographic process from the original copies.

The book will undoubtedly form the standard work on the subject and put both the student and the general reader in possession of much valuable learning which has hitherto been unobtainable. While accurate and exhaustive in its method it is written in a most readable style.

Profession of the Inventors of Printing and chanters on Prefixed to the history is an Essay on the Types and Typefounding of the Inventors of Printing, and chapters on the origin and development of the various Type Characters, English and Foreign, famous in the specimens of our national typography. A copious index is added.

NEARLY READY.—ANOTHER VOLUME OF THE "BOOK-LOVERS' LIBRARY."

The Dedication of Books.

To Patron and Friend. By HENRY B. WHEATLEY, author of "How to Form a Library." 12mo, cloth, uncut edges, $1.15. (A limited number of copies printed on hand-made paper, bound in Roxburgh half morocco, $2.50.

"Many of our great authors are included in the list of dedicators, and specimens of their style of praise are given, from Shakespeare downward."—Proface.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have just issued an edition de luxe of D. G. Haskin's "Monograph on Ralph Waldo Emerson," and have reprinted from Murray's Magazine Matthew Arnold's "Estimate of General Grant."

LEA BROTHERS & Co., Philadelphia, will shortly publish in one octavo volume "A Textbook of Skin Diseases," with special reference to diagnosis and treatment, by T. M'Call Anderson, M.D., Professor of Clinical Medicine in the University of Glasgow.

GINN & Co. have just published a "Dante Handbook," by Giovanni A. Scartazzini, translated from the Italian, with notes and additions, by Thomas Davidson, divided into two parts—one, of his life, the other, of his works; "Cebes' Tablet," edited, with introduction, notes, vocabulary, etc., by Richard Parsons, Professor of Greek in Ohio Wesleyan University; and "Homer," an introduction to the Iliad and Odessey, by R. C. Jebb, Professor of Greek in the University of Glasgow.

A. C. Armstrong & Son will publish, during March, two new volumes in their Book Lovers' Library, one on "Modern Methods of Illustrating Books," by H. J. Wood, Secretary to the Society of Arts, London, which is pronounced by the London Literary World, a model of clearness and conciseness minus technicalities; the other on "The Dedication of Books to Patron and Friend, by Henry B. Wheatley; they also promise a "History of the Old English Letter Foundries," with notes, bibliographical and historical, on the rise and progress of English typography; "Life and Poems of Mme. La Guyon," edited and arranged by Rev. A. Saunder Dyer, of Clair College, Cambridge; "Representative English Prose and Prose Writers," by T. W. Hunt; "The City Youth," by J. Thain Davidson, a new book for young men; and a new series of devotional books, entitled "Golden Thoughts from the Imitation of Christ; "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread; and "Hours of Refreshing.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The March number of The Popular Science Monthly contains a portrait of the late Professor E. L. Youmans, engraved on steel by Schlecht. The likeness is considered remarkably vivid, while the execution of the work is much superior to ordinary book-plates.

THE Typewriter Operator is the name of a new monthly journal that is to be issued from Boston this month in the interest of the fifty thousand operators on typewriters. It is to be a four-page paper, illustrated, with a subscription price of thirty cents a year. It is to be printed by the Rand, Avery Company, and published by the Typewriter Operator Co.

The American Art Printer is the title of a new monthly typographical journal published by C. E. Bartholomew, 22 College Place, N. Y. The contents of the first number are bright, timely, original articles and paragraphs on a number of subjects in which printers are interested and well-selected reading matter on a variety of topics akin to the craft. The only fault we have to find is with the cover, which seems to us to be a "fearfully made" affair. But then, that is a matter of taste. P. S. M. Munro is the editor.

THE third instalment of ex-Minister Washburne's "Reminiscences of the Siege and Commune of Paris," in the March number of Scribner's Magazine, describes the evacuation of Paris by the Germans, the insurrection of the 18th of March, 1871, and the establishment of the Commune, the assassination of Generals Lecomte and Thomas, the burning of the guillotine by the mob before the statue of Voltaire, and many other striking incidents which occurred during the brief but terrible reign of the Commune. The article is especially noteworthy for its descriptions of the leaders of the Commune and of others who were prominent in Paris at that time. The illustrations are even more abundant than in the earlier instalments, one of them, a full-page engraving of the portrait of Thiers, by Healy, owned by Mr. Washburne, serving as frontspiece for the number.

"The 'Country doctor' is not a novel in the ordinary sense of the term. It is rather a prose poem, and one of the most beautiful, captivating, and ennobling in any literature. Balzac himself said of it that it was a picture of 'the Gospel in action,' and the definition is teen and succinct. It is indeed a story of the noblest and most oractical philanthropy.

The narrative of Dr. most practical philanthropy. . . The narrative of Dr. Benassis, his simple yet telling description of the methods by which he created a flourishing district and a populous and prosperous town out of an arid waste and a stagnant and benighted hamlet, is unique both in manner and matter. . . MissWormeley has translated the book excellently, and has preserved as nearly as possible every shade of the author's meaning."—New York Tribune.

The author is not a novel-writer, but having been a missionary in China is thoroughly familiar with life and customs in that country, and also with the experiences of the missionary and the methods of missionary work. The present volume tells the story of the life and work of a Chinese Bible-woman who went about the country carrying Christ into the homes of the people. There is a slender thread of compane running through the volume which der thread of romance running through the volume which adds to its interest. The book is full of information concerning the country and abounds in realistic pictures.

4+448 p. D. pap., 50 c.
The mysterious murder of old Lady Teigne, who is a lodger in a private house at Saltenville, an English watering-place, is the central motive. The murderer carries off her diamonds, the robbery of which having apparently been his object in gaining entrance to her room. The diamonds prove not to be real diamonds, and, being cast into the sea by the murderer, rise up in proof against him finally, not, however, before many innocent persons have been suspected and accused, and much suffering caused.

chill is discovered by Bernard Lysle a brilliant literary man, who goes south after the war to pay a visit to an old friend. Here he finds Cecil Churchill leading a hopelessly monotonous life, teaching a half dozen little children. He recognizes, after a few interviews with her, that she is a woman of genius, who needs only culture and experience to make a name for herself in literature. He plans for her to go to Europe—to Italy—as companion to his cousin the Marchesa Ferrata. Here, surrounded by luxury and refinement Cecil's character developes. How it developes refinement Cecil's character developes. How it developes and in what direction, we cannot spoil an exceptionally good story by telling.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE index to Ruskin's 'Fors Clavigera' has just been brought out in England. It runs to 500 pages, each page containing at least fifty references. The editor is said to be Canon Faunthorpe, principal of Whitelands Training College.

H. LE SOUDIER, Paris and Leipzig, has issued "Bibliotheca germanica, verzeichnis aller auf Deutschland und Deutsch-Oesterreich bezüglichen originalwerke, sowie der bemerkenswertesten artikel, welche in den hervorragenden periodischen schriften in den jahren 1880-1885 im gesammten auslande erschienen sind, bearbeitet von Alwin Weise." (142 p. O.)

THE second volume of the new Catalogue of the Astor Library has just been published, covering the letters E-K. It makes a handsome volume of 956 large octavo pages, printed in small pica and bourgeois type at the Riverside Press, Cambridge, and contains nearly 21,000 author and title entries. This new catalogue is a continuation of the Catalogue of authors and books, published 1857-61, in four volumes, by the then librarian, Dr. J. G. Cogswell, which covered the 100,000 volumes in the library at that date. Since then the Library has more than doubled. The new Catalogue includes the additions made to the Library during the twenty years from 1861 to 1880, and has been compiled chiefly under the direction of, and wholly edited, by C: Alex. Nelson. It will include between 110,000 and 115,000 volumes. Mr. Nelson expects to finish printing a third volume in the fall of the present year, and the fourth and last about the middle of 1888. The succeeding volumes will run about 1,000 pages each.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBUARY 26, 1887.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE COPYRIGHT STATUS.

The final Session of the Forty-ninth Congress draws to its close, and again nothing has been or is likely to be accomplished to put America on the same footing as other civilized nations in regard to international copyright. We have not even had the speech on the subject expected from Senator Chace, and we understand it has not been delivered because of the unlikelihood of getting the Senate to give proper attention to a subject in which, under the present circumstances, there was so little hope of practical result. So until further notice the United States must still stand a disgrace among the nations in this particular of being unwilling to extend to foreign authors, and to procure for her own authors abroad, the rights or privileges to which inventors and owners of trade marks, even of so small a thing as a nutmeg grater or a paper box, are entitled.

The American Copyright League was organized for the promotion of international copyright. But for its existence, it is not improbable that some kind of a copyright-act would by this time have been procured. This is an extreme thing to say, and it is a fair and true retort that but for the existence of extreme views on the part of certain of the trades concerned, an international copyright act more like what authors would wish, could have been passed. There is much to be said—indeed any amount to be said—on both sides; but the practical question for the last few years has been not what could be said on both sides but what could be done by making common cause.

The attitude of Mr. Lowell and Mr. Clemens an others at the Senate hearing on copyright awakened the hope that the League might b induced to take hold of the question in a practical way and help in getting what could be got. Un fortunately, early in the present Session, it issue an address which was evidently a compromis between opposing forces, and which resulted i nothing more than an absolutely harmless an entirely academic proposition. So long as w have to face the unfortunate fact that the Cor gress of the United States is apathetic in this question and is more likely to heed its fears as t what printers, paper-makers and other person who are supposed to control large numbers of votes, might do, rather than to consult the inter ests of the smaller class of citizens whose interest are primarily involved, so long must the burde be practically upon the author class of gainin something by giving up something. The practical course before those most inter

to promote such consultations among the differ ent classes interested as shall result in an agree ment which can be brought before Congress wit united force. Some of those who advocat international copyright, quite as strongly as activ members of the League, and whose interests ar quite as directly and more directly involved tha some of theirs, have kept out of the Leagu because they believed that an organization admira ble in its purpose has by mistaken method bee made a block in the way of progress. There ha been some talk of forming a Copyright Associa tion of those actually holding copyrights, whether as authors, publishers, or otherwise, to attempt t take hold of the matter in a practical spirit, but would be a great pity to confuse the public an congressional mind still further by the existence of what would be looked upon as rival or hostil organizations, and that step has been deferred i the hope that the League itself would see its wa to invite agreement, rather than to make it im possible. A few gentlemen who are activel responsible for the conduct of the League's affair ought to make sure that the responsibility whic they have undertaken is wisely used for the goo of the cause it was organized to promote.

of the cause it was organized to promote.

Since international copyright must be mean while deferred, there is reason to return to the suggestion that good might be done by the appointment of an official Copyright Commission to revise our domestic copyright code and to submit a proposition for international copyright for which general approval might, by discussion, bottained. So long as there was immediate hop of obtaining relief from an existing Congress this was but a means of delay; it might now be a step of progress.

CALIFORNIA NOTES.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 11, 1887.
To the Editor of the Publishers Weekly.

San Francisco is by no means behind the Eastern cities in the general feeling of satisfaction which prevails over a very successful year's business.

The booksellers are all agreed in reporting sales good, and profits, though not so large as in the "gold premium times" still satisfactory, and taken into consideration with the lower rates of freight now prevailing, not to be despised, at any rate by an Eastern retailer accustomed to give 25 per cent. or more in all cases. "Occasionally," our retail bookseller here said to-day "I give 10 per cent. to special customers!"

It is not often that you hear of a bookseller advocating the giving of trade prices by publishers to private buyers, but to-day I heard of a notable exception, a book-club had written to an Eastern publisher for trade rates, been refused and had thereupon taken his publications off their lists. "What a mistake," said the bookseller who told me of the fact, and who believed that the publisher thereby missed an opportunity of making his books more widely known.

Æsop must after all have been right when he fabled that it was impossible to please everyone.

THE WORK OF THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN.

THERE are probably few business concerns that, having sprung from so mean a beginning as the Methodist Book Concern, can after a century of mostly up-hill work, show such brilliant re-Nearly a hundred years ago it began its grand history on a capital of $600, borrowed from its book steward and founder, John Dickins, who, born in London and educated at Eaton college, came early to America to follow his calling as a preacher. He is described by Asbury as "a man of great piety, great skill, and learning; drinks in Latin and Greek; yet prays much and walks close with God." With his own hand he made the first entry in the books of this Book Concern, as first established in Philadelphia, on August 17, 1789. The first book he published was the immortal Imitatione Christi, by Thomas à Kempis, as translated by John Wesley; then followed the "Discipline"—the fifth edition thus far issued in America—the "Hymn Book," and Baxter's "Saint's Rest." In 1792, Mr. Dickins was allowed the use of a house and $666.33 per year, the Conference acting on the supposition that the profits arising from the business would amount to at least $2500 per year. Mr. Dickins died in 1798 and was succeeded by Ezekiel Cooper, who, when he declined re-election in 1808, stated that when he took charge of the concern in 1799, he found that the whole amount of clear capital stock, including debts and all manner of property, was not worth more than $4000; and that he had not a single dollar of cash in hand, belonging to the concern, to carry on the work, or to procure materials, or to pay a single demand against the concern which, at that time, was nearly $3000. In 1804 there was a capital, however, of $27,000. In that year, owing, probably, to serious church difficulties the book business was removed to New York. In 1816 the capital was reported to be $80,000; but by some means the Concern became considerably embarrassed.

The Conference directed the publication of a periodical, to be called the Methodist Missionary Magasine, and also declared it "improper for agents of the Book Concern to purchase or to sell grammars or any other such books."

In 1822 the agents rented the basement of the Wesleyan Seminary in Crosby street and began This was the first binding their publications. attempt at performing mechanical labor under the superintendence of the agents. For nearly forty years the books had been printed and bound by contract, and were simply sold at the agency. In 1820, owing to the great difficulty of transportation in those times, the Western Depository was established at Cincinnati. In 1824 Drs. Bangs and Emory purchased the seminary building and in the following September established the printing business. This period marks the rise of the extensive publishing interests as they now exist. On Sept. 9, 1826, was issued the first number of the Christian Advocate, which was the first weekly official publication of the church. A lot was purchased on Mulberry street where new and commodious buildings were erected in 1833, where the manufacturing department is still located. On Feb. 18, 1836, the buildings, with the entire stock, were destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $250,000. The buildings were replaced by larger ones.

In 1876 the reports show that the capital at New York amounted to $1,013,687.29 and at Cincinnati to $503,285.73. The reports for 1886 show the total assets of the Eastern section to have reached the sum of $1,527,753.87. The Book Concern's liabilities are reported to be "only such as must be incurred in conducting its current business. Its funded debt, which at the last annual meeting was $106,100 has since that date all been provided for and paid with the exception of $4,100. The total sales of books and periodicals at New York and the depositories during the fiscal year aggregated $1,003,635.41, and for the year ending November 30, 1886, like sales were $1,010,903. The report for the Western section shows the total sales of books and periodicals to have amounted to $870,363 (including $114,767.52 to the depositories, and $21,258.07 to the Eastern concern), showing an increase of sales of $90,924 over the previous year. The sales of the German publication at Cincinnati were $92,227.40, at Chicago and St. Louis, $13,307.19; total $105,534.59, showing an increase of $6,631 over the previous year.

ACCOMMODATING ADVERTISERS.

WE presume all publishers of journals have had the same experience in meeting the demands of more advertisers wanting places at the top of the page than there are pages to occupy, but such troubles are as nothing to those of a printer at Prague who had to print the report of the Board of Trade of that city. It is in the languages of both the nationalities of the country, the German and the Czech, or Bohemian, both most sensitive in regard to the pre-eminence of their language, and both wanting to occupy the first column of every page. Our ingenious typographer got out of the dilemma by placing the two columns, of course, side by side, but always one turned up-Then he printed two titles, one at side down. each of both outsides, again putting one upside down, so that the reader could begin wherever he liked, each language having a front page where the other ends.

COPYRIGHT IN ENGLISH GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS.

From the London Bookseller.

THE notice which lately appeared, reaffirming the existence of copyright in Government publications, has attracted a good deal of attention. It is commonly assumed that Parliamentary Blue-Books, Statutes of the Realm, Government Reports, and such like literature, are common property, and may be reprinted wholly or in part by any person who thinks proper to do so. Authors and publishers without number have drawn most copiously from these sources, with the full belief that they were merely exercising a right which belonged to every member of the community. They may be surprised to know that this right is purely imaginary, and that they were just as much guilty of infringement, as though the works they had copied had been those of private authors. The text-books on Copyright Law are unanimous on this point. The Crown, or its assignee the Government printer, has the same rights as a private individual with regard to copyright, if it thinks proper to exercise them; and we have heard it said that Messrs. Eyre & Spottiswoode have fully determined to enforce the right which the law gives them in every case of infringement.

A bad law only needs enforcement to bring about its repeal, and we are much inclined to think that a stringent assertion of copyright in Government publications will defeat its object. It is entirely opposed to the spirit of the times we live in to bolster up the prerogatives of officialdom, and it requires very little consideration to understand how disastrous it would be for the public service if any impediments were placed in the way of diffusing a knowledge of the contents of public documents. Our contention is, that the prerogative of the Crown entailing copyright in Government publications is opposed to public interests, and is therefore untenable. Every private citizen who, for profit or otherwise, assists in diffusing a knowledge of the laws of the land, or of information obtained at the expense of the Government, as may be useful to any section of commerce or industry, merely aids and extends the primary aims and intentions of the Legislature. Authors and printers of public documents are paid out of the public purse, and it is a ridiculous assumption that their paymasters have not a fee-simple in the product.

From the Paper and Printing Trades Journal.

A NEW process for colored prints, called "photochromotypes," has been perfected by Angerer & Göschl, of Vienna. The principle is similar to the colored "lichtdruck." First, photo-lithographs are made from the picture to be multiplied, which serve to some extent as copies for the draughtsman. The latter works up first only such parts as are to be yellow; upon a second sheet those only intended to be blue, and so on. Negatives are produced which show only a picture of the blue parts, others for yellow, red, etc. From these negatives zinc printing-plates are etched in half-tone, and the rest of the manipulation is the same as the fitting of the several color stones in chromo-lithography.

H. W. BEECHER'S LIFE HISTORY.

From the New York Times.

THE Rev. Henry Ward Beecher has decided to publish an autobiography. For some time many of his friends have expressed a desire that he should write such a book, knowing that, outside of the private life of the pastor himself, his comments upon the many national and social events that have occurred in his lifetime and with which he was so largely connected, could not fail to be most valuable. The book is to be published by Charles L. Webster & Co., who also are to issue the "Life of Christ."

Mr. Beecher said that he should finish the "Life of Christ" before beginning the autobiography. The former work was rapidly nearing completion, and would soon be entirely off his hands. Mr. Beecher will spend some time over the new book, and it will probably not be ready for eight months. It will cover a period of over half a century. "I shall begin early," said Mr. Beecher, "and bring it down to the time it is sent to the press." The scope of the work will be wide and reference made to the most important events of public interest that Mr. Beecher was brought in contact with. Special attention will be given to the abolition contest. Those who are curious to get a glimpse of Mr. Beecher's own life and his early impressions, the motives that led to his character-building, will not be disappointed. As in the case of the "Life of Christ," Webster & Co. pay for the exclusive right of publication, and Mr. Beecher will get a royalty on the new work.

A NEW WAY OF ADVERTISING BOOKS.

THE latest thing in book advertising has been devised by a French publishing firm. A large number of men walk in single file along the most frequented streets, apparently intent on reading an open book, which they hold out before them with both hands so that the back of the book can be seen. The public naturally wish to know the title of a work of such absorbing interest, and find, on looking, that it is a newly-published novel. It is hardly necessary to add that several of the hired men could not read a line of it to save their lives.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CO-OPERATION IN CATALOGUING.

New York, February 16, 1887.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I was most agreeably surprised to find that Mr. J. J. Bender, of the Bookmart, has already made a beginning on a line of work about which we have all taken a great deal of unproductive interest-1 refer to the perfecting of the records of American literature.

He showed me about 900 titles of books published between 1820 and 1860, which are not recorded in Roorbach. He seems to me to be entirely too modest in not allowing the public to know, through his own journal, of the important work he is about. The work seems so great that he fears his plans will not amount to anything, and he fears to ask for any help, lest he be deluged with materials and means that he would not be able to make good use of.

The titles he has were gathered by a comparison of Robert Clarke's Bibliotheca Americana of 1869 and 1875, with Roorbach. Clarke's later

This brings up the question again. The following embodies the net results of my own deliberations upon the subject:

"To complete the records of American literature co-operation is solicited.

"Titles of books published since 1860, not recorded, should be forwarded to the office of the Publishers' Weekly, 31-32 Park Row, New York City.

"Titles 1860 and earlier, not recorded, should be sent to the office of the Bookmart, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"All U. S. Government publications are excepted from the above, and titles of such works, not recorded, should be sent to the office of Hick-cox's Monthly, 906 M Street, W. Washington, D. C.

"All medical publications are also excepted from the above, and such titles not recorded should be forwarded to the office of the Index Medicus, Detroit, Mich.

"The missing titles will be incorporated at once into the next issues from the above offices, and thus placed forever beyond the risk of loss."

The above would make a good basis for discussion, if not of actual work, and if the publication of any part of this letter would be likely to bring out any valuable suggestions from any quarter, you are at liberty to so use it.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON'S WORKS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7, 1887.

The trade can appreciate the value of Putnam's edition of Alexander Hamilton's Works (9 vols.), when I state that a bookseller in this city paid me $50 for a set.

ROBERT BEALL.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE ALFRED TOWNSEND'S new novel will deal with the administration of George Washington.

THE author of "Obiter Dicta" has a new series of commentaries, under the same title, ready for publication.

MARGARET J. PRESTON, the well-known Southern writer, author of "For Love's Sake" and other stories, is threatened with total blindness.

"OUR OWN POMPEH," a satirical story just issued in London with some of its characters New Yorkers, is attributed to Mr. Louis J. Jennings.

DOWN PIATT is writing something in the nature of a war history, which he has chosen to call "Memoirs of Men who Saved the Union." A chapter or two is devoted to the much-neglected headquarters teamster and private Dalzell. The book will be published by Belford, Clarke & Co.

JOHN PAYNE, owing to recent ill health, has relinquished the task of editing a new annotated translation of the "Heptameron." Miss Mary Robinson, whose biography of Margaret of Angoulème has just been issued by Roberts Bros., is said to have taken it up.

MR. KINGLAKE has at last sent the conclusion of his manuscript to his publishers. It is hoped that the final volume of the "Invasion of the Crimea" will be ready for the public in a few months' time. It is now four-and-twenty years since the first volume came out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just published "A Synopsis of the Nature and Effects of Alcohol and Narcotics," by L. H. Luce, M.D.

THE THOMPSON PUB. Co., 404 Arch Street, Philadelphia, will publish shortly a new edition of "The American Home and Farmer's Cyclopædia," by Dr. H. R. Allen.

The many friends of Mme. Spyri will be glad to welcome a complete translation of "Kurze Geschichten," shortly to be issued by D. Lothrop & Co. Two of the tales in this collection are already familiar to many "children and those who love children" under the title of "Red-Letter Stories," which was the first translation of Mme. Spyri made in this country.

A SUBSTANTIAL souvenir of the exercises at the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Harvard University is soon to be issued by the Rand Avery Company, of Boston, in the way of a "250th anniversary edition" of Moses King's "Harvard and its Surroundings." This special edition will contain forty full-page photographic views, showing every building of the entire university as it was in 1886.

A FIRE that broke out on the top floor of the five-story building at 58 and 60 Reade Street, N. Y., on the night of the 17th inst., caused considerable damage to the stock and plant of Edward Bierstadt, the well-known printer of artotype photographs, etc. The stock and rooms of the National Temperance Publication Society, who occupy the third floor of the building, were damaged, it is estimated, to the extent of about $20,000.

ADOLPH WITTEMANN, 25 Park Place, New York, has issued a new souvenir album entitled "American Philanthropists." It contains photographs of Stephen Girard, Peter Cooper, Johns Hopkins, George Peabody, W. W. Corcoran, Margaret Haughery, Amasa Stone, John F. Slater, Matthew Vassar, Anna Ottendorfer, Henry Shaw, and Reuben Springer, as well as of public buildings, etc., founded by them. The book also has a short biography of each of the persons named.

"PROGRESS FROM POVERTY" is the title of a compact book to be published early in March by Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago. It is a critical review of Henry George's "Progress and Poverty" and "Protection or Free Trade." author is Giles B. Stebbins, of Detroit, whose "American Protectionist's Manual" and other writings on economic subjects have had many readers. In "Progress from Poverty" the author proposes to show "the grave errors in facts and logic which bring Mr. George to wrong conclusions. It is progress from poverty, not the pessimism of the rich richer and the poor poorer, which is shown as the fact, giving hope for a better future for labor and for wise plans for amity between labor and capital." The books is to be published in two editions-cloth at 50 cents and paper at 25 cents.

THE Rev. Joseph Cook has arranged with the Rand Avery Company for the exclusive right to publish the Boston Monday Lectures for the present course. They are to appear once a week in handsome pamphlet form, magazine size, in large type on fine paper. They are to be thoroughly revised and copyrighted by Mr. Cook, and are to be the only authentic reports of his lectures-Just as the course of lectures has been given for twelve years without any aim at pecuniary remuneration, so these lectures are to be published at a merely nominal price, 10 cents a copy, or 50 cents for the set of eight lectures, to pay only the bare cost of publishing. The present course is probably the most important and most interesting of all that have been delivered within the past twelve years, covering as it does the general topic of "Current Religious Perils." In these lectures Mr. Cook is to interpret, in his most eloquent and powerful manner, the many theological signs of the times, and review such vital topics as the Andover Controversy, the debate at Des Moines, the attitude of secular journalism, the new religious efforts on the colleges, and the general feeling of anxiety in the churches.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have recently published a revised edition of Volume 1, " Brück's Church History;" "Meditations on the Sufferings of Jesus Christ," from the Italian of Rev. Francis da Perinaldo, O.S.F., by a Member of the same Order; "A Handbook for Altar Societies and Guide for Sacristans and Others having charge of the Altar and Sanctuary;" "A Thought from St. Alphonsus for Each Day of the Year;" "A Thought from Dominican Saints for Each Day of the Year." They have in preparation for this the one hundredth anniversary of the Saint's death, "The Passion and the Death of Jesus Christ," being Vol. v. of the Centenary Edition of St. Alphonsus' Works; the sixth edition of the first volume of Rev. Dr. Smith's "Elements of Ecclesiastical Law," thoroughly revised in accordance with the new decrees of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore; a new, enlarged edition of their ever popular and wonderfully successful "Pictorial Lives of the Saints," at a reduced price; "A Thought from Saint Ignatius for Each Day of the Year;" "St. Joseph, the Advocate of Hopeless Cases;" and "Abandonment; or, Absolute Surrender to Divine Providence,," translated from the French of Rev. J. P. Caussade, S. J.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in press a new volume of poems by George Meredith, entitled "Songs and Ballads of Tragic Life."

BARON TAUCHNITZ celebrated on the 22d the fiftieth year of the foundation of his firm, probably the only German publishing house whose name is familiar to the British tourist. Dr. D. Ascher wrote a sonnet in celebration of the event.

ROBERT BROWNING, annoyed by the reissue of a number of Mrs. Browning's earlier poems, on which copyright had expired, has arranged with Smith & Elder for a shilling edition of the same poems as revised by the author, with the addition of a few other pieces.

Cassell. & Co., London, will shortly publish a work entitled "Celebrities of the Age," being a dictionary of the men and women of this century. It contains contributions by eminent authorities, and is edited by Mr. Lloyd C. Sanders, an Oxford scholar.

THE tale of "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" is not found in the Arabic manuscripts of the "Arabian Nights," and has therefore been supposed to be an invention of Galland, who made a French version of the tales in 1704. Sir Richard F. Burton has, however, recently found in the National Library of Paris an Arabic original of the story.

THE fifth and sixth volumes of Lecky's "History of England in the Eighteenth Century" are nearly ready. They cover the period from the acknowledgment of the independence of the United States in 1784 to the declaration of war with France in 1793, and include the early days of Grattan's Parliament in Ireland and the foundation of the Society of United Irishmen.

A CORRESPONDENT of Truth offers the following as his idea of an international copyright: "Every British and American author should be allowed to obtain a copyright in both countries by selling his work before publication, with due registry, to a publisher in each country. The plan is simple, and obviates all dissension respecting protection of paper manufacturers and publishers, the object, and the sole object, being to secure to the authors of both countries payment for the work of their brains."

The Athenaum understands that, after finishing the supplementary volumes of the "Arabian Nights," Sir Richard Burton proposes to bring out, by private subscription, a limited number of copies of his version of "The Pentamerone of Basili." He will translate from the original Neapolitan, of which he possesses the first edition and several others. He has already prepared half of the tales; but, being very very particular about exactitude, he will visit Naples and consult a professor of old Neapolitan—a dialect which Sir Richard himself spoke fluently as a boy.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS, London, are about to publish an illustrated edition of the "Masterpieces of French Fiction." They have arranged, says the Athenaum, with M. Paul Meurice, the executor and literary administrator of M. Victor Hugo, for the exclusive right to issue the illustrations to M. Hugo's writings in English, and have made similar agreements with M. Calmann Lévy for the novels of Alexandre Dumas, and with M. Jules Rouff for the novels of Eugène Sue. The series will be issued monthly, each volume containing about a hundred illustrations, and the price will probably be 12s. 6d. It is expected that each of these novels will fill from three to five volumes.

MR. R. L. STEVENSON is preparing for early publication a set of "Essays" in two volumes, the first volume to contain the collection originally published under the title "Virginibus Puerisque," which has been for some time out of print; the second a number of personal and literary papers, some new and some collected from various quarters. Mr. Stevenson will also contribute a full biographical memoir of his friend, Prof. Fleeming Jenkin, to the collection of essays, literary and scientific, by that gentleman, which will shortly be published by Messrs. Longman. Lastly, a small volume of poems, to be published under the title "Underwoods," is almost ready, and will consist of two parts, one English and the other Scotch, the English containing chiefly short occasional pieces and addresses to his friends.

Annual Catalogue, 1886.

THIS catalogue will be issued as early as photo-work and printing can be completed. It will comprise (1) full titles and descriptive notes of all books recorded in 1886, re-arranged in one author-alphabet (of about 225 pages) and reproduced by photo-process; (2) short-title index by author, title, and subject, giving date of record (of about 75 pages); (3), supplementary index; (4) annual lists of publishers.

It will be an octavo of over 350 pages, ranging with Publishers' Weekly or English Catalogue. Price, to subscribers, $2.50 in sheets (for interleaving), $3.00, half leather, style of American Catalogue; after publication, $3.00 and $3.50.

The price charged is necessary to cover the large cost of photographic reproduction and setting of index.

The editions will be limited to immediate demand, and the type of index will be immediately distributed and photo-plates broken up. Subscriptions should be sent now.

Forced Acquaintances.

By Edith Robinson. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

A famous American author writes that this is "a very amusing and well-told story, original and infinitely amusing. The differences in character and temperament, the thousand and one little situations that are derived from these differences, are very cleverly delineated. The elaboration of the narrative, which winds along through the household duties and the neighbor's peculiarities, is something after the style of Miss Austen."

The Life and Works of Giordano Bruno.

A New Volume of the English and Foreign Philosophical Library. With portrait. I vol., 408 pages, 8vo, $4.50.

Familiar Short Sayings.

By S. ARTHUR BENT, A.M. Fifth Edition, Revised and Enlarged. I vol., 12mo, vellum cloth, $2.00.

Indispensable to students, writers, and libraries. It gives a collection of short, sententious sayings of all times, such as are constantly referred to, but are not to be found in other books of reference. A short sketch of each speaker and the circumstances attending each remark is also given. This new edition has been thoroughly revised and corrected throughout, with new indexes and tables of authors, and the addition of over so pages, bringing the work down to the latest time and quoting 80 authors not before included, and containing over 300 new sayings from Agassiz, Choate, President Cleveland, Emerson, Evarts, Carlyle, Gladstone, Wellington, Parnell, etc., etc.

ALSO

New and cheaper editions of the following valuable and popular books of reference, uniform with the above, standard in every well-arranged library:—

A Sensation in Roman Circles.

THE BATTLE OF BIETIGHEIM."

[Special to the Chicago Daily News.]

Rome, Itally, Jan. 1, 1887.

"Who wrote 'Bietigheim; its Cause, Cost, and Consequences'? It is an American book that has caused a veritable sensation in certain Roman circles. A friend sent me two copies from America, then I ordered one. These three copies have been flying around from hand to hand, and the book is pronounced to be remarkably clever and original. A clever person said: 'Why, it is so life-like that it upsets all our ideas. The battle of Waterloo is nothing; and we feel as if we were actually living behind the times.' The book has been read with much curiosity and interest in the Roman diplomatic circle. Haas, the bookseller in the Piazza di Spagna (Spithoever), has sent to America for some copies, and soon we shall see 'Bietigheim' with its volcanic fireworks cover exposed in his shop window, and every one will insist on knowing 'who wrote Bietigheim'?

This book, "The Battle of Bietigheim," author unknown, is sure to create a sensation on both sides of the ocean. It has been translated into German. It is believed that the German Government is taking steps to suppress it. The book is certainly a remarkable forecast of the future.

NOTES IN SEASON.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have in preparation "The Collected Works of Dante Gabriel Rossetti," edited with preface and notes by William Michael Rossetti, in two octavo volumes; a newly-prepared edition from entirely new plates of "Dante and his Circle;" a new edition of the Poetical Works of Dante G. Rossetti, revised and enlarged, forming a complete edition of his poems; and "Prisoners of Poverty," women wage-workers, their trades and their lives, by Helen Campbell, author of "Mrs. Herndon's Income," etc.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just published a new volume of Roscoe and Schorlemmer's "Treatise on Chemistry," which is part 3 of volume III., and treats of Aromatic Compounds; "A Treatise on Surveying," by W. M. Gillespie, revised and enlarged by Cady Staley, which includes the two works by Dr. Gillespie, "Levelling and Higher Streams," in the "Practical Treatise on Surveying," hitherto published separately; and "The Steam-Engine," by George C. V. Holmes, containing information upon branches of the subject which have hitherto received but scant notice in works of the kind. The house will also publish shortly "Lil Lorimer," a novel by Theodore Gift; "In Paradise," a new edition of a novel by Paul Heyse; and "The Old House at Sandwich," a novel by Joseph Hatton.

HARPER & BROS. have just ready "Haifa, or, life in modern Palestine," by Laurence Oliphant, edited, with introduction, by Chas. A. Dana; an introduction to French prose composition, being the third part of "French Principia," by Rev. P. H. E. Brette, prepared on the plan of Dr. William Smith's "Principia Latina;" and "Microscopy for Beginners," by Alfred C. Stokes. "Samuel Johnson," by Leslie Stephen, in the English Men of Letters Series, has been added to the Handy Series; and the "Merry Men," by R. L. Stevenson, and "Springhaven," by R. D. Blackmore, to the Franklin Square Library. H. Rider Haggard's new success, "Jess," is brought out in cloth, and "From the Forecastle to the Cabin," by Captain S. Samuels, is published, with many illustrations, in hand-some binding.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day A. A. Hayes' new novel, "The Jesuit's Ring." romantic circumstances of the loss and recovery of a precious legendary ring worn by one of the Jesuit missionaries, who attempted in the seventeenth century to establish a settlement on Mount Desert Island, most happily connects this story of society and love-making at contemporary Bar Harbor with the early legends of Maine. It is a novel of incident, in which the action is enlivened with delightful sketches of summer life at Mount Desert. They have also just ready an interesting volume of sermons by Canon H. S. Holland, entitled "Creed and Character," in which the paramount idea is that Christianity is not a set of theological ideas, but the manifestation of the personality of Christ, exhibited in the creed of the Christian Church and the Christian character; also, a new and cheaper edition of Dr. George P. Fisher's "Supernatural Origin of Christianity," They will publish shortly a new volume in the popular series, Epochs of History, to be entitled "The Early Tudors, Henry VII. and VIII." It will fill the place in the series between Edward III, and the age of Elizabeth.

TICKNOR & Co. will issue shortly "Last Memorials of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow,' gathered and edited by his brother, the Rev. Samuel Longfellow. This will appear in shape uni-form with the "Life" and will contain more journals and letters of the poet; various reminiscences of personal friends; tributes from Norton, Holmes, and others; a chapter of tabletalk and bits of unpublished verse. A genealogy, divers pages of bibliography, and an index will complete the volume. The Ticknors also announce the following novels: "The Confessions of Claud," by Edgar Fawcett; "Lights and Shadows of a Life," by Mrs. Dahlgren; "The Strike in the B—— Mills," a story in which the labor question plays a part; "The Devil's Hat," a story of the oil regions, by Melville Phillips, literary editor of the Philadelphia Press; and "Two Gentlemen of Boston," a story of New England life. In May they expect to issue the first of a series of paper-covered novels for summer reading. The series is to include recent popular and successful fiction as well as a number of ne stories. The series will be published weekly

The more romantic features of the history of invention have been described, apart from their technical surroundings. The life-stories of most inventors have already been written, but in many cases there has been so much hard fact to set forth, that the thread of romance has now and then seemed to get lost. The author's research has extended into many odd nooks and corners, and much labor has been brought to bear upon the bringing together of his interesting facts of the peculiarities of inventors.

The present work is not a continuation, but a supplement of the author's "History of Rome," the fourth volume of which was issued thirty years ago. Since then Prof. Mommsen's researches have made him the master of fresh and valuable facts concerning the subject races of the Empire, and all matters pertaining to the government of the provinces, their internal administration, and their mutual relations. Previous historians have looked at the history of the Empire too exclusively from the point of view of the imperial city and the central authority, forget-ting that, while the Empire was Roman in name, it was a world in fact, and that the provinces were as essential a part of it as the city itself. It is for these reasons that part of it as the city itself. It is for these reasons that results of his special and unique information, leaving for future treatment the intervening period between the close of his former volumes and this account of the Provinces of the Empire.

"That the doctrines herein set forth should conform to the teachings of the majority of writers on such topics has been deemed of no consequence whatever. But it is important that correct principles should be elucidated. Therefore great pains and care have been taken to sift out common, but false, assumptions and theories, and to state nothing as truth which cannot be verified."—Preface.

The author and her husband (whose important works on the "Sacred mysteries among the Mayas," etc., are already well known to the American public), have had unusual opportunities for studying the country and the inhabitants of Central America. In the present volume Mme, le Plongeon has collected a series of bright and entertaining as well as instructive papers relating to the customs, manners, superstitions, etc., of the denizens of Yucatan, with occasional graphic descriptions of scenery.

Many of these papers were first published in Harper's Bazar, Scientific American, N. 1. Tribune, and other magazines and journals.

A love-story of which the scene shifts from Australia to Singapore and then to Southern France, giving the author a chance for description and detail, which she makes excellent use of. The key-note of the story is struck in the musings of the chief hero, which run: "Retribution for sin comes not through the will of an arbitrary ruler of destinies, but is in accordance with immutable and moral law, inherent in the universe as the physical forces which generate electricity, etc."

A detailed account of the trials of a family, forced to move into a poor part of a large city by loss of means after the father's death. The two sisters are uncongenial temperaments, and this leads the author to remark that relations are often only "forced acquaintances." The little frettings of daily life are remarkably well described. A thread of romance amidst much practical information will make the story attractive to young girls.

Silsbee, Marianne C. D. A half century in Salem. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1887. c. 5+120 p. S. cl., $1.

A dozen short chapters relating to old-time persons, events, and whatever else was characteristic of Salem. The author tells lovingly what she knows. Old letters of more than three-quarters of a century ago are given, and a young lady's gossip of that time. Warm affection for her associates and spirited interest in the details of home life make these letters charming. The book is carefully printed and bound in canvas, with a vignette of the porch of one of the old mansions of Salem.

Six short stories portraying life and character under very unusual circumstances. Mr. Stevenson's original and dramatic style is at its best, and even the satiated critic that reads "for a living" is fascinated by his magical gift at story-telling.

An enueavor to consider the chief intellectual hindrances to Christian faith which are prevalent in our day. The book does not give an exposition of Christian doctrines. At the outset the author disposes of "the most fundamental objections to Christianity and thence ascends, step by step, until at length objections which proceed from Theists who are 'almost Christians' are considered." The first articles or essays, printed under the name of "Quiet observations," appeared in the Pittsburg Desplatek, July 23, 1884, and were devoted to the characteristics of the followers of Mr. St. John, at that time the Prohibition candidate for the presidency. They met with great success, and the clear-sighted, witty editor was induced to "write up" all the little folles of humanity brought to his notice. These articles, covering a period of two years have now been gathered into a vol. ity brought to his notice. These articles, covering a period of two years, have now been gathered into a volume, that will help many to "see ourselves as others see us." The tone is kindly, but the wit is incisive.

A CASE OF TITLE.

WE are requested by the Illustrated Publishing Company, of Chicago, to explain the circumstances of their use of the name of Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirke on certain novels which were not written by her, as they state that they were misled by an entry in the Publishers' Weekly record. This house published a novel under the title of "Fairy Gold," which we entered under the name of Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirke, knowing her to be the author of the existing novel of that title. The book, however, proved to be not the same book, but a reprint from an English unknown author, and in reprinting further books of the same English author the Illustrated Publishing Company used the name of Mrs. Kirke because of our reference of the previous book to her.

The case illustrates very well the need that publishers, especially those who reprint foreign books, should have a care in their use of titles before making their announcements and printing their books. The law in regard to titles is in so much confusion that it is not possible to say whether a title innocently used would be ruled an , infringement of copyright; it is possible, if not probable, that the author or publisher of Mrs. Kirke's book could procure an injunction and damages for this use of title of a copyrighted book in their legal ownership. However that may be, the use of a duplicate title is misleading to the trade and to readers, and with the catalogue facil- | has been added to the staff of this house, and the ities now before the trade there is little excuse for a publisher who fails to take the trouble to look up in the "American Catalogue" and elsewhere whether a title is already in use.

The point under discussion is another instance of the need of revision of our domestic as well as our international copyright arrangements.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY.

On February 26. Daniel Lothrop, James E. Lothrop, Matthew H. Lothrop, and John C. Lothrop (heretofore doing business under the firm and style of D. Lothrop & Co.), and Elbridge S. Brooks, William H. Arnold, and Edmund H. Pennell, incorporated themselves under the laws of the State of Massachusetts for the printing, publishing, and sale of books under the corporate name of The D. Lothrop Company. The organization was effected and the company began business under its new name on the 1st inst. The Board of Directors consists of Daniel Lothrop, James E. Lothrop, and John C. Lothrop. The officers of the company are Daniel Lothrop, President; James E. Lothrop, Treasurer; Matthew H. Lothrop, Assistant Treasurer; William H. Arnold, Superintendent; Elbridge S. Brooks, Editor; and Edmund H. Pennell, Clerk. The capital stock is $200,000, in two thousand shares, at $100 per share, and the entire stock has been taken up by the several members of the company.

Mr. Pennell has for years been connected with the Lothrop house, and has made his mark in the concern as a valuable and efficient worker.

Of the two new members now brought into connection with the 'louse Mr. E. S. Brooks has long been known to the book-trade, having begun business as a clerk with D. Appleton & Co. in February 1865, and having been since associated with the houses of Henry Holt & Co., Sheldon & Co., E. Steiger, The Publishers' Weekly, the Brooklyn Times, and the Century Company, where he was, until this new connection was formed, one of the Associate Editors on the staff of St. Nicholas. Mr. Brooks is to assume the post of Editor to the corporation and will undertake the editorial supervision of all the publications of the house, a work of no small proportions and responsibility in view of the largely increasing list of the house. He will also prepare and edit under his own name several special works of peculiar interest touching various phases of American history.

Mr. William H. Arnold also needs no introduction to the trade. He is well known as a live bookseller, first in Poughkeepsie, then in Philadelphia, where in late years he was instrumental in building up Mr. Wanamaker's stupendous retail book business from a most insignificant beginning. Mr. Arnold is to be superintendent of the entire business of the new company and his unquestioned business ability will most successfuly supplement the thorough and active executive direction of Mr. Daniel Lothrop.

No change will be made in the very efficient editorship of Wide Awake and the other magazines of the house.

Mr. J. E. Powers, also lately with Wanamaker, pushing of the various magazines that bear the Lothrop imprint will be under his care. known to have special talent in this class of work, which is becoming more and more a science, with the daily increasing number of competing magazines, almost all of which seem to attain an equal level of excellence. The D. Lothrop Co may be congratulated upon its unusually stro-force.

ROBERT BEALL.

On the 2d inst. Robert Beall, whose name is well known throughout the book-trade of this country, had been in business on Pennsylvania Avenue thirty-three years. Mr. Beall was born in Washington in 1837. While a lad he entered the book-store of the late Franck Taylor, on Pennsylvania Avenue, near Four-and-a-half Street, and was employed for several years as an assistant. It was in 1872, fifteen years ago, that he went into business for himself in the same build-ing which he now occupies. "His store," says the editor of The Capital, "is known to all bookbuyers and book-lovers in the District of Columbia. It is a favorite resort of public men and men of science, who know that they can always find there works of special value to them as well as all the best literature of the day. To cultivated persons who reside here, or who pay occasional visits to Washington, Mr. Beall's shelves furnish a most attractive collection of good literature, new and old-and the old is often more ' attractive than the new. One is always sure to find there very choice and desirable editions of the best authors. But more than this, one can always find books that he has not specially sought, but is delighted to have an opportunity to acquire. Few men 'know books' and know their worth and importance better than he. Few men, it may be added, have a wider acquaintance with the men who own libraries and use them. Having been for such a long time in business, he has known all his life such public men as have been long upon the public stage. Mr. Lamar, for instance, knew Mr. Beall and bought books of him as a clerk in Taylor's store long before the war. Justice Field is one of the men who may be frequently seen conning the works on his counters. The late David Davis was not only a constant patron (he was a great book-lover), but a warm personal friend. When he was a lad, Mr. Beall used to deliver books and periodicals to Daniel Webster, and to-day he finds in Mr. Webster's successor, Senator Hoar, a frequent and, it may be added, an appreciative patron. Mr. Beall's services are very apt to be called for when a committee of Congress or a head of department wishes to make some important addition to the reference-books or other literary re-sources of the Government."

LEE & SHEPARD'S TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

LAST month was a red-letter day in the an-ils of the firm of Lee & Shepard. They began nals of the firm of Lee & Shepard. business February 1, 1862, in the old Chelsea Dye House building, corner of Washington St. and Harvard Place, a structure similar in its architecture to the "Old Corner Book-Store." This was shortly afterward torn down, and they took the store 149 Washington St. Here their business increased to an enormous extent, and they practically became "the jobbing house" of Boston and New England, and carried the largest stock of books in Boston, which necessitated the constant addition of rooms and stores in the rear. The great fire of November 9-11, 1872, just "scorched" them, though their front windows were all broken by the intense heat which prevailed. Soon afterward they were obliged, for want of room, to seek new quarters, and they leased the large granite building, 47 and 49 Franklin St., which had just been rebuilt, and which they occupied for a number of years. Upon the expiration of their lease they removed to their present quarters, 10 Milk St., where they have devoted their energies entirely to publishing, giving up the jobbing business at the time of their removal. In the publishing line they have been eminently successful. Among their most successful ventures are the numerous works of Oliver Optic, who has written 117 different volumes; of Sophie May, Elijah Kellog, J. T. Trow-bridge, and others. They were the originators of the celebrated "Golden Floral Fringe" books, which sold in phenomenal numbers and were largely imitated. The writer well remembers . Wm. Lee, in the palmiest days of the jobbing business, from 1866 to 1870, standing all day long on the stairs in the wholesale department at 149 Washington Street, during the "Christmas rush," with a long line of "pickup" boys passing before him, in line, and recalls his wonderful memory in recognizing every boy who passed along, his ability to read the prices of every book, whether 16mo, 12mo, or 8vo, correctly, without looking inside, calling off charge after charge and giving the various discounts on each. He also remembers how eagerly, Christmas morning, the "boys" called round to wish Mr. Lee "Merry Christmas," and the numerous gifts they received from his hands.

WANTED, TRAINED BOOKSELLERS.

From the Buffalo Express.

It is strangely seldom that a cry goes up from a stoic public deprecating the lack of capable and intelligent assistance in our book-stores. it is a subject which finds less voice in the freedom of the press than in the privacy of the Why not a training-school for would-be booksellers? Just as there are various disciplines which fit the young idea for other occupations, so that a purchaser at Christmas-time, in search of photographs of composers at a book store long noted for its stock of celebrities, need not have had cold water thrown over him by a clerk who pointed at a picture of the Niagara Falls and asked if it was anything like that which he wanted. As nothing could be gained but total repudiation of all composers, present, past, and future, so far as any suggestion that they might be found in the store was concerned, the customer was forced to depart, raging inwardly. This story from real life is matched by a passive spectator, few as there are in the holidays, who overheard the following hurried colloquy between two clerks employed in the same establishment:

First clerk: "Say! There's a woman here wants Spenser's poems. What shall I tell her?" Second clerk (hesitatingly): "Is it Herbert Spencer's poems?"

First clerk: "Yes."

Second clerk (confidently): "Tell her we haven't got 'em."—Exit disappointed seeker, doubtless to meet a like fate elsewhere, while the passive spectator was stirred to an active pity for the would-be patronizers of the book-stores.

COMMUNICATIONS.

BOOKS WITHOUT BACK TITLES.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1887.

To the Editor of the l'ublishers' Weekly

I HAVE such frequent annoyance from finding books on our shelves without a BACK TITLE, that I am constrained to write and urge through your columns on all publishers of BOUND, or paper-covered books or pamphlets to give a back title on all their publications if they wish them sold. It is almost impossible to distinguish one book from another, particularly if only a copy or two are on hand; often they get into the shelves with other books.

OBITUARY.

JAMES B. YOUNG.

MR. JAMES B. YOUNG, member of the firm of E. & J. B. Young & Co., and one of the oldest publishers of this city, died at his home, No. 308 W. 58th St., on Saturday, the 27th ult. Mr. Young was aged fifty-nine, and was born in New York City. He was altogether a self-made man, of strong character, honesty, and manliness—a perfect gentleman withal, and a merchant of the old stamp. In his early manhood he and his brother Edwin, the senior member of the firm, started as grocers in a small way. Some years after they branched out as "rectifiers," but soon abandoned this and went into the bookselling and publishing business. For many years they devoted their attention exclusively to the publication of religious and church works. The firm, who succeeded Pott & Avery and alterwards Pott, Young & Co., had its headquarters at Nos. 10 and 12 Cooper Union, and represented in this country the "Queen's Printers" of England and also the Society for the Propagation of Christian Knowledge. A wife and one son survive him.

BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR, the author and lecturer, died at his residence in Cleveland, O., on February 24, aged 68 years. He was born in Lowville N. Y., where early in life he established a university. For twenty-one years he held the position of literary editor on The Chicago Evening Journal, and was correspondent of that paper. He wrote a large number of excellent volumes of both poetry and prose. Some of his most prominent and best known works were " January and June," a book of essays and poems; "Pictures in Camp and Field," "The World on Wheels," "Old-Time Pictures and Sheaves of Rhyme," "Songs of Yesterday," and "The Attractions of Language," which was published over forty years ago. His choicest poems have been collected and printed together (by S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago), the revision of them occupying a large part of his time last year. In the intervals he wrote his first novel, now in the hands of the publishers, to be called "Theophilus Trent." Mr. Taylor leaves a wife and two sons. Of late years Mr. Taylor appeared before literary associations and the general public in the capacity of a popular lecturer, and always with marked appreciation and effect.

REV. DR. CHARLES W. BAIRD, a well-known Presbyterian writer, died two weeks ago at Rye, Westchester County, New York. He was the author of "The Huguenot Emigration to America," published a few years ago by Dodd, Mead & Co.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE W. PECK, of Peck's Sun, and author of "Peck's Bad Boy," will publish in a few days, through his publishers, Belford, Clarke & Co., Chicago and New York, a new work, entitled "How Private Geo. W. Peck Put Down the Rebellion, or, the funny experiences of a raw recruit."

MISS MARIETTA HOLLEY, the distinguished humorist, better known as "Josiah Allen's Wife," and author of "Samantha at the Centennial." "Betsey Bobbitt." etc., etc., who spent all last season at Saratoga (accompanied, of course, by Josiah) wrote up a book taking off the fashions, follies, flirtations, water craze, poodle dogs, lowneck dressing, etc., etc., of that great pleasure resort, has just realized a decidedly handsome figure for the MS. from Hubbard Brothers, of Philadelphia, who propose publishing it this spring, and illustrate it very handsomely and sell it exclusively by subscription.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—R. F. Leask & Co., of St. Paul, Minn., have opened a branch at 29 Ann St., where they have a cosey and attractive store.

NEW YORK CITY.—C. H. Denison's Index Office has removed to 697 Broadway, corner of Fourth Street.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Samuel Carson & Co. have rented the entire building at No. 3 Samsons St., next to the corner of Sutter St.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

C. N. CASPAR desires to remind those in the trade who have received the blanks and question sheets of his "Directory of the Book, News, and Stationery Trades," and have not yet answered them, to do so without delay. There is no doubt but that those who have not yet answered have We take the liberty, overlooked the matter. therefore, of adding our own request that all cooperate in this matter and that promptly. have all felt the want of such a work for years, and ought not now let the undertaking suffer from sheer carelessness. It is to the interest of publisher and bookseller alike that the information be as full as desired by the compiler, and, above all, that it be forwarded promptly.

THE twentieth annual issue of "Poor's Manual of the Railroads of the United States" will be ready about July 1.

THE next volume of The Gentleman's Magasine Library, issued in this country by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., will be on "Romano-British Remains."

THE N. D. Thompson Publication Company, New York and St. Louis, are the publishers of a "Life of Abraham Lincoln," by Francis F. Browne. It is largely a compilation from various sources.

CASSELL & Co. project a limited édition de Juxe of Messrs. Matthews and Hutton's "Actors and Actresses of Great Britain," in five volumes, large paper. They have also in press "Yachts and Yachting," by Capt. R. F. Coffin, illustrated by Fred. S. Cozzens.

J. C. BLAIR, Huntingdon, Pa., is the manufacturer of an excellent pen which he calls "The Keiter, No. 5." It is an easy writing pen, combining the qualities of a quill and steel pen, and seems admirably adapted to whims of cranky writers.

MACMILLAN & Co. expect to receive immediately from England Part 3 of the "New English Dictionary," edited by Dr. James A. H. Murray. This part concludes the letter B, and marks a sensible advance in the labor of publication, which it is announced will proceed at a faster rate than hitherto.

Howard Challen, 150 Nassau St., N. Y., has now ready a new "Subscription Record," a blank-book arranged so that names of subscribers can be entered alphabetically and by first vowel for quick reference, adapted to last four years, showing renewals as well as those who have been subscribers.

McHale, Rohde & Co., 9 Cortlandt St., N. Y., dealers in old and new books, have issued a bright-looking perpetual calendar. The design in five colors is a sunny one, of lake and meadow, and gamboling cherubs—the whole under the sway of a symbolic figure of Art. The calendar, we believe, may be had gratis upon application.

THE CENTURY Co. will issue their war book, "Battles and the Leaders of the Civil War," edited by R. U. Johnson and C. C. Buel, by subscription only. It is to be issued in about thirty-two parts at 50 cents each. They will publish shortly, under the title of "The Pharaohs of the Bondage and the Exodus," the lectures on Egypt delivered before his congregation this winter by Dr. C. S. Robinson.

WM. S. DUNCOMBE & Co., San Francisco, Cal., have published a Physicians' Clinical Case and Record Book designed for easy and rapid note-taking. About fifty pages are provided with printed blanks on which may be recorded the name of the patient, his occupation, address, age, race, height, weight, temperament, hereditary tendencies, habits and modes of life, previous disease, subjective symptoms, objective symptoms, disease, duration of illness and treatment and progress. To these are added about 200 blank pages. The whole is neatly and substantially bound.

GINN & COMPANY, Boston, will publish at once Hermann Lotze's "Outlines of Logic," translated and edited by Prof. George T. Ladd. This work discusses both pure and applied logic. Under the first head come the formation of concepts, the theory of judgment, a system of the forms of judgment, the doctrine of argument or the drawing of conclusions, the figures of Aristotle, etc. The applied logic presents the application of the forms of conception, the adducing of proof, and the process of thought in discovery. is followed by a brief treatise on the Encyclopsedia of Philosophy, in which are set forth the definition and method of Theoretical Philosophy, of Practical Philosophy, and of the Philosophy of Religion. This volume will be about one-fifth larger than the others, and will make an admirable brief text-book in logic.

D. C. HEATH & Co. announce for early publication a translation of "Compayré's Elementary Psychology," which has just appeared in Paris. The translation will be made by a well-known educational writer, and it is anticipated that the work will be invaluable in normal school work. They will issue, this month, "Novelletten Bibliothek," standard short stories in German, selected from the best modern writers, with explanatory and literary notes by Dr. Wilhelms Bernhardt, of the Washington (D. C.) High School; "Method in Education," translated from the Italian of Antonio Rosmini Serbati, by Mrs. William Gray; "Suggestive Lessons in Language and Reading," a manual for primary teachers, by Anna B. Badlam, of the Rice School, Boston; "The Earth in Space, or, a tortnight in astronomical geography," by Edward P. Jackson, author of "The Demigod" and Instructor in Science at the Boston Latin School.

S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago, have now in press a novel that is calculated to excite the curiosity of the reading public and one which will have additional interest now, as being the last volume prepared for the press by the author. It is from the pen of the late Dr. B. F. Taylor, author of "Between the Gates," "World on Wheels," etc., and is said to be decidedly unique in character and original in design. Its title is "Theophilus Trent, or, old times in the oak openings, depicting scenes and incidents of pioneer life forty years ago. Mr. Taylor's acknowledged versatility and genius, and his marvellous descriptive power promise a most fascinating volume. The essays on Goethe, which were read before the Milwaukee Literary School last August, are soon to be published by Messrs. Griggs under the title " Poetry and Philosophy of Goethe," edited by Marion V Dudley. The great diversity of opinions regarding his life, and the diversity of interpretations which his writings have given rise to, render essays like these, which are the productions of some of the most faithful and diligent students of German literature in this country, of deep interest, not only to the admirers of the great German generally. "Masters of the Situation, or, some secrets of success and power," by W. J. Tilley, another new book soon to be published by this house, promises to be of great interest to all classes of readers, and to young men especially. It will treat of the always interesting and always important question of success in life, and the means by which it is attained. "Promptness," "Individuality," "Genius," "Application," "Enthusiasm," "Manners," "Opportunity," "Masters of the Situation," etc., are some of the topics discussed. The subjects quoted convey but an inadequate idea of the scope and richness of the work, which is free from any symptoms of didactic dryness, and the discussions of which teem with apposite illustrations.

MR. E. J. W. GIBB, the translator of "The History of the Forty Vezirs," is at work upon a translation of the thirteenth century French romance of "Aucassin and Nicolette," which will be published by Mr. Redway, of London.

Apropos of the 50th anniversary of the existence of the firm of B. Tauchnitz, the Freiherr D. Christian K. Bernhard von Tauchnitz has written an account of the publications of the firm, which deals exhaustively with the subject of the Tauchnitz Series.

The Incorporated Society of Authors, writes G. W. S. to the Tribune, on February 26, "will hold during March a series of conferences on subjects within the scope of their organization. The first occurs next Wednesday (March 3) with the Earl of Lytton in the chair, when Mr. Walter Besant delivers an address on the maintenance of literary property. He intends to discuss the present system of payment by publishers to authors and expose the proportions of profit obtained by the authors and publishers respectively. This society is careful not to take an attitude of hostility to the publishing trade, but is quietly doing a useful work in advising authors and enabling them to protect themselves in their dealings with publishers."

A FRENCH and English Dictionary of the Cant. Slang, and Quaint expressions used in the high and low life of old and new Paris is indeed a novelty. Such a work is shortly to be issued by subscription in the form of an edition de luxe. The author is Prof. A. Barrèra, of the R. M. Academy, Woolwich, who wishes to give the benefit of his labors to the lover of philological curiosities as well as the English readers of modern French fiction. This Argot dictionary furnishes an English slang equivalent of the English rendering, together with many quotations from French and English authors. It is not merely a dry compilation, as it contains much historical and philological matter, anecdotes and information on the social habits of that class of people it deals with. The book is accompanied by a frontispiece drawn by Godefroy Durand.

THE seventh volume of Ranke's history, just published in Germany, contains some interesting personal facts about the late historian. There was never any pause in his activity, says the writer of the preface to the new volume, life and activity being one and the same to him. The editor adds: "He resumed his last and greatest undertaking immediately on the conclusion of the preceding part. To the usual passion for work was joined a presageful impatience, which so stimulated his intellect that during a period of four months, notwithstanding attacks of bodily pain, he made research into and portrayed—from original sources, according to his custom—a period of four generations, rich in events of universal importance." The period embraced by this volume extends from the death of Otto the Great to the period of the Crusades.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

BANGS & Co. have in preparation a catalogue of the extensive library of the late Richard M. Hoe, which includes, besides a choice collection of standard works, many works in fine bindings and a fine collection relating to printing.

Nos. 23, 24 of the Bibliographical Contributions of the Library of Harvard University consist of a list of the publications of the University and its officers, and of the chief publications on the University, by Wm. H. Tillinghast; and an Index to Reference Lists, by Wm. C. Lane.

E. F. BONAVENTURE, 15 E. 17th Street and 2 Barclay Street, has issued a new catalogue (in a limited edition) of rare books, with fac-similes of fine bindings, from royal collections. In consequence of the importance of the catalogue, and the limitation of the edition, the price to collectors who have not been in relation with the house will be 50 cents per copy.

WITH the second volume of its "Digesta Shakespeareana" (now in press) the New York Shakespeare Society completes its effort to reduce the entire body of Shakespearean literature (books, pamphlets, magazine, and the more notable newspaper articles) to a topical index to January 1, 1887. The society proposes to issue annually a year-book giving the title of every publication throughout the world on Shakespearean matters, and also with brief statements of the sum of each, and the judgment of the society as to whether the same may be new matter, or discussion of previous statement, discovery, or theory.—N. Y. Tribune.

Have Just Published:

A ROMANCE OF MOUNT DESERT.

THE JESUIT'S RING. By A. A. HAYES. I vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The romantic circumstances of the loss and recovery of a precious legendary ring worn by one of the Jesuit Missionaries, who attempted in the 17th century to establish a settlement on Mount Desert Island, most happily connects this story of society and love-making at contemporary Bar Harbor with the early legends of Maine. It is a novel of incident, in which the action is enlivened with delightful sketches of summer life at Mount Desert.

CREED AND CHARACTER. By Canon H. S. HOLLAND, M.A., Senior Student of Christ Church, Oxford. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

Canon Holland's volume of sermons, Logic and Life, published four years ago, had many readers who bore unanimous testimony to the rare intellectual power, spiritual beauty, and reverent spirit of the book.

In this new volume the sermons all suggest a single paramount idea and tend towards a single conclusion; which is to show that Christianity is not a set of theological ideas, but the manifestation of the personality of Christ exhibited in the Creed of the Christian Church and the Christian Church and the Christian character.

SUPERNATURAL ORIGIN OF CHRIS-TIANITY. With Spiritual Reference to the Theories of Renan, Strauss, and the Tübingen School. By GEORGE P. FISHER, D.D. New and cheaper edition, uniform with "The Reformation," etc. Crown 8vo, $2.50.

Of this work the Congregationalist says: "We know of nothing so good as this volume for the reading of any intelligent mind, which is in itself disturbed by the rationalism which it combats and refutes, or which desires to learn how to handle such discussions in the arena of daily discussions."

RECENTLY PUBLISHED:

A New Book by Robert Louis Stevenson. MERRY MEN: THE

And Other Tales and Fables. Authorized edition. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper (yellow covers), 35 cents.

"... There is a power of a grim sort on every page of this curious story ('The Merry Men'), and there is a vividness about everything in it which has no parallel outside of Wuthering Heights."—Richard Henry Stoddard, in N. Y. Mail and Express.

"A wonderful collection of tales, recalling Poe, Haw-thorne, and Hoffman. There is no doubting the fact that Mr. Stevenson is the one superior story-teller of the world."—Hartford Post.

"The contents of this volume are all so good that any other of the powerful stories between the covers might have been safely trusted to supply the name and fill the opening pages of the book."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

An Addition to Theodor Mommsen's History of Rome.

THE PROVINCES OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Translated, with the author's sanction and additions, by WILLIAM P. DICKSON, D.D., LL.D., with ten maps by Professor Kiepert. 2 vols., 8vo, $6.00.

"The most important event of the year, in the line of historical literature, is without question the appearance of this addition to Mommsen's History of Rome."—The

"It is a book which no other living scholar could have written."—London Academy.

"The book for which the learned world has been waiting for thirty years has come at last."—Macmillan's Magasine.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

NEW VOLUME OF ROSCOE AND SCHORLEMMER'S CHEMISTRY.

A Treatise on Chemistry—Part III. of Vol. III.

By H. E. ROSCOE, F.R.S., and C. SCHORLEMMER, F.R.S., Professors of Chemistry in the Victoria University, Owens College, Manchester. Part III., Volume III. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

This part commences the consideration of the complicated but most important series of bodies known as the Aromatic Compounds.

INORGANIC CHEMISTRY. Vols. I. and II.

Vol. I. Non-METALLIC ELEMENTS. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

Vol. II., Part I. METALS. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

Vol. II., Part II. METALS. Svo, cloth, $3.00.

ORGANIC CHEMISTRY. THE CHEMISTRY OF THE HYDROCARBONS AND THEIR DERIVATIVES. Vol. III., Part I. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

Vol. III., Part II. THE SAME. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

A Treatise on Surveying.

COMPRISING THE THEORY AND THE PRACTICE. By W. M. GILLESPIE, LL.D. Revised and enlarged by CADY STALEY, President of Case School of Applied Science. With numerous Illustrations, Diagrams, and various Tables. One vol., 8vo, half leather, $3.50.

The two works by Dr. Gillespie, hitherto published separately, "Levelling and Higher Surveying," and "Practical Treatise on Surveying," have been thoroughly revised and enlarged, and are now united in this volume.

The Steam-Engine.

By George C. V. Holmes. New volume of "Text-Books of Science." With numerous illustrations. 16mo, cloth, $2.25.

"The progress of technical education during the last few years has rendered necessary the production of an elementary text-book on the steam-engine, containing information upon branches of the subject which have hitherto received but scant notice in works of this nature."—From the Preface.

WILL PUBLISH MARCH 15th:

CATHEDRAL DAYS. A Tour through Southern England. By ANNA BOWMAN DODD. With 23 illustrations from sketches and photographs by E. Eldon Deane. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

This is the record of a trip in places little frequented by tourists, told with so much fascination of style that the reader seems to share the delightful journey with the travellers. One of our foremost critics says of Mrs. Dodd: "She is, of all the women I know, the most thoroughly educated and accomplished—one of our ablest writers on literature, art, music, etc. I have looked over her descriptive record of a tour among the Southern Cathedral towns of England, and find it very charming."

SOME CHINESE GHOSTS. By LAFCADIO HEARN.

"If ye desire to witness prodigies and to behold marvels,

—Kin-Kou-Ki-Koan.

CONTENTS.—The Soul of the Great Bell; The Story of Ming-y; The Legend of Tchi-Nu; The Return of Yen-Tchin-King; The Tradition of the Tea-Plant; The Tale of the Porcelain-God. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

"Some Chinese Ghosts" is a collection of half a dozen legends culled from the realm of Cathayan story. The style has such grace and finish that it is charming, and the imagination is fresh and wholly original. This little gemus sure to have a permanent setting in American literature.

THE EGOIST. By GEORGE MEREDITH. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

This is the eighth issue in our new Library Edition of George Meredith's novels.

SONNETS IN SHADOW. By Arlo Bates, author of "Berries of the Brier." 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

Orders solicited. We have just issued a Descriptive List of Books lately published and in preparation which will be sent on application.

PRESS NOTICES.

"That great Anglo-Saxon undertaking, the New English Dictionary, edited by Dr. James A. H. Murray. . . . We need hardly remind our readers that this work ought to be not only in every publisher's library, but in every intelligent household."—Nation.

"This monumental work. Never before has the English language been treated lexicographically in a manner so truly comprehensive and scientific, and rarely has the University of Oxford lent the resources of its celebrated press to a work more worthy of its ancient renown."—London Times.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD, 743-745 Broadway, New York.

Houghton, Mifflin & Company

WILL PUBLISH WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16:

AMERICAN COMMONWEALTHS: NEW YORK.

By ELLIS H. ROBERTS, author of "Government Revenue." With a Map and Index. 2 vols., 16mo, gilt top, $2.50.

New York, by its geographical position and size, its settlement, its vast commercial and industrial development, and its varied political changes, has a history of conspicuous interest. Though lacking some features peculiar to others of the United States, on the whole its history is perhaps fuller than that of any other State in the various elements of political and social experience which form so large a part of human history. Mr. Roberts, the well-known editor of the Utica Herald, has so familiar knowledge of the origin and growth of the State, and is so well fitted by his intimate acquaintance with public affairs, that his book is certain to be an excellent history of New York and a very valuable addition to the series to which it belongs.

Volumes previously published in this Series:

Virginia. By John Esten Cooke.
Oregon. By Rev. William Barrows.
Maryland. By William Hand Browne.
Kentucky. By Prof. N. S. Shaler.

Kansas. By Prof. LEVERETT W. SPRING.
Michigan. By Hon. T. M. COOLEY.
California. By JOSIAH ROYCE, Ph.D.

With Maps and Indexes. Each volume uniform. 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

A CENTURY OF ELECTRICITY.

By T. C. MENDENHALL. With illustrations. 1 vol., 16mo, decorated cloth, $1.25.

The story of the discovery of the properties and uses of electricity seems almost to belong to the domain of romance and magic. It is one of the great marvels of the century, and its story is extremely interesting. Professor Mendenhall is widely known as one of the most learned and experienced of living students of this subject. He knows all that has hitherto been discovered in regard to electricity, and in this book he presents its history and science, in a popular form

HISTORY OF THE PAPACY DURING THE PERIOD OF THE REFORMATION.

By Rev. MANDELL CREIGHTON. Vols. III. and IV. THE ITALIAN PRINCES, 1464-1518. With Appendices and Index. Svo. $7.50.

These volumes continue Mr. Creighton's scholarly work, and present so far a full and adequate account of the Papacy during the Reformation. The English Churchman says of the former volumes: "His work is in all respects a great one, and is certain of a permanent place on the shelves of the student of ecclesiastical history. It is a grand specimen of conscientious workmanship, written in an admirable spirit, and a credit to English historical scholarship."

N.B. Vols. I. and II. can still be supplied, They are considerably larger than Vols. III. and IV., and the price is $10.00.

A SATCHEL GUIDE

NOTES IN SEASON.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD will publish in this country Robert Buchanan's new book, "A Look Round Literature," which has just been issued in London. The author, always a free lance in literature, exhibits, it is said, even more than usual independence in this work, and many of his criticisms are as striking as they are new and unconventional.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will publish May I
"The Earth in Space; a manual of astronomical geography," by Edward P. Jackson, A.M., Instructor in Physical Science, Boston Latin School. This little book has been made as simple and perspicuous as possible, to meet the growing demand for such a text-book in grammar schools. Numerous original cuts add very greatly to the ease with which principles, usually regarded as difficult, may be comprehended by young pupils. It has been submitted to the criticism of many practical teachers, whose suggestions have been of great assistance.

ROBERTS BROS. will publish on the 15th "Some Chinese Ghosts," by Lafcadio Hearn, a collection of half a dozen legends culled from the realm of Cathayan story. The style has such grace and finish that it is charming, and the imagination is fresh and wholly original; "Cathedral Days," by Anna Bowman Dodd, a record of a trip in places little frequented by tourists, told with much fascination of style, with 23 illustrations from sketches and photographs by E. Eldon Deane; "The Egoist." by George Meredith, being the eighth volume in the uniform twelvemo edition of his works; and "Sonnets in Shadow," by Arlo Bates, author of "Berries of the Brier," etc.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly a work of great importance to those who regard the study of agriculture as a science. It will be entitled "Agriculture in Some of its Relations with Chemistry," and will treat agriculture from the standpoint of the highest scholarship. It is not at all technical, and will interest any intelligent reader who desires a better and wider knowledge of the science of agriculture. Its author is Prof. F. H. Storer, of Harvard University. The price of the Scribners' great art-work, "Cyclopædia of Painters and Paintings," has been increased from $100 to $150 for the set. Although the third volume is but just issued, the entire special edition of the work has been disposed of, and no copies remain for sale.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish next week, in two volumes, "New York" in the excellent series of American Commonwealths. written by Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, of the Utica Herald, who certainly has the ability, knowledge, experience, and State pride to produce a very valuable work. At the same time will appear Prof. Mendenhall's book, "A Century of Electricity," giving from full knowledge of the subject, yet in a popular style, an account of what is known to date about the properties and applications of electricity; volumes 111. and 1V. of Rev. Mandell Creighton's great work on the "History of the Papacy during the Reformation," the value of which has been endorsed by eminent English critics; and a revised edition of the convenient "Satchel Guide" to Europe, which has been thoroughly tested and found to be trustworthy and to contain information tourists desire.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., have just had reproduced a faithful copy of M. de Munkacsy's great picture, "Christ Before Pilate," which has recently been sold for over $100,000 to Mr. John Wanamaker, in a fine steel-plate engraving, line, stipple, and mezzotint, measuring 22 x 28 inches. which they sell at the extremely low price of $1 a copy. The original painting was painted five years ago by the great Hungarian artist, as the supreme effort of his life and art in dealing in the spirit of realism with a sacred subject, and is one of the largest works of a modern artist. The subject is well enough known through description by the press and various modes of reproduction. The present, however, is the first suitable and dignified reproduction of the original made in this country (the expensive in ported etchings of course excepted), and that is and the extremely low price will undoubted insure it a large sale.

Baker, Ella M. Seven Easter lilies. Lisager, Elia M. Seven Easter illies. Bost., D. Lothrop & Co., [1887.] c. 300 p. D. cl., $1.25. A story for girls, pure, sweet, and full of encouragement, and calculated to exert a strong influence for good. The author feels that there is something peculiarly sacred and tender about Easter lilies, partly, perhaps, from their association with the day and season whose name they bear. The story tells what became of seven lilies which were tended by as many different hands in different homes, and how they affected those homes by the silent lessons they taught.

or New France. He dies at his post on the rocky coast of Maine, and is robbed of his ring before he is buried by a scamp, who soon after loses it. The story opens a century and a half after these occurrences in Bar Harbor, which has meanwhile become a fashionable summer resort. Whittier's poems are freely and appropriately quoted. The great railroad strikes of the summer of 1871 are skilfully brought in. The "Jesuit's ring" is again made use of at the end to round off the pretty thread of romance running through a well-told story.

Oliphant, Laurence. Haifa; or, life in modern Palestine; ed., with introduction by C: A. Dana. N. Y., Harper, 1887. c. '86. 7+369 p.

O. cl., $1.75.
"Mr. Laurence Oliphant's work is the result of the per sonal observation of the writer during a recent residence of three or four years in the Holy Land. It is the most distinct three or four years in the Holy Land. It is the most distinct and interesting account yet published of the country and its people, of the remains of antiquity to be found there, and of the questions which explorers are called to consider regarding them. The author carries the reader over portions of the country crowded with associations that do not derive their interest from any single age or race or nation, but from events and persons that fill a conspicuous place in accient history, acreed and confere and also in place in ancient history, sacred and profane, and also in the history of mediæval and modern times. The book has been edited by Mr. Charles A. Dana, who originally pub-lished its various chapters in the New York Sun in the form of letters."—Boston Globe.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

W. D. Howells celebrated his fiftieth birthday on the 1st inst.

GEORGE HOOPER, author of "Waterloo, or, the downfall of the First Napoleon," is writing a work entitled "The Campaign of Sedan, or, the downfall of the Second Empire.'

COLONEL HENRY S. OLCOTT, the famous hierophant of the theosophists, has published two books, one called "Om! The Hindoo Dwata Catechism," and the other, "Mamo Tassa Bhagazato Arahato Samma Sambuddhassa, a Buddhist Catechism." J. W. Bouton is the agent for the books in this country.

Dr. J. J. von Döllinger and Dr. Reusch are editing the autobiography of Cardinal Bellar-mine, which reaches to 1613. This autobiography, written in Latin, though of extreme interest, is almost unknown, owing to the persistent way in which it has been suppressed by the Jesuits. It will be accompanied by a German translation, introduction, and appendices, together with a full account of the proceedings relating to the proposed canonization of Bellarmine. Mr. Nutt is the English agent for the book

THE COMPLETION OF AMERICAN BIB-LIOGRAPHY.

IT is undoubtedly true that in the development of American trade bibliography to its present comprehensive basis there have been many gaps so far unfilled in the catalogues even which attempt to be the most complete. The letter of Mr. E. A. Mac in a recent issue, outlining a scheme to which we have before referred, presents many interesting points for consideration. We said in the "American Catalogue" of 1884 that if 500 subscribers at $100 each could be got, a bibliographer ought also to be found who might make in the year 1900 an approximately complete catalogue of all American books so far issued. If such a bibliographer is found it is worth while to make his task as easy as possible to fill the existing gaps in American trade bibliography. We have already indicated our willingness to make some compensation for supplying our records with titles omitted from the bibliographies within the period of our own publications, and so far there has been little response in that direction. We should be very glad to have from the trade a discussion as to the best means of accomplishing the results of getting together now the materials for supplying the present deficiencies of American trade bibliography.

UNIVERSAL AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF KNOWLEDGE OF THE BOOK-TRADE.

HERMANN WEISBACH, of Weimar, Saxony, has undertaken the publication of a work to be known as "Encyklopädie des Gesammten Buchhändlerischen Wissens," of which, in connection with Theodor Ebner, he will also be editor. material for this great undertaking will be brought together by the co-operation of trade colleagues and recognized authorities on special branches.

The vast subject will be divided into two volumes, the first theoretical, the second practical. Each volume is subdivided and issued in twelve separate parts, of which the first will be ready in October of the current year. The theoretical treatment of the subject will begin with an exhaustive introduction on the education of the book-trade and the scope of such education, and will include a bibliography of the works helpful in acquiring it. This will be followed by a history of books up to the time of the invention of printing, a description of ancient book-making in all its aspects, especially its methods of publishing and selling. The history of books in the middle ages will specially deal with the artistic manufacture, but give adequate attention to the mode of distribution in those times. Passing over, then, to the history of printing and its invention, and treating the subject to the present day, a detailed account will be given of the development of this art, and biographical sketches of the most noted printers. The gradual beginnings of the book-trade after the invention of printing, the separation of the book-trade from the printer's trade, later of the publisher from the retail dealer, and still later the development of the "jobbing-trade" will receive attention, and will be followed by a picture of the modern booktrade and its best-known representatives. While this book will, of course, deal largely with the German book-trade, the book-trade in France, Italy, Spain, England, America, Russia, and elsewhere will also be reviewed. A most important chapter will treat of the laws of the book-trade, and speak of the legal aspects of trade questions, giving special attention to dealings with authors and customers. The position of the book-trade in the commerce of the world, etc., will be explained, and a special division will be devoted to an encyclopædia of modern sciences and a sketch of the entire scope of modern The bibliography of the book-trade will include all works for the study of the subject and for dealing with the public, and will give a list of the most important German libraries and their scientific specialties. German, French, English, American, and Italian literatures will also receive an historical sketch from their beginnings to the present day. We give the subdivisions of two chapters as a specimen of the careful and exhaustive treatment their subjects will receive:

The education of the book-trade. a. General preparatory education. b. Special education. I. THE PUBLISHER. I. Knowledge of special branches of science; 2. Modern history, politics; 3. Modern literature; 4. Modern languages; 5. Science of typography and illustration. II. THE RETAILER. 1. Languages; 2. Modern literature; 3. Literature; 4. Bibliography; 5. Special sciences. III. THE ANTIQUARY. 1. Bibliography; 2. History of civilization; 3. History of printing; 4. History of literature; 5. General history and art-history.

Law in the Book-trade. A. Political law of the book-trade. 1. Rights of the press; 2. Copyright. B. Special laws of the book-trade. I. Dealings between author and publisher. Dealings of publisher with retailer. a. Cash business; b. Credit business; c. On sale business. III. Laws of commission business. IV. Dealings of retailer and public. It will readily be seen that this work will take money, time, and labor, but it will be a monumental work of which the German book-trade may well be proud.

DECISION AGAINST THE FRANKLIN SQUARE LIBRARY CO.

THE following is the text of the perpetual injunction granted by Chief Justice the Hon. M. R. Waite, in the case of Harper & Bros. vs. The Franklin Square Library Co.:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, SIXTH CIRCUIT, DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY, 35.

The President of the United States of America to The Franklin Square Library Company and Caleb S. Page, and to their and each of their associates, clerks, attorneys, agents, servants, and workmen, Greeting:

Whereas, It has been represented to us in our Circuit Court of the United States for the Sixth Circuit, and District of Kentucky, on the part of Philip J. A. Harper, John W. Harper, Joseph Abner Harper, Fletcher Harper, Joseph W. Harper, Jr., and Joseph Henry Harper, complainants, that they have lately exhibited their Bill of Complaint in our said Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kentucky against you, The Franklin Square Library Company and Caleb S. Page, defendants, praying to be relieved touching the matters therein complained of, in which bill it is stated, among other things, that you are combining and confederating with others to injure the said complainants touching the matters set forth in the said bill, and praying that you the said The Franklin Square Library Company and Caleb S. Page, and all acting for, with, and under you and either of you, may be restrained from using the trademark referred to in said bill, or any trade-mark being substantially the same as the trade-mark referred to in said bill, and from interfering with the business or otherwise infringing the rights of said complainants in the premises in the said bill mentioned, in any way or manner contrary to law or equity:

We, therefore, in consideration thereof, and also of the particular matters in the bill set forth, do strictly command and perpetually enjoin you, the said The Franklin Square Library Company and Caleb S. Page, your and each of your associates, clerks, attorneys, agents, servants, and workmen, and all others acting for, with, or under you, and each of you, under the pains and penalties which may fall upon you and each of you in case of disobedience, that you do absolutely desist and refrain from in any way or manner, directly or indirectly, interfering with the business of the complainants by printing or otherwise imitating or appropriating the words "Franklin Square Library," the complainants' trade-mark, and from publishing, using, circulating, selling, or otherwise disposing of any books or publications having upon them or containing the words "Franklin Square Library" printed or placed thereon by others than the complainants; and from in any way printing or marking upon any books or publications any title, or mark, or name, consisting of or containing the words "Franklin Square Library," or any words substantially the same, and from using, publishing, circulating, selling, or otherwise disposing of any books or publications having said trade-mark printed or marked thereon by you or any of you.

Witness, the Honorable Morrison R. Waite, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, at the City of Louisville, Kentucky, in the said District, this twelfth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

SAM'L B. CRAIL, Clerk.

NEW YORK PUBLISHERS BURNED OUT.

AT about a quarter past four in the afternoon of the 5th inst. a barrel of paint on one of the lower floors of 29 Rose Street, New York City, caught fire. In a few moments the draught through the belt holes, the building being occupied by printing establishments, carried the flames to every floor of the five-story structure. Owing to a delay, caused by the excitement, the engines did not get word until the fire had made considerable headway.

The top floors of 27, 29 and 31 were occupied by a varnishing establishment, and the fury with which the inflammable material blazed made the expectation general that the whole block was doomed. The gutting of 29 was a foregone conclusion, and the firemen directed their attention to saving the buildings on either side. They succeeded after a hard fight, the top stories only of 27 and 31 being consumed. Three hours after the blaze started it was practically extinguished.

No. 29 formed part of a brick block of four buildings, running from 25 to 31 inclusive. The block is the property of Joseph T. Preston, whose printing establishment occupied the first floor and basement of 27. His loss, according to the New York Times, is $25,000, and there is $20,000 insurance on each building. His loss in his printing establishment is by water only and is under $1000. The second floor at 29 was a storeroom belonging to J. S. Ogilvie & Co., the publishers, who also occupy the first and second floors of 31. Their estimated loss is $10,000 and their insurance the same. A large number of their plates were destroyed and their book stock is more or less injured by water. The third floor of 29 formed part of the printing establishment of H. J. Hewitt, whose presses, however, were uninjured, as they were on the second and third floors of 27. Hewitt's loss is estimated at $5000 and the insurance is not known. The fourth floor of 29 was the printing establishment of Charles J. Vogelius. His loss establishment of Charles J. Vogelius. is $35,000, with an insurance of $9000. New York Weekly occupied three floors at 31, with its business offices, editorial rooms, and composing rooms and bindery respectively. Its loss by water is placed at $20,000, covered by insurance.

BALZAC'S DROLLERIES AND THE HEP-TAMERON IN COURT.

Anthony Comstock had his attention attracted to an advertisement last September and he sent $2 to John A. Wilson, of the "Globe Publishing Co.," at Paulsborough, N. J. Comstock wrote over a fictitious name from Tannersville, N. Y. He received a copy of "Balzac's Drolleries," and for another $2 a copy of the "Heptameron," by Margaret of Navarre, was sent to him. The Federal grand cury found two bills of indictment against Wilson for sending obscene literature through the mails. Wilson stood trial on the first indictment on the 2d inst., his counsel holding that Balzac was a classic writer and that persons of taste and refinement read his productions. He admitted that passages in them were objectionable, but so were some in the works of Shakespeare, Fielding, and The jury convicted Wilson, and on the 3d inst. he pleaded non vult on the other indictment. He was sentenced to the State Prison for two years and to pay a fine of $500 and costs.

EASTER GIFTS AND SOUVENIRS.

THE pretty custom of exchanging greetings at the Easter season, by means of cards, souvenirs, booklets, and appropriate gifts, introduced a few years back, is now almost universally adopted, and publishers give more and more attention to the providing of beautiful and suggestive articles for this purpose. The meaning of the festival is kept in mind in preparing souvenirs to be bought by those to whom the story of the resurrection is a living truth, but even for those to whom the Easter-tide merely means "the time of the singing of birds" and the "bursting of buds," all manner of tempting "things of beauty" are made ready. Year by year all the new arts of reproduction and color-printing are made to do service, and the material to be illustrated or daintily bound and decked with cards and ribbons is chosen with more and more critical, refined, and exacting taste.

MARTIN J. COHEN, 2109 Third Ave., N. Y., has published two neat Easter gifts, the one entitled "Easter Echoes," selections from Frances Ridley Havergal's poems, a ribbon-tied booklet, with a neat cover on which is printed in colors a little bird sitting on a stalk of wheat chirping out his welcome to spring. The other is John Henry Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light," a small ribbontied book, on the cover of which is printed a spray of lilies of the valley on a background of blue sky and a crescent of gold.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have prepared for this season a beautiful new book, entitled "The Lily and the Cross," with text by E. Nesbit, and 8 full-page illustrations in sepia by A. Wilde Parsons. The book will be 7x9 inches and be put up in lithographed card covers and in a sumptuous satin binding. They also call attention to the four booklets, "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn," and "Winter," each of which contains 32 pages of exquisitely printed monotints, with verses appropriate to the season, and artistically printed colored covers.

LEE & SHEPARD are about to publish for the approaching Easter season several beautiful memorial booklets in the form of finely illustrated poems, tastily bound in Palatine boards, with appropriate floriated designs, raised gold titles, knotted with satin ribbon, and neatly boxed. In this collection of Easter novelties are: "Arise! My Soul, Arise!" by Sarah Flower Adams, the author of "Nearer, My God, to Thee;" "See the Land, Her Easter Keeping," one of the most beautiful of Charles Kingsley's poetic compositions; "Gladness of Easter," selected from various poets, with apt and attractive illustrations; "The Message of the Bluebird," by Irene E. Jerome, the author of "One Vear's Sketch-Book" and of "Nature's Hallelujah." The same publishers will also bring out in Easter dress and in miniature edition the familiar hymns, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "My Faith Looks up to Thee," "Rock of Ages," and "Abide with Me." The profuse illustrations and delicate binding, in addition to the charming subjects, make these little volumes choice Easter souvenirs.

GEO. R. LOCKWOOD & SON also call attention to their line of Easter novelties, which include "Easter Bells," "Flowers for Easter," and "Poems for Easter," by Miss Havergal, bound in parchment covers with impressions of burnished silver; "Easter Chimes," "Alleluia," and "Thoughts for Easter," these three being slightly larger than the above, gotten up in tinted cardboard covers, stamped with designs appropriate to the season, and tied with ribbons in a new style. The selections from "Ben Hur." published under the title "Seekers After the Light," with four etchings illustrative of the well-known text of General Wallace's most famous book, which were first brought out for the Christmas season, have now, by change of stamp and ribbon, been made appropriate for the Easter season, and cannot fail to meet the taste of the many readers of "Ben Hur."

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY publish a charming gift-book for Easter entitled "Easter Lilies," with dainty flower cover and illustrations on tinted paper, and carefully chosen selections ap-propriate for the season. "Seven Easter Lilies," a story by that gifted young author, Ella M. Baker, whose early death was so great a grief to a large circle of friends and admirers, will be found a suitable present at this season, as will also the "Christmas Eve and Easter Day," by Robert Browning, edited by Heloise E. Hersey, which contains an essay on "The Theory of Robert Browning Concerning Personal Immortality," and a preface by W. J. Rolfe. The poems in the latter volume will be found full of strength and significance. They also have just ready "Sunshine," a poem of springtime, by Katherine Lee Bates, illustrated by W. L. Taylor; and "Thoughts of Beauty and Words of Wisdom," selected from the writings of John Ruskin and edited, with introduction, by Rose Porter. Some of the wellknown poems published at various seasons by this house have been made suitable Easter gifts by being put into a white binding of vegetable parchment, which gives them a truly festive appearance. Amongst the poems receiving this mark of distinction are: "The Stabat Mater," mark of distinction are: "The Stabat Mater," "Idyls and Pastorals," "Heroines of the Poets," "Out of the Darkness," and "Ideal Poems," all too well known to the trade to need detailed description at this date. Suffice it to say, they are even more attractive than heretofore.

Thomas Nelson & Sons issue for this season a pretty new book, entitled "For Eventide," beautifully illuminated, with texts and hymns for eight weeks, edited by H. L. L. It is peculiarly adapted to the Easter season. The selections are admirable and the printing in excellent taste. Their illuminated text-books of previous seasons, "Thoughts for Sunrise," "Thoughts for Sunset," "Thoughts for Sunset," "Thoughts of Heaven, our Home Above," may be recommended as most delightful books for the thoughtful—pleasing alike to the mind and the eye. The same may be said of their Favorite Hymn Series, which now comprises." Just as I Am," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Rock of Ages," "Jerusalem the Golden," "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Ten Commandments," all of which are illustrated and handsomely printed and bound.

NIMS & KNIGHT, Troy, N. Y., have made quite a feature of Easter booklets, and offer several that show judgment and good taste. Mrs. A. N. Bullens has in most instances been selected to choose and arrange the various poems and quotations that fill these little booklets. A new and novel calendar is the "Easter to Easter Calendar," including the church calendar from Easter, 1887, to Easter, 1888. Each month has illuminated design, an appropriate poem, and a page of brief selections for each day of the month. The cover title is stamped in gilt and silver, the decoration is a Maltese cross in flexible ivory, with delicate design, and the pretty combination is bound in antique hand-made boards with ragged edges, and put up in neat box. "Chaplets and Tokens" are poems of flowers; "Mountain and Glen," poems of mountain and field; and "Silver Voices," poems of bird-life, all three gotten up with the same finish that made "Fair Thoughts and Happy Havens," the first of this series, so popular. "Gems of Ruskin," "Wayside Gleanings," and "Vesper Chimes," are the followers of "Sheaves of Golden Grain," published last fall, and like their predecessor can be had in Whatman boards and also in flexible ivory with steel-plate engraving. " Easter-tide Anthems," "Golden Words from Charles Kingsley," "After Hours," "Stepping-Stones," and "Pearls from George Eliot" are uniform with "Laurel Crowned," published last fall, and are also in flexible ivory binding. All the above are the work of Mrs. Bullens. Jean Ingelow's "Echo and the Ferry" has been illustrated by C. E. Phillips, and published in Whatman's antique board, with ragged edge, with a handsome cover design stamped in variegated bronze.

L. Prang & Co. have endeavored, as heretofore, to keep pace with the demand for more results, as regards original designs, truthful reproduction, appropriate sentiments, and taste in ornamentation and embellishment, and may well feel flattered at their success. The following well-known artists have contributed designs to this year's line: Miss Fidelia Bridges, Miss Libesth B. Comins, Miss L. B. Humphrey, Newton Makintosh, F. Schuyler Mathews, S. F. B. Morse, Henry Sandham, Walter Satterlee, and Mrs. O. E. Whitney. One improvement this year is the absence in most cases of fringe. In its place have been introduced artistic antique paper mounts, many of which have been painted by hand, and which with their dainty tints, pretty floss bows, and ragged edges will be found in every way preferable to their predecessor-the fringed cards. A feature of this house which becomes more prominent every season is their exquisite line of satin art prints. These are now elaborately made up in a large variety of new and elegant styles, and have been found quite desirable as presents. We can but call general attention to the productions of this firm; to enumerate them or to go into details would take more space than we can command.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have displayed their usual good taste and even more than their usual generosity in getting up their Easter books and They have a large line of hand-painted booklets. stock which shows new and original designs and fine finish, being the work of artists of well-known ability. "In Blossom-Time" is a selection of poems from the best authors, all treating of Four illustrations from original designs embellish the text. It is gotten up in ornament-al cloth, and also in Whatman paper, with hand-painted cover decoration. "Heartsease" is a charming little poem by the author of "Trust;" each page has flower designs, drawn in outline and printed in purple ink on cardboard; "A Handful of Monographs, Continental and English," is by Margaret J. Preston, and is published in a limited edition with four photographs as well as in neat, durable cloth; "For Love's Sake," by the same author, contains poems of faith and comfort, and is also published in plain and decorated styles. All the old favorites have been put into appropriate Easter dress and are even more tempting than heretofore.

MARCUS WARD & Co. have issued a dainty little book, entitled "Easter Garlands," bound in white silk with an appropriate design in gold, fastened together with a silver cord. The pages of the book contain selections from Scripture and hymns relating to the resurrection, printed on gold background, with borders of floral designs. In the line of cards they have four new numbers comprising chiefly floral designs. No. 6209. Easter Lilies, is a set of three cards with designs of a cross in gilt and various colored lilies. No. 6219 is a set of four greeting cards with silver crosses. The bottom left-hand corners of these cards are turned down, "Every good wish" being printed on the flap. No. 0252 is a set of four cards representing Maltese crosses decorated with flowers. No. 12,286 is a larger card than any of the above, comprising six cards with Maltese crosses in silver decorated with apple-blossoms, chrysanthemums, and daisies.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co., N. Y., call attention to their little Easter booklets, "Heavenly Echoes" and "Holy Messengers," containing appropriate quotations, printed artistically in gold and colors, with pretty illuminated covers, also in gold and colors.

WHITE, STOKES & ALLEN have provided a fresh instalment of all their favorite Easter souvenirs, and added several beautiful things to their tempting list. "Heralds of Easter," by Dora Read Goodale, is a poem in fac-simile of the author's manuscript, with exquisite illustrations by Fidelia Bridges, daintily printed in colors, on water-color paper. The designs are of city sparrows and wisteria, white doves and blessoming apricot, swallows skimming over white daisies, chirping birds and pussy willow. "Words of Comfort and Hope" are selections from Molinos, St. Augustine, Cardinal Bona, Madame Swetchine, and others, chosen by Louise S. Houghton, printed on fine laid paper, in purple ink, bound in "Whatman ivorine" binding, with an engraving of Reynold's "The Angel Choir" in purple on the ivorine. The Whatman ivorine binding is a novelty. By secret process a fine engraving is printed on ivorine, a material closely resembling ivory. This is then mounted on heavy white Whatman drawing-paper, with ragged edge, and tied with silver cord. Both the above booklets are thus daintily clothed, as well as "Easter," by Rose Porter, "Golden Words of Holy Men, "Silver Thoughts of Great Minds," and Dickens "Child's Dream of a Star." Several of the well-known novelties of former years have also been put in this new Easter dress, amongst others "Easter Bells," by "H. H.;" "Easter Messengers," by Lucy Larcom; "Songs of Birds," "Birds of Meadow and Grove," and "Songsters of the Branches," by Fidelia Bridges. Several of the above can also be had on French sateen, or in "silver-edged" binding. The fourteen vol-umes of the Flower-Song Series offer a wide range of choice in selection of an Easter gift. range of choice in selection of an faster gift. A new series of miniature books, uniform with "Chips," "Gems," and "Golden Thoughts," is the Faithful Series, including "The Faithful Promiser," "The Spiritual Guide," and the "Words o Jesus." These are 2½ by 3¾ inches, are bound in white parchment and put up in a pretty box. They are also sold separately.

THE ENGLISH SOCIETY OF AUTHORS.

From the Tribune's London Letter, Mar. 3.

THE Society of Authors has at last outgrown the natural timidity of a young organization, found the courage of its opinions, and taken a completely new departure. Lord Lytton, who presided at a crowded meeting yesterday at Willis' Rooms, kept the beaten track in his polished address. It was Mr. Walter Besant who struck the new note. He, with every profession of personal good-will and respect for honorable publishers, set forth unflinchingly a catalogue of those singular practices by which less honorable publishers secure to themselves an unfair proportion of the profits of a book. He showed how they set apart secret profits, withhold accounts, and present to the author fictitious statements of the cost of his book. He showed not less clearly that even where all is aboveboard the publisher takes for his services in introducing the book to the public more than twice or thrice what he allows the author for writing it. He announced that the Society henceforward would no longer be content with protecting individuals against injustice, but meant to establish a new principle on a new basis of dealing as between authors and publishers. He carried the audience with him enthusiastically on these and on other points. or two papers, ignorant of the real merits of the question, come feebly to the rescue of the publishers, but English authors now know what to aim at and whom to look to for protection.

OBITUARY.

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

On the 9th inst. the last of a grand generation of the orators who "wrought the great revolution in politics and morals, of which the Civil War was but the outward and visible sign," passed away after a brief and painless struggle. He was a wholly human man, whose entire being throbbed with the strength and weakness of our race, but one who, whatever else may be said of him, devoted his great power to the noblest ends. The sense of freedom, of love, and of charity ever pervaded his whole being, and led him to the performance of those works which raised him to the highest pinnacle in the estimation of the American people. And for these, the people will revere his memory.

Mr. Beecher was the son of Lyman Beecher, and was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813. At an early age he is said to have had a strong predilection for a sea-faring life, which he, however, renounced in consequence of a deep religious impression he experienced during a re-He graduated at Amherst College in 1834, and then entered Lane Theological Seminary, which he left a year or two afterward to take an editorial position on the Cincinnati Journal. 1837 he accepted a call to a Presbyterian church at Laurenceburg, Ind., a town of 500 or 600 inhabitants, on the Ohio River. His settlement there was followed quickly by his marriage to Miss Eunice White Bullard. In 1839 he went to Indianapolis, then a town of 4000 inhabitants. It was while there that he became the editor of the Western Farmer and Gardener, the first nonpolitical paper published in Indiana. In 1847. October 10, he began his brilliant career in Brooklyn. From first to last the church building was never large enough to hold all the people that came to hear him. He was editor of the Independent from 1861 to 1863, when he visited Europe for his health. His earnest addresses to large audiences on the subject of the American war appear to have had considerable influence in turning the current of public opinion in Great Britain in favor of the Union cause. In 1870 he became editor of the Christian Union, which a year after increased in circulation from 3000 to over 30,000. In a little while it reached a circulation of 130,000 copies. In 1881 he resigned his position as editor. In addition to his editorial writings he published in 1850 "Lectures to Young Men," which comprised his earliest, and, what he considered his best sermons, originally preached in Indianapolis. After they were printed he gave the copyright to a young friend, who is said to have reaped the advantage of a sale of 60,000 copies. In 1855 he collected a series of articles from the journals with which he was connected and published them under the titles of "Star Papers" and "Eyes and Ears." "Life Thoughts" appeared in 1858. "Royal Truths" in 1864, and in the same year his novel, "Norwood," saw the light. In 1871 he published the first volume of his "Life of Christ," perhaps the most disappointing production of his pen. This he was to complete, as he was also to write his autobiography, mentioned in the WEEKLY of February 26.*

CHAS. J. PETERSON.

CHARLES JACOB PETERSON, the founder, publisher, and editor of Peterson's Magasine, died on the 5th inst. at his residence, No. 1501 Walnut St., Philadelphia, of neuralgia of the heart,

Charles J. Peterson was the eldest of five brothers, and was born in Philadelphia sixty-eight years ago. The surviving brothers are Theophilus B., the head of the publishing-house of T. B. Peterson & Brothers, and Thomas, one of the firm. He studied law in his earlier days, and on September 21, 1839, was admitted to the bar. But even in those days the late publisher felt attracted toward literary pursuits, and he contributed matter to many of the periodicals of the day. Event-ually he entirely forsook the practice of law and became a regular contributor to the Casket, a monthly magazine then published by George Q. Subsequently he became connected with various journals as editor, and in 1844 he purchased the Lady's World of Fashion, then owned by V. Quarre, and thenceforth issued it under the name of Peterson's Lady's National Magasine. He associated with him in the editorial department Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, then the most attractive magazine writer of the day. was the foundation of Peterson's Magazine.

Mr. Peterson was the author of a number of tales and critical articles, which were published in magazines and newspapers, and some more ambitious works, including "The Military Heroes of the Revolution; with a Narrative of the War of Independence;" "The Military Heroes of the War of 1812, and of the War with Mexico;" "Grace Dudley, or, Arnold at Saratoga;" "Cruising in the Last War;" "The Naval Heroes of the United States;" and "Kate Alesford, a Story of the Refugees." He also wrote a continuation to von Rottech's "History of the World."

^{*}In addition to the works mentioned he published in book form through Fords, Howard & Hulbert "Evolution and Religion," and his "Yale Lectures on Preaching," The same firm also issued in book form his sermons for 1873 and 1874, an account of his lecturing tour through thirty States and Territories: and two volumes of selections from his works—"Comforting Thoughts," compile by Irene Ovington, and "Life Thoughts," edited by Irene Ovington, and "Life Thoughts," edited tures to Young Men" and "Norwood."

BENJAMIN COATES, senior in the firm of Coates Brothers, wool merchants, and at one time a special partner in the house of Porter & Coates, died at his residence in Philadelphia, on the 7th inst.

PAUL HENRY CORENTIN FEVAL, the French novelist, died on the 8th inst. He was born in 1817. In 1844 he produced, in eleven volumes, under the assumed name of Sir Francis Trolopp, "The Mysteries of London." Among his other novels are "Captain Spartacus," "The Iron Man," "The Duke's Motto," "The Woman's Mystery," "Thrice Dead," "Chateau-Pauvre," "Stepping-Stones and Conversions," and "The Wonders of Mont St. Michel."

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Truth Seeker Co. has removed to its commodious and handsome quarters at 28 Lafayette Place, the building formerly occupied by R. Worthington.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Thompson Publishing Co. has removed to the more central location 225 South Sixth Street.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAI.—J. Dewing, M. S. Dewing, and Wm. L. Oge have recently incorporated under the name of The J. Dewing Company for the continuance and extension of their well-known business as publishers, importers, and booksellers at 420 and 422 Bush Street.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ARNOLD & Co., 420 Library St., Phila., will publish shortly "Theology of Evolution," a lecture by E. D. Cope.

It is reported in Boston that Mr. James Russell Lowell has practically edited the Thackeray letters for the April Scribner.

JOHN IRELAND will publish shortly "A Simple Heart," by S. B. Elliott, author of "The Felmeres," a book that created considerable sensation when first published.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM of 71 Bible House, N. Y., has accepted the New York agency, for the publications of H. L. Hastings, and the Scriptural Tract Repository, of Boston.

JAMES R. GILMORE ("Edmund Kirke"), author of a "Life of Garfield," has brought suit for violation of copyright against Horatio Alger, Jr., for his "From Canal Boy to President," published by John R. Anderson.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have in preparation "A Handbook of Psychology," by Prof. J. C. Murray, of McGill University; and "The Andover Defence," in the matter of the complaint against Egbert C. Smyth and others.

CHARLES A. BATES, Indianapolis, has just published "Little Dialogues for Little People," fifty entirely new dialogues for from two to six speakers. He has also issued a second edition of "Little Speeches for Little People," in a new cover.

WALTER SCOTT, London, will publish in the course of the spring a volume of selected stories by the late Philip Bourke Marston. The book will be entitled "For a Song's Sake," and will have an introductory memoir by Mr. William Sharp.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready, in London, Carlyle's "Reminiscences," as edited by Charles Eliot Norton, in two volumes, and they announce it allows the opening of the paper or music perfor immediate issue the long-looked-for "Letters" fectly flat.

Between Carlyle and Goethe," which have been edited by the same careful and discriminating hand.

JOHN H. DEMO, who acted as a book agent for D. Appleton & Co. from the middle of last month to the 7th inst., has been arrested on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. He is said to have forged orders for books on which he received $2.50 commissions, and that he obtained money right and left on the strength of his connection with the Appletons.

LEE & SHEPARD will soon publish a new edition of "A Year Worth Living," by the late Wm. M. Baker author of "His Majesty Myself;" "Later Lyrics," by Julia Ward Howe, which will include her famous "Battle Hymn of the Republic;" "Dialogues from Dickens," and "Dramas and Dialogues from Dickens," both arranged by W. Elliot Fette; and "Buds for the Bridal Wreath," by W. P. Tilden.

BLACKWOOD & SONS are to publish a memoir of the life and political work of the late Lord Iddesleigh. Lady Iddesleigh is already engaged in arranging and classifying her late husband's letters, and the preparation of the work will be carried on solely by the late earl's family. Lord Iddesleigh took an active part in politics for so many years, and filled so many important positions in the course of his career, that his biography must prove a valuable contribution to English political literature.

CHAS. L. WEBSTER & Co. have in preparation Major-General S. W. Crawford's "Genesis of the Civil War—the Story of Sumter," a most important volume, which, with "The Personal Memoirs of General Grant," and "McClellan's Own Story," already published, it is claimed, covers the entire period of the Great Rebellion in the East and West. Another anxiously expected work, sure of many readers, will also shortly appear, "The Reminiscences of General Winfield Scott Hancock," by his wife.

THE HOWARD MANUFACTURING AND STATION-ERY Co., 91 Liberty St., N. Y., have put on the market a neat and handy binder for preserving paper, music, etc. In the Handy Binder the binding is effected by the use of binding-pins or loops made of very slender spring brass wire, each of which has in its centre a U-shaped projection. The sides of the wire are designed to rest on the inner fold, and the U portion to project beyond the edge of the paper to be bound. Through two of these projecting loops in each paper, a strong binding cord is designed to pass. These cords furnish the binding or gripping force by the means of ingeniously placed eyeletted holes in the back cover, and an adjustable back allows the binding of a number of papers. The binder is made of durable flexible paper with neat corners. One of the chief advantages claimed for it is that it allows the opening of the paper or music per fectly flat.

NOTES IN SEASON.

TICKNOR & Co. publish to-day "Due North," by Maturin M. Ballou, giving experiences during a recent journey through Norway, Sweden, Russia, and other northern countries of Europe; a new edition of Viollet-Le-Duc's "Discourses on Architecture;" "Two Gentlemen of Boston," novel of New England rural life, published anonymously; and "The Strike in the Bthe initial volume in the new series of Round Robin novels, an exciting story dealing intelligently with the various aspects of strikes and other labor questions now agitating the community.

JOHN ALLYN, Boston, has just published "A First Course of Physical Laboratory Practice," by A. M. Worthington, late Assistant Master at Clifton College, fully illustrated.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Cincinnati, have in preparation, to be issued in a few weeks, an annotated edition of the Inter-State Commerce Law, collecting all the authorities on the subject.

Funk & Wagnall's announce a new edition of Dr. Lyman Abbott's "Henry Ward Beecher, his Life and Characteristics, with analyses of his power as a preather, lecturer, orator, and jour-nalist." This new edition will bring the work down to the close of the great preacher's life. The work will contain over a score of portraits of Mr. Beecher representing him at different ages and in different moods, with portraits of other members of his family, making it a splendid memorial volume. S. B. Halliday, the assistant pastor of Plymouth Church, will co-operate with Dr. Abbott in completing the work. It will be ready for delivery at an early date.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, will issue at once in their series of Monographs on Education, a paper by Prof. J. F. Genung, on "The Study of Rhetoric in the College Course." The book is the outcome of the author's close and continued inquiry into the scope and limits of rhetorical study as pursued by undergraduates, and of his application of his ideas to the organization of a progressive rhetorical course. The same house has just ready a new edition of Prof. Shumway's "A Day in Ancient Rome," of which nearly forty thousand copies have already been sold. The great success of this book is chiefly due to its reliability and interesting style.

Alexander, A: W. Grant as a soldier. St. Louis, published by the author [A: W. Alexander,] 1887. c. 249 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Aims to give a true estimate of Gen. Grant's place in history as a military leader. Contains no personal biography nor reference to his career subsequent to the close of the war. Beginning with the battle of Belmont, and taking up successively Fort Henry, Fort Donelson, Shiloh, and the other great campaigns in which Grant figured down to the surrender of Lee, the author presents a number of facts and statistics concerning them, which a number of facts and statistics concerning them, which certainly do not add to Grant's reputation as a great general.

Du Boisgobey, Fortuné. Cécile's fortune.
Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1886. 5-108 p.

D. pap., 25 c.

Cécile is a young girl whose relationship to the Count
De Porcien is not made clear; on his death a technicality of the law which prevents her inheriting his fortune becomes the motor for several intrigues, in which the chief participants are escaped convicts from Toulon;
their desperate attempts to secure Cécile's fortune fail, although reasons prevent her claiming the De Porcien pap., 25 c.

The story opens with a crime which horrifies Paris and baffles the skill of the police until evidence points to Berthe Mornas; thread by thread the mystery is unraveled and the readers are startled, by the strange details of the murder and the murderess motives for supplementing murder by suicide through the aid of the "steel neck-lace" which figures extensively in the story.

2+427 p. D. pap., 50 c. The heroine is one of three charming girls, daughters of an Englishman, who occupies a small government position in a South American city. The girls have been brought up in an unconventional manner without a mother, and add to many natural attractions the art of flirting. "Lil" is an unusually fresh and sympathetic character, her many love affairs enlisting the readers interest deeply. The scene changes to England for a time, and we get the contrast of the strict—hedged in domestic life of the English woman; here poor "Lil's" free unrestrained ways bring her into no end of trouble, and almost make a tragedy of her happiness.

Vera St. Laurent, the daughter of the owner of the châteaux, and Leah Josephs her companion and instructress for the time being, are the revelations of the first chapter. Leah, an accomplished Jewess, whose father is a noted London scientist, accepts an engagement in Brittany for the summer in order to brighten up her French. A friendship springs up between her and Vera which changes all Vera's after life. It is the old story of a daughter being asked to marry to please her father in order that he may have his debts paid. Vera and an Englishman she loves are the "victims." Leah's faith and her love for a Christian are also elements in the story. story.

The author, professor of Christian morals in Harward University, had three purposes in view in preparing these lectures. t. To present with scientific accuracy, yet in a popular form, the fundamental principles of moral philosophy. 2. To show its inseperable alliance, at every point, with religion, and especially with Christianity. 3. "To illustrate the principles of ethical science as they are developed in its own and in human history, as they are involved in questions of current or recent interest, and as they are applicable to the concerns of daily life." The author's style is simple, yet scholarly, and he brings a wealth of anecdote and illustration to render his subject atractive to the general tration to render his subject atractive to the general reader.

This treatise was discovered by Luther, who first brought it into notice by an edition which he published in 1516. He wrote a preface for a second edition, in which he says "that next to the Bible and St. Augustine, no book hath ever come into my hands, whence I have learnt, or would wish to learn more of what God, and Christ, and man, and all things are." No fewer than seventeen editions of the work appeared during the life-time of Luther, and it has continued to be a favorite handbook of devotion in Germany, where it has passed through more than sixty editions, and has also been widely circulated in France, and the Netherlands, by means of Latin, French, and Flemish translations. A manuscript of it was discovered in 1850 at Wurtzburg, which bears the date 1497, from which the present translation has been made.

Miss Williams has already shown herself a writer of good and helpful words in her former books, "Dorothy Dorchester," "The Hastings," etc. She touches life from the practical side, seeking to teach religion, not in its theory of morals merely but as applied to daily conduct and habitual disposition. The present volume is planned to teach the meaning of St. Paul's wonderful thirteenth of Corinthians. The characters are well drawn and are not by any means too saintly for very actual life. The story is full of interest and the lessons are clearly taught. Incidentally many valuable suggestions concerning Christian work are given.

The Publishers' Meekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 19, 1887.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS.

WE reprint elsewhere a report of the second conference of the [English] Incorporated Society of Authors, in which is also given an epitome of Mr. Besant's essay on the relations between authors and publishers, in which he sets forth the nature and extent of the authors' grievances. The matter can have little interest to us in this country, further than as an item of news. While not claiming for the American publisher a monopoly of virtue or fair-dealing, such complaints are rare in this country, and, to our knowledge, when made, have never been substantiated. This is not owing to the peculiar honesty of publishers as much as it is to the difference in the law of the two countries. Under the old English law the product of literary workers was practically denied protection. Ideas, in the "good old days," were not regarded as having value until they were presented in the printed and bound book, and then only the manufacturer of the book was recognized as the proprietor of the article or materialized idea. This gave the publisher in England a power which, though it no longer exists in fact, has given rise to the abuses and ramifications the author has more or less suffered to this day.

A great deal has been said in this controversy that must be regarded with caution, especially when figures are produced to prove certain statements, for it is a melancholy fact that figures may be used to prove almost anything. The statement that publishers grasp the lion's share is one of these. We imagine that authors who have made a reputation take care of themselves, and that on the books by lesser-known or obscure authors the publisher comes in not for the lion's share of the profits, but possibly for the larger share.

And why should this not be so? Is the publisher's experience in manufacturing and in handling all the machinery that has to be set in motion to make a book popular to stand for nothing? Where would nine-tenths of the great names in literature of the present day stand had it not been for the sagacity, the sacrifice, and the honesty of some publisher who took the whole risk of bringing out the then obscure writer's production? There are, fortunately, two sides to every story. We think we are safe in saying that there can be few callings which involve so many risks, and which, on the whole, leave so small a margin for all the labor put into them as does the publishing of books.
